NOTICE TO PRUNE GROWERS. Meeting at 2 o'clock at city hall, Saturday, August 12, to establish harvesting wages. COMMITTEE.

HIKING DOWN THE LONG BROWN PATH

Vacationists With Shelter Tents and Tin Cow Learning to Walk All Over Again.

Oh! It's not the pack that you carry on your back. Nor the rifle on your shoulder. Nor the five inch crust of khaki-colored dust. That makes you feel your limbs are growing older. And it's not the hike on the hard turepike that drives away your smile. Nor the socks of sisters that raise the blooming blisters. It's the long long mile. —Plattsburgh Marching Song.

Stringing out from the suburban transit terminals of New York every Sunday and holiday goes the army of khaki-clad hikers. There may be an automobile for every twenty of the country's population, but a host of city folks disprove the theory of a future leg-enfeebled citizenry and are learning to walk all over again.

To the more casual minded, the hike is just exercise, but to those who catch its real significance the hike means a great deal more. It is the cheapest form of recreation and therefore appeals to those living in crowded districts and unable to avail themselves of the more expensive amusements. And these people, be it noted, are just those the country is so anxious to have spread out and settled in the farming sections. The hike, indeed, has possibilities as a real starter for the "back to the farm" movement.

Doughboy and Boy Scout Lead Way

Just a brief survey of the rollicking groups which move off from the outlying terminals on holidays establishes a few general types. There is the ex-service man and his friends who will hear from him the story of more serious excursions on the muddy roads of France. He tightens a strap here and another there on the blanket roll adjustment or the "shelter half," in which the commissary is packed for the mid-day feast by the roadside. Expert directions come from him on the method of slinging the pack so it will not feel so heavy or interfere with the free body movement. He will pass along the information gained in his army days, of how that same pack was evolved after numerous experiments to find the easiest way of carrying the heaviest load. With results he now compliments, but which he characterized when a doughboy as a "blankety-blank total failure."

Then there are the boy scout parties, adept at everything pertaining to "shanks mare" traveling and woodcraft. The ex-service man and the boy scout are pioneers in the hiking game. Listen to one of them right off the train and making ready for a twelve mile jaunt: "Get that canteen over to the side, Jimmie, and it won't keep bouncing off your leg every step. Is it filled? Well, then, we drink. How about the eat? Let's check 'em off. You got the spuds, Bill; the bacon Jimmie. Who has the coffee and the Borden tin cow?" "Right here," announces a freckled comrade of the road, patting his knapsack. "Switched the mocha and the can of milk when Sis wasn't looking."

"Well, then, let's go!" snaps the commander of the expedition. This party is traveling light for real distance. Another must expect to make a shorter hitch or else he counting greatly on its power of endurance. Perhaps the camp is not far off because the group is equipped for an over-night stay with heavy blanket rolls, rubber ponchos, kettles, pots, new fangled firestand, etc., etc. The blankets are laid out for a better packing of the bags and cans of food. When the party commences to load up the members bristle all over with camp tools and equipment.

Back to the Farm

The veteran from the crowded city tenement has found a new territory to roam and one almost unknown to his associates. He is introducing them to this newly discovered land and teaching them how to be independent of any transportation but their own good legs and of any subsistence but what they can carry and prepare. "Walk, and cook your own," is his motto.

Who will say the leaven thus fermenting in the city crowds will not bear fruit in a keener appreciation of country delights, especially as these are added to by increased comforts on the farm. With his radio hitched on the farm, the farmer listens in on the best entertainment the country has to offer. Modern home devices wipe out many hardships formerly imposed upon isolated dwellers. There is, in short, a rapid cutting down of the differential between farm and city life.

In the meantime, knowledge must precede a true appreciation of what the country holds, and this is what the hike supplies. There is more appeal in one apple tree in blossom than in reams of printed matter put out to induce the citizen of the city to change his abode to the country. The hikers constitute a growing army, equipped with bacon, spuds, coffee and tin cow for merely a day's outing but nevertheless seeing sights that make them yearn to be among them all the time. It is not too much to assume that the army may one day recruit the open places.

$200,000 In Stock Is Purchased By Copco Employees

MEDFORD, Aug. 8.—On May 26, 1922, the Railroad commission gave the California-Oregon Power company authority to issue 2,000 shares of its preferred capital stock, par value, $200,000 to be sold at not less than $50 a share.

This stock bears a dividend rate of 7 percent on its par value of $100 a share, so that the person purchasing the same at a price of $50, receives a return of approximately 7 1/2 percent.

It was decided by the company officials to give the members of the Copco organization the first opportunity to buy this stock, and fifty days, ending August 10, was set aside during which time the organization would have the exclusive privilege of making purchases.

The company has now announced that this stock has all been taken by the members of the organization. It is understood to be the policy of the company to make its employees and later its consumers, partners in the enterprise, and it is felt that the prompt response of the employees to this opportunity to purchase stock creates a decided feeling of confidence on the part of the organization.

Practically 100 percent of the Copco personnel have become stockholders.

KANSAS ENDOWED WITH LONGEST LIFE

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 8.—Kansas is a good state in which to be born, for those entering life under the shade of the sunflower live longer than those born in other states.

This may be contested by the other 47 states of the union, but the department of commerce today submitted figures based on the 1920 census, which were regarded by officials as a certain knockout to the claims of any other than Kansas.

The abridged life tables as worked out by the department experts show that the expectation of life at birth in Kansas is 59.73 years for white males and 60.89 for white females.

Others favored in the matter of longevity are given in the tables in the following order: Minnesota, Tennessee, Oregon, Washington, Kentucky, North Carolina, Indiana, Virginia, and Missouri.

O. H. Barnhill, of Eugene, is in Roseburg for a few days representing the Anderson Draft Regulation company, of which Senator B. L. Edly is president. The device which the company is introducing, was invented to save values at a quick-kiln smelter near Yoncalla, but effecting such a great matter in that it was adapted to burning a dozen large buildings a day and Albany, are using the device, which owners claim will save a third of the fuel and save thousands of dollars.

LONG FLIGHT PLANNED

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Aug. 8.—A soft special in the land of Palms here, brought Lieutenant J. L. Little's attempt to hop to Los Angeles, with a single fuel tank at San Antonio, to end last night within 500 miles of the start of the 2,000-mile trip. The specially-equipped plane did not get into the air at all. He reversed his course along the beach and got away, nose-dived into a ditch, stopped with a wing and propeller wrecked.

The army flier was uninjured, but badly damaged the plane, which had not been determined.
