School Union Plans Gatherings

Season opens July 2 for the annual series of "group gatherings" of the Union Sunday schools in Douglas and Clatsop counties. Miss G. Griffin says that all districts have held the necessary meetings, and plans are formulated for many large and interesting gatherings.

Schedule of group gatherings follows:
1—Spencer Creek district, at Little Creek house.
2—Cottage Grove district, at Cottage Grove park.
3—McKenzie Valley district, at State Fish Hatchery.
4—Roseburg district, at Little Creek house.
5—Cottage Grove district, at Cottage Grove park.
6—Middle Ford district, at Landau.

These group gatherings have the purpose of strengthening religious work in each district, and afford an opportunity for the mingling of rural folk in a way that fosters friendship and better understanding. The thousands of people who attended the large gathering at the Fish Hatchery last year were deeply impressed, and in view of that a larger attendance can be expected this year.

The programs are being so arranged that each rural Sunday school will have a part in the meeting. Many outside speakers have been obtained who will bring messages from the Book. Much musical assistance has been promised that should make the meetings a grand success. Several groups purchased and arranged seats last year, but additional accommodations will be prepared for any increased attendance.

Several city Sunday schools disinterested themselves last year to attend these group gatherings, and a cordial welcome is extended to all schools to participate in any of the above scheduled meetings for this year. Further announcements of the programs will be made.

Gordon C. Griffin, missionary for Eugene and Roseburg districts.
A. R. Gray, vice-president for Eugene district.
B. L. Eddy, vice-president for the Roseburg district.

SUNDAY AT THE CHURCHES

M. E. Church, South, Main and Lane Sts. J. L. Needham, minister. The Sunday school meets at 9:45 with W. L. Cobb, superintendent in charge. Let's all be present on time. Professor Norman E. Richardson declared in an address yesterday before the International Sunday school convention that "religious education is a national necessity. It is the only hope of our present civilization. Merely to sharpen the wits of boys and girls through a local and nation-wide program of public education is not sufficient. Social and religious attitudes must be created if this government is to endure. Universal righteousness is as necessary as universal intelligence." Preaching services by the pastor at 11 a. m. Topic, "Crime, Criminals, and Law Enforcement." Special music under the direction of T. H. Olsen. Come. The Epworth league meets at 7 p. m. No preaching service at night on account of the Chautauqua.

Christian Church, corner Pine and Woodward streets. C. H. Hilton, minister. Regular morning service will be held. The pastor will preach, subject, "The Authority of Jesus." Chautauqua on Sunday evening. There will be no evening service. The Bible school meets at 9:45, and the interest in the school is still high, and a high standard is being maintained. Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor at 7 o'clock. The public welcome to the services.

International Bible Students will meet at 2:30 Sunday at Moose hall. There are four ways of knowing things, namely, by intuition, by observation, by experience, and by information received through sources accepted as positively truthful, and to all those who are interested in God's word and want to know what the Bible really teaches, we extend an invitation to meet with us and any question will be gladly answered.

The Presbyterian Church, corner of Lane and Jackson streets. L. Norving Quick, minister. 9:45 a. m. Bible school. The children will hold their Children's day exercises during the hour of the Sabbath school session. Parents and friends are invited to attend. Morning worship, 11:00 a. m. Junior sermon, "Bob's Temptation," a true story about a real boy and how the pastor helped him. Sermon topic, "Faith, the greatest foundational element in religious, social and commercial life." Christian Endeavor at 6:30 p. m. On account of the Chautauqua, the Christian Endeavor will last only half an hour, and will be in the form of a leadership meeting. The regular evening service will be omitted because of the Chautauqua.

First Methodist Church, on South Main at Lane, W. S. Gordon, pastor. This will be Communion Sunday. The Sunday school will meet at 9:45. It is impossible for you to be there, please send a substitute, so that your chair may not be vacant. At 11 o'clock there will be a sermon by S. A. Sanford, D. D., district superintendent, after which the Lord's Supper will be administered. All Christians present are invited to participate with us, including the baptized children. Parents are especially requested to bring them, as we are exhorted to "Train up a child in the way he should go." No evening service on account of Chautauqua. The Junior league will meet at 3 p. m., and the pastor will give a ten-minute talk on "A Boy Wanted." Boys, there's your chance! Mrs. Ruth Cov-

Citizens' Training Camps Benefic

Lieutenant J. F. Powell, of the U. S. Air service, is at the Hotel Umpqua for several days and is canvassing this section in behalf of the citizens' training camp at Camp Lewis July 27 to August 25. He will be pleased to meet anyone interested in this camp, and furnish them with the desired information.

"Extensive rather than intensive training," is the word that has gone out from the headquarters of the 96th division, in the new postoffice building at Portland, as the program for the citizens' military training camp to be held at Camp Lewis from July 27 to August 25. Colonel P. Whitworth, chief of staff of the 96th division, will command the summer training camp, and is authority for the work to be carried on there this summer.

Instead of the rigorous methods of the war period, according to the colonel, the summer training camp will have rather the aspect of a vacation outing, and every effort will be made to see that the young men attending the camp leave it with a desire to return again next year. The day in camp, he says, will start with breakfast at 7 o'clock instead of drill at 5:30 and will end with retreat at 4 p. m. instead of a practice raid on the trenches under cover of darkness.

"We are not in such a hurry now as we were in 1918," he said yesterday. "Then the idea was to make a civilian into an infantryman in six weeks. The object of the summer camp is rather to teach the young man as much as possible about all branches of the army service and to make the instruction so interesting and the outing so enjoyable that he will come back for more."

Recreational features planned for the summer camp include evening swimming, boating, picnic and dancing parties and more extensive weekend trips to good camp sites in the vicinity of American lake. From noon Saturday until breakfast time Monday morning, all training will be abandoned, and the young men will be free to go wherever they wish, visiting the neighboring cities of Tacoma, Seattle or Olympia, or taking life easy in camp, if they prefer. For the special benefit of those who come to camp without spending money the week-end excursions are planned, and every outing necessary, even to fishing tackle, will be provided. Trucks will carry the excursionists to and from the camping spots, and cooks and rolling kitchens will accompany them.

Of particular appeal to the young man with an army appetite is the fact that the food appropriation for the summer camp is 75 cents a day for each man, instead of the 30 cents a day allowed by the regular army. Competent cooks, in place of the can-openers of the war-time army, will prepare all food.

The program of training provided in the curriculum of the camp includes a minimum of drill, enough exercises and athletics to keep the students in top-notch condition, and complete instruction in the mechanism and actual use of the rifle, automatic pistol, machine-gun and bayonet, with special emphasis given to competition on the rifle range.

Competent life-guards will be in attendance at all swimming parties and expert riflemen are officers who will supervise all instruction in the use of arms, so that every precaution will be taken to prevent accidents.

In outlining the work of the summer camp, Colonel Whitworth is emphatic in the statement that absolutely no obligation for further service is incurred by the attendants at the camp, though after completing the three courses of instruction given there, a graduate is qualified to become an officer in the organized reserves of the country, if he so desires.

The state of Oregon, as a whole, is within 114 of reaching its quota of 390 students at the camp, according to reports received in division headquarters, though Multnomah county has supplied only 28 applications out of an allotment of 140. All but two of the applications to date from Multnomah county have come from the city of Portland.

All expenses of the summer camp, including transportation from the applicant's place of residence to Camp Lewis, and his return home, are borne by the government.

ert and Mrs. Estella Knuts will have charge of the music during the summer. They are planning to have at least one special number each service. This church will join in a union service each Sunday evening during July.

First Church of Christ Scientist, 327 S. Jackson street. Services are held Sunday morning at 11 o'clock and Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock. This meeting includes testimonies of healing. Sunday school convenes each Sunday morning at 9:45; all up to the age of 20 years are invited to attend. The reading room in the rear of the church building is open daily, except holidays and Sundays, from 2 to 4 p. m. The public is cordially invited to attend these services and visit the reading room. "Christian Science" will be the subject of Sunday's sermon.

Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. Sunday services, Macabee hall. Sunday school, 10 a. m. Preaching services at 11:30 a. m. Elder O. P. Wright, Elder R. Overton.

ANTS OVERRUN LOVELY ISLE

Peas From Argentina Have Completely Wiped Out Bird Life in Madeira—Spread Plant Disease.

L. R. Lefroy, lecturing at the British Royal Institute the other day, mentioned that the Argentine ant has spread over half the world since 1897. He gave an example of the mischief wrought by the ant in the fact that it has completely wiped out the birds of Madeira by eating their nestlings.

Only those who have lived in a country overrun by ants know the full horror of it.

The housekeeper must reckon, as a necessity of annual expenditure, carbolic acid, petroleum and other protectives against the all-pervading insects.

Every table, every bed, must stand with its legs in little tins of petroleum, or the ants will swarm up.

Mothers anxiously visit the cradles of their babies to see that no bed-clothes are touching the floor, or a black string of ants will be seen hurrying up the "bridge" at once.

You can never leave any article of food unprotected anywhere in Madeira, or it would be swarming with ants in a few minutes.

The ants have not only introduced into Madeira the greenfly, which all the world knows they "milk" like cows, but they have also brought with them the horrible plant diseases of scale and black rust.

These have killed off many orange and coffee trees, and the pomogranate has completely disappeared from the island.

But even this devastating insect has one good quality. The ant is an excellent scavenger.

NOT THE PHILOSOPHER'S IDEA

Small Girl Gave Peculiar Twist to Proverb That Some of Us May Remember.

A Philadelphia school teacher was quoting to her pupils the sayings of various wise men touching the value of silence on certain occasions, when she gave them the proverb to the effect that we have one mouth and two ears, in order that we may listen twice as much as we speak.

A day or so after the instruction, the teacher, to see how well the lesson had been learned, asked a girl pupil the question, as above.

Little Lulu had forgotten the philosopher's maxim; but the question did not seem a difficult one to answer.

"Because," she said, "we should not have room in our face for two mouths, and we should look too crooked if we had only one ear."

"No, Lulu," said the teacher, "that is not the reason. Perhaps Marie can tell us."

"Yesum," said Marie, "it's that way so we can let what we hear go in at one ear and out at the other!"—Philadelphia Ledger.

Great Britain Bars Feathers.

No more feathers can enter Great Britain now that the plumage prohibition bill is in force. Women who have feathers in their hats are the envy of their friends and ostrife feathers, bird of paradise plumes, and all kinds of fans will shortly be worth their weight in five-pound notes. African ostriches and eider ducks are the only exceptions to the law, as the plumage of both species can be obtained without cruelty while they are molting. The new law does not apply to passengers coming into the country with feathers as part of their personal apparel. Birds of paradise recently have been killed at the rate of 30,000 a year in full breeding plumage, and as many as 200,000 albatrosses were killed in one raid in the Pacific. Florida has been swept clean of egrets, whole colonies of these birds having been butchered at the breeding season to obtain the feathers sometimes known as "poopys."

Are the Pleiades Dimmer?

The question presents itself whether three stars of the constellation of the Pleiades have less brilliancy than formerly, or whether prehistoric man had a better sight than ours, or if he was wont to climb up the mountains to examine the nearest stars, or if the atmosphere of past ages was purer than ours?

This problem arises from the fact that we see from below only seven of the stars of the Pleiades and that the last three stars can only be seen by ascending to the highest summits, while there have just been discovered stones dating from prehistoric times upon which the ten stars are engraved.

This interesting question in astronomy and archeology has been broached to the French Academy of Sciences by M. Bigourdan.

Magician.

Kellar, magician, died at the age of seventy-three. In his prime he was the greatest sorcerer among the billion and a half people living on earth. From his life we learn this:

People who saw Kellar marveled at his magic. Yet they knew that "it's all a trick."

Only a few centuries ago—a short period in the history of man—magicians were taken seriously, looked on as supernatural.

Science and education rapidly are eliminating man's gullibility, the basis of many forms of slavery.

Secret of Eskimo Health.

The Eskimos are naturally one of the healthiest peoples in the world. The School of Hygiene of the Johns Hopkins university will send out an expedition to study dietetics and nutrition among the Eskimos.

Princess Marie Theresa Olivia of Pless, said to be the most beautiful princess, is a daughter of Mrs. Cornwallis-West, famous English hostess, and a sister of the duchess of Westminster.

Very Depths of Despair.

Stanley Coulter, dean of Purdue university, has found a new definition for the word "pessimist," which he gave to the Optimist club of Lafayette, Ind., at a club luncheon a few days ago.

Dean Coulter, who is chairman of the Near East relief organization of Tippecanoe county, made an appeal to the club for Armenian orphan aid, his talk supplementing a showing of the picture, "Alice in Wonderland."

The dean asserted that all optimists must come to the relief of distressed people of the world. "I know the optimists of this club," he said, "and I am sure there is not one of you like the man I recently heard about—a man who feels bad when he feels good for fear he will feel worse after he feels better. That, gentlemen, is the latest explanation of a real pessimist."

Youthful Diplomacy.

Grandma had made with loving care two charming frocks for her grandchild's fifth birthday, and while in the making she wondered which would appeal the more to the little lady's taste.

When the frocks were presented on the all-important day the child looked them over with delight, Grandma watched her expressions eagerly and said:

"Which little frock do you like the better, dear?" A puzzled frown, a brief second of hesitation, a flashing smile and:

"I like them both the best, grandma."—Chicago Journal.
