GOOD PROGRAM AT CHAUTAUQUA

Electra Platt and Vernon Stone Proved to be Very Interesting Entertainers

LECTURE EXCELLENT

Pica is Made by Speaker for American People to Take Active Part in Politics in Order to Clean Corruption Out of Politics.

Yesterday's chautauqua program was very pleasing and was well received by the large crowd which was in attendance. Electra Platt and Vernon Stone proved to be entertainers of real merit and the audience was kept in a good humor during the entire day by their clever and unique act. Miss Platt, as she chooses to call herself, although she willingly admitted that her real name is Mrs. Stone, is an entertainer of real ability. Her clever monologue was full of wit and the audience was kept roaring with laughter. Mr. Stone proved to be exceptionally good with stringed instruments. A one-stringed "fiddle" of his own invention proved to be very fine particularly on oriental music.

The lecture by Dr. Elmer Lynn Williams, Chicago's fighting parson, was very good. Mr. Williams made a plea for American people to take an interest in politics and to clean up local and national politics by putting clean men into office. No condition is so bad but that it can be improved, he said, if the people of the community only get behind the reform movement. Today's program is given by the Gilvan Opera company. A prelude was given this afternoon, following which the Junior Chautauqua program, with a festival and pageant was held. This evening the Gilvan Opera company will give the entire program consisting of selections from light operas. Each member of the company is said to be an artist and the program will be well worth hearing.

A strong effort is being made to obtain a sufficient number of tickets signed up at the present time to assure Chautauqua for the coming year. A large number of cards were signed last night by persons pledging themselves to take a given number of tickets. As soon as enough are pledged to cover the amount of the guarantee there will be little difficulty in signing up the contract. People interested in Chautauqua are asked to pledge themselves for tickets now so that there may be no loss of time in drawing up the contract.

baked in the oven of the range, and they are so unusual on the camping trip that the tourists lose little time in parking their feet under a table loaded with these dainties.

Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Collins are on their way home to San Pedro, California. They have been traveling for three months, and have visited a number of points in Alaska. Mr. Collins carries a complete radio set in his car, and has it so arranged that he can string his aerial wire in to the top of a tree and run the other end to his set. He says that he has had some excellent results and has been experimenting a good deal. He has found that wind velocity has an important bearing on radio as well as the quality of the ground. The presence of mineral in the soil makes receiving difficult in many cases. He believes that Roseburg is one of the best places for radio that he has found. This is his second trip into the city.

Among other visitors were A. G. Teepe and wife, Portland; F. C. Hayward and wife, Canada; R. H. Lockwood and wife, Ashland; S. H. Bacon and wife, Los Angeles; W. A. Sanford and wife, Seattle; L. H. Record Number of Dodges Delivered Encouragement offered for Quicker Deliveries—35 Cars Sold—16 Deliveries.

Probably the largest number of automobiles ever to be delivered in the owners' possession at one time in Roseburg was today when J. O. Newland & Son turned six Dodge Brothers touring cars and one roadster over to their owners. This is a fair example of the public's confidence in Dodge Brothers product and J. O. Newland & Son's integrity.

Mr. Fred Winston and Mr. J. D. Reese took possession of their cars and the carload received Wednesday was placed in the hands of Mr. H. A. West, Mr. Will Pickens, Mr. W. H. Brown, Mr. Basil Riggs and Mr. W. A. McCord of Oakland. These deliveries reduced the twenty-seven standing orders for cars to nineteen which makes earlier deliveries more promising as a carload was shipped on the 29th of June and another is promised early this month. All the proud purchasers have been driving their cars around the city much of the day and the appearance of so many new cars at the same time attracted quite a bit of notice to the conservative change in body design. The change, while it does not affect the up-to-date standard of the older design, again adds a few more improvements that make Dodge Brothers cars desirable at all times.

Every Dodge Brothers dealer was requested to explain to his customers that the demand for Dodge Brothers cars is most insistent of their experience and although the production is the greatest ever it still falls far short of meeting the demand. The factory is operating at capacity and orders are pouring in day by day with greater urgency than ever before. Such pressure for cars is not unnatural as any automobile of unusual value which buyers really want must necessarily be oversold at this time of year. Dodge Brothers urge that the public be informed of this condition, as it is impossible to serve all customers immediately but with the increased production the time which they must wait for delivery is continually being reduced. The immediate moment is of little consequence when figured over the long life of the car.

J. O. Newland & Son say that the June automobile sales of 35 Dodge Brothers motor cars (including orders), besides second hand car sales, has far exceeded the sales of any other month in their seven year's dealing in motor vehicles. This record was made in spite of the fact that the local firm does not employ a single salesman nor offer commissions on sales. A record of this sort is absolutely convincing evidence that Dodge Brothers product has established an enviable reputation for dependability and when the public comes to a place of business with very little solicitation and places orders for this automobile it shows that the car is exactly what they want. It is a great encouragement for honest endeavor.

VISITORS AT THE AUTO CAMP GROUNDS

Short Stories of the Strangers Who Stop in Their Journey Along the Highway.

Pies and cakes and hot biscuits are not often experienced by the average auto tourist while on his trip. Such products of the culinary art are usually not obtainable over the camp fire. That, perhaps, is one reason why the Roseburg camp grounds have become so popular. A large kitchen range is being used to heat water for the shower baths. It is located in the open in the rear of the community house and is in use practically all day long. Savory apple pies, delicious cakes, hot biscuits, cookies and many other like preparations come forth skillfully Log house built by William H. Riddle in 1852, early pioneer, on what is now Glenbrook Farms.

RIDDLE

Among the many picturesque towns in Douglas county is that of Riddle, named in honor of that early settler, William H. Riddle who, with family, settled in the valley in 1851. This thriving town is the center of a rich agricultural fruit raising section, and while large in area, is a veritable garden dotted with magnificent orchards and comfortable homes. Stock raising, once a leading industry in the valley, has given way to the fruit business, although considerable stock is shipped annually from the valley. It is mostly driven in from Oregon to the east and west of the valley, where the orchardist has attempted to gain a foothold. The population of Riddle is approximately 500, and the town supports a public school system, carries on the high school grades; also the church organizations are represented, a new house of worship is now being under course of erection by the Baptist people. Fraternities and organizations are well represented.

half-dozen years ago when it was torn down by the Glenbrook owners to make room for modern improvements.

Business Enterprises. That Riddle is progressive is evidenced by the fact that the people support a creditable newspaper, the Enterprise, C. P. Cloud, editor. The plant boasts of a linotype and a power press, and the plant is equipped for doing commercial printing. A strong bank serves the public, and D. S. Beals, cashier, is identified with all projects for advancing the commercial interests of the town. Among other business concerns of Riddle are Logadon Brothers, general merchandise; G. E. Aitkin, lumber and shingles; a first-class hotel, Dave Crosby, proprietor; a good meat market, R. F. Nichols, owner; Paul Geary, general merchandise; a hardware store, a drug store, a confectionery, ice cream parlors, a moving picture theater, and two garages.

Broccoli Industry. Many of the farmers adjacent to Riddle have gone into broccoli growing, and this season shipped eight carloads to eastern markets. The conditions are so favorable to growing of this crop that this season a much greater acreage is being planted, and it is believed that the industry will take an important place in the products grown in the valley. It is estimated that 40 or 50 cars will be shipped from Riddle this coming year.

Mining. Ever since the first gold was taken from gravel bars of southern Oregon, mining has proven a lure to many in the county, and the sand bars of Cow creek and tributary streams have been worked for "color" by the optimistic placer miner. Much fine gold has been taken out, but miners have all along contended that the source of these gold deposits must be in the hills and mountains from whence these streams have their source. Clinging to this theory, prospectors have searched the slopes for the mineral ledges believed to exist, and several claims have been staked out and more or less development work done on them. Among the men whose optimism has led them to spend a lot of time and money in the search for these "hidden treasures" is Frank Cain, former county surveyor of Douglas county. Mr. Cain has lived at Riddle many years, and has brought his engineering experience into service in seeking quartz ledges. That he has been successful is believed by his many friends familiar with his achievements, and by mining men of Portland. Mr. Cain and associates, working under the incorporated name of Oregon Exploration company, located the Silver Peak mine on the mountain side almost eight miles due south of Riddle. The exact spot of the claim can almost be located by one standing in the streets of Riddle, and the property is reached by a good road that has just been completed under the supervision of Mr. Cain. The company has done a lot of development work in the last two years, and now has nearly a car of ore on the dump which they expect to ship to a smelter during the month of July. This ore carries copper, silver and gold, and the ledge is 35 feet wide. The company is not saying anything about the assays, but are hammering away, getting ready to ship, and allege that the returns on the initial shipment will tell the story. In part, a 200-foot tunnel has been run, and a shaft has been driven 200 feet on cross-cuts. Ore shows fine in hanging and foot walls, and the deeper they go, the better the indications are. The company has built a substantial working plant, and is busy just now installing an air compressor, Diesel engine and machine drill. The camp has fine water and electric lights, and with the road ready for hauling, the company, of which Mr. Cain is treasurer, expects to become a regular shipper before the year ends. Mr. Cain maintains the ore is in sight, and that the mine will put Riddle on the map as a producing section. In addition to this project, other prospects are being developed in that locality, besides considerable placer gold is annually found in the gravel along the creeks, and a large proportion of this is shipped to the mint through the Riddle bank.

Fine Climate. The valley is noted for its genial climate, and its sheltered position protects it from the cold storms that sometimes prevail even in this far western region, and it has long been the boast of Riddle that its people pick the first strawberries annually in the state. B. E. Hemple, besides a short distance east of town, has the distinction of shipping the first berries to the Portland market. Cherries in this valley also ripen ten days earlier than in most localities in Douglas county. Cow creek, a turbulent mountain stream, which rises in the Cascades to the southeast, skirts the valley and later finds its way into the South Umpqua river a short distance from the mouth of the creek. It is a good sawmill with a capacity of 25,000 feet daily. Logs brought down the creek and held "boomer" until needed, and this industry supplies much of the lumber used by the town and farmers in the community, and close proximity to transportation permits shipment of its product in competition with the larger companies at other points in the state.

Magnificent Orchards. Riddle valley are to be found the finest prune orchards in the county, and crop failure is born in that section. Orchards have been known to bear annually without a lapse for more than twenty years, and here, like in all other places where prune growing has consistently followed, the men who have followed the men who made well-to-do by this fruit. Glenbrook farms, one of the big ranches of Douglas county, is just south of town and within its boundaries is the original orchard of the first pioneer there, William H. Riddle. The first house in the valley was erected by Riddle in 1852. It was of logs and stood there until a
