

For comfort and cleanliness
burn PEARL OIL

Instead of "feeding" a range in a not, stuffy kitchen this summer, you can save yourself a lot of trouble and work by cooking with a good oil cookstove.

No coal or wood to lug, no ashes to shovel out. A cool, clean kitchen with a steady, controlled heat concentrated directly on the utensil.

For best results be sure to use Pearl Oil—the clean, economical kerosene that is refined and re-refined by a special process.

For sale by dealers everywhere. Ask for it by name—Pearl Oil.

Love's Masquerade

A Dramatic Story of Love and Romance
By Leah McGlone Gibson

MARGARET'S PLANS

"I believe, John," said Clavering, "that Margaret's feeling for Margaret Earle is greater than the usual emotion that men call love. His devotion is composed of pity, regard and respect, friendship and a very little passion."

"He pities her when he thinks of her splendid attainments and knows that she is throwing herself away on a man like Harry Glendening. He has a wholesome respect, however, for her courage in acknowledging that love, as well as in denying it when she found that he did not love her as she did him."

"His regard and friendship for her come from his admiration of her intellect and their community of tastes. I do hope that neither of them let any foolish memories of what has gone before prevent them from being happy in the future. It will be a tragedy if Margaret comes home with Glendening still in her heart."

"But you never can tell just what two people will do. In fact, you never can tell just what one person will do under any circumstances."

"That's what makes life interesting, Jim," remarked Davis. "That is why we all hate to leave it—we're always looking to see what will happen next."

"A great mistake was made in describing the orthodox heaven as a place where everything was decided—where every doubt and fear was obliterated and where everyone knew just what everything would be throughout all eternity."

"Yes, it is rather a stupendous thought, and rather terrifying too," answered Clavering rising. "I'm going to turn in, John. I feel as though I had not slept for a week."

"A good idea," smiled Davis. "What the morrow bringeth no man knoweth."

Davis sat for some time after Clavering left, trying to work out a solution to the drama that had been played almost to the final curtain.

during the last few days. At last with a gesture which showed that he did not know how it was all going to end, he rose and went toward the door to a knock. A messenger boy was waiting with a cablegram.

Hastily tearing it open, he read: "Clavering's cable received. Am sailing tomorrow on Aquitania. I, Dr. Milton does not improve, advise me by wireless."

"MARGARET EARLE." As though the message answered one of his questions, Davis put the message into his pocket with a sigh of relief and went up to bed.

He had the morning papers brought to him early but there seemed to be nothing particularly new in them. Adams had been held for murder in the first degree and the date for the trial had been set for a month hence to allow time for the recovering of Glendening whose testimony was needed.

The notice of the funeral of Mrs. Milton was printed conspicuously, saying that the obsequies were private.

There was a notice to the effect that Harry Glendening had changed for the better, and that his wife who had withdrawn her petition for divorce, would probably visit him in the afternoon.

There was also a long account of the burial of Claire Adams and a description of the demeanor of her husband at the grave.

One reporter had made quite a pitiful story out of it. He was evidently a chap with much imagination, sympathy and understanding, and he drew his picture with sure and clever strokes. Davis found tears in his eyes when he reached the end and read:

"I think in the lives of most women and men That all would go smooth and even; If only the dead would just know when To come back and be forgiven."

Tomorrow—Glendening's changes.

DUMBBELL MUSTACHE IS CAUSE OF DIVORCE

(International News Service.) DETROIT, July 11.—Mrs. Lillian ("Peggy") Watson is not yet 25 years old, but she is through with men and marriage for all time.

Mrs. Watson is suing Charles E. Watson for divorce. She has been awarded $10 a week alimony pending disposition of the divorce action. She was asked if she fancied there was any possibility of a reconciliation.

"I'm afraid not. Every time we quarrelled he would grow a mustache. He knew I despised these little mustaches and that was his method of spitting me. As soon as we made up he would shave the thing off. But directly I saw it sprouting I knew we were in for another spat."

"Sometimes I feel there should be a reconciliation. You see, Charles is no older than I. He needs someone to care for him. But then I think of that mustache and I couldn't go through life with a mustache, so I guess I am through with men."

BOOZE PRICES RISE AS VISITORS FLOOD FRANCE

(International News Service.) PARIS, July 11.—Influx of visiting foreigners from a parched land has unduly raised the price of French wines and liquors.

This is implied in a protest made by a congress of hotel keepers meeting at Bourges against the wholesale prices set by wine merchants. "They are going to kill the goose that lays the golden eggs," the author of the protest declared.

The hotel keepers also protested vigorously against the "taxe de séjour" at summer and winter resorts and touring centers. According to a letter received from the hotel keepers of Chamoux, the tax is characterized as "unbearable" and "paralyzing the efforts of hotel keepers to attract business."

SMALL CRAFT CARRIES BOOZE CARGO TO CUBA

(International News Service.) DETROIT, Mich., July 11.—Sailing vessels with only one equipment are now traversing the Detroit river. A small punt, less than seven feet in length, loaded with whisky, was seized by a United States patrol boat in the river.

Officers of the patrol boat and government agents hurried to the punt with the expectation of seizing the liquor, but it was not to be.

"What have you there?" they asked the small man who was sculling the boat.

"Whisky," he replied. "Where is it bound for?" he was asked.

"To Cuba," he responded, and to prove his statement he produced the clearance papers from Canada. He was allowed to proceed.

For service as railroad machinists, boilermakers, blacksmiths, electricians, sheet metal workers, pipe fitters, coppermiths, tinners, car inspectors, car repairers, helpers—all classes under strike conditions best explained by Chairman Ben W. Hooper of the United States Railroad Board, in his statement of July 1st reading as follows: "In this case the conflict is not between the employer and the oppressed employees. The people of this country, through an act of congress, signed by President Wilson, established a tribunal to decide such disputes over wages and working conditions which are submitted to it in a proper manner. It is the decision of this tribunal against which the shop crafts are striking. Regardless of any question of the right of the men to strike the men who take the strikers places are merely accepting the wages and working conditions prescribed by a government tribunal and are performing a public service. They are not accepting the wages and working conditions which an employer is trying to impose. For this reason, public sentiment and full government power will protect the men who remain in their position and new men who may come in."
