Love's Masquerade

A Dramatic Story of Love and Romance
By Idaho McPherson Gibson

DR. MILTON'S STORY

"I wonder if Margaret Earle knew any of the four women we have just been speaking about," asked Davis.

"She did not know the 'American Beauty' or Mrs. Milton," answered Clavering. "She knew Doris Glenden. You remember in her letter she spoke of Doris coming to her studio apartment. If I remember rightly, Harry told me that she was the only woman that Doris had never been really jealous of in any way."

"I think Doris only met the 'American Beauty' that afternoon at the tea, and I know that Mrs. Milton knew none of them."

"Sometimes I wonder, Jim, if most of us would not be very much surprised if we knew how much influence our acts, our speech or even our thoughts have upon those of whose very names we are ignorant."

With this sage comment, Davis left the room to visit Doris Glenden.

Clavering had hardly lighted another cigarette when a message came from Dr. Milton saying that he would like to see him as soon as he could make it convenient. Clavering started at once.

On arriving at the hospital he was ushered into Dr. Milton's room and was greeted by his friend with:

"You see, there is only a moment between life and death, Jim."

"Thank God, you have not reached it yet, Milt. You're alive. Tell me all about it."

"Well," said Dr. Milton, "there is a lot to tell. After I rushed out of the club I was lucky enough to get a taxi immediately. When I got to the hospital I was told that it was impossible to remove any more of the patients in the right wing of the building."

"I knew my wife was among them. 'Jim, that last speech I made to you and Dave rang in my ears. You'll remember that I said: 'If I were free I'd go to Margaret Earle immediately.' Because I had thought this and said it I knew that I would be a murderer in my own mind if I did not try to rescue my poor wife from a horrible death."

"I determined to make the effort—desperate as it was—even if I had to die with her. Without further reflection I made a break for the right wing."

"Here! Are you mad?" demanded the police guard. "Don't you know you can't go in there? The place is doomed. Nothing can be done."

"I pushed him aside, and he almost knocked me down trying to bar my way. Meantime, Jim—I confess it—I was thinking, 'I am free, I am free! At last Fate has not me free!'"

"Thank God, Jim, my mind returned to decency a moment after, and with strength I never knew I had I thrust aside the guards who were trying to restrain me, and rushed into the burning building."

"I'll never be able to tell even myself why I did not succumb to my cowardly fears and stay out of that burning building. Just what it was burning building—that urged me on, I do not know, but it was something which ruled my inclination."

"Jim, I am lying here today paraphrasing to myself old John Bunton. 'But for the grace of God, George Milton, you would be walking the streets today, self-branded as a coward and a murderer by an act of omission.'"

"You could never be that, Milt," replied Clavering, clasping the hands of his friend. "The years of quick decision and the many calls upon your courage which you have answered so splendidly in your surgical work, made it impossible for you to do differently than you have done. I only wish I was sure that I would have responded as well."

Milton held up his hand for Clavering to desist.

"God is good," he said. "You see my hands have not been hurt at all. I can still save lives and relieve pain."

He paused a moment—then continued.

"I do not know how I reached the room Mary was in. Or why, by some queer circumstance, it was comparatively free from smoke."

"The fire was already raging overhead and beginning to break through the ceiling. As is often the case, fear had taken out the twist in my wife's poor brain, and a lucid moment had come to her."

"Jim, I held out my arms. I seemed to have gone back years. It was my early love coming to me. And, Jim, she looked at that moment as she did when I fell in love with her."

"Come quickly, Mary," I urged, starting toward the corner of the room where she was hovering. "Go room where she was cowering."

"You never failed me, did you, George?" she whispered, turning toward me with a smile. And then something snapped again in her poor brain and she cried in terror, "Go away!—Go away! I will not let you take me. I want my husband. I want George. He would not let me born up, and she ran screaming into the corridor."

"The roof fell and I knew no more until I woke up in this bed. They tell me she is dead. Thank God I tried to save her. Thank God it was the fallen walls that killed her quickly and spared her the torture of burning flame."

Tomorrow—Problem in Conduct.

Burglars Enter Sutherland Garage

SUTHERLIN, June 27.—Burglars, presumably traveling by automobile, visited Sutherland at an early hour Sunday morning and entered the garage of Robert L. Houser, A. E. Davidson, Allen Brothers, and the office of the Sutherland Fruit Growers' association. Five gallons of gasoline were taken from the Davidson garage, and a number of articles from the other places. The depot and postoffice at Wilbur was entered the same night.

The large building which has occupied a site on the south side of Sutherland creek for several years, has been donated to the local community club by the Ralston, Guthrie company, and is being moved to lots at the corner of Central avenue and Union street, where it will be remodeled and put in shape for use as a community building.

A. H. Davidson and Kenneth Lake have been appointed agents for Douglas county for the new Durant car. They will have showrooms in Roseburg about July 15. In the meantime these cars may be seen at the Liberty garage in Sutherland, and one of them will be in the big parade to be staged here July 4. Davidson & Lake have disposed of the Liberty garage here to Lottis & Smith, of Bridal Veil, who will take possession July 15. Mr. Lottis owns a loganberry tract here as well as a residence property on Fourth avenue. Mr. Smith, his partner, has also purchased residence property here.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Slater are the proud parents of an 8-pound boy, born recently. Grandma and Grandpa Slater are also much pleased over the arrival of the little boy.

A. L. Oulinger is erecting a modern bungalow home on his recently purchased lot on Union street.

The outlook for a large crop of grapes, pears and apples, in this valley never looked better than at present.

WINCHESTER BUZZES

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Wilkins and W. W. Wilkins left for Metrol on Thursday afternoon, where they will spend a few days visiting their sister, Mrs. C. Conner.

Mrs. Clyde Byrd, Mrs. D. E. Woody and son, Ray, returned to Wilbur Thursday evening on business.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Cammille, of Portland, arrived in Winchester on Thursday afternoon, where they will spend a few days visiting Mr. Cammille's mother, Mrs. H. E. Cammille. The trip was made by automobile.

Bolmer and Mabel Morgan, who have been visiting their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. George Beckett, for the last few days, have returned to their home in Roseburg.

L. G. Foster and Mrs. Wayne Gilman spent a few hours in Roseburg.

Annual Stockholders' Meeting

The annual stockholders' meeting of the Umpqua Savings and Loan Association will be held at the office of the Douglas Abstract company, 248 North Jackson Street, Roseburg, Oregon, at 7:30 p. m., Wednesday, June 28th, 1922, for the purpose of electing directors for the ensuing year and for such other business as may regularly come before the meeting.

H. O. FARGETER, Secretary.

GOOD BALL GAME COMING.

The Baptist team, which is leading the Twilight league, will meet the League team at Bellows field on Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock. The Baptist team has played nine games this year, winning six, losing two and tying one. The city team is quite strong and in defeating Harbison on Sunday shows that it is one of the best teams in the bush league of the state. Baseball fans will be assured of a good game on Wednesday evening and a good attendance may be expected.

THE BAKING POWDER QUESTION SOLVED

Most housewives proclaim that the baking powder question was solved for them the moment they used the first spoonful of Calumet. After that no doubt remained—no hoping—no searching for a perfect leavener—no wondering if bakings would "turn out all right."

GALUMET BAKING POWDER

has solved the question because in all these thirty years it has never failed to produce wholesome and appetizing foods at an economical cost. It is as pure and sure as any baking powder ever made.

Calumet is more economical than other brands selling for less because its quality is the highest—no losses from spoiled bakings.

Use Calumet once—that's enough to prove to you that it's "best by test."

A pound can of Calumet contains full 16 oz. Some baking powders come in 12 oz. cans instead of 16 oz. cans. Be sure you get a pound when you want it.
