AMERICA RANKS FIRST IN COMMISSION OF CRIMES, ENFORCEMENT COMMITTEE REPORTS TO LAWYER'S CONVENTION

FRANCISCO, Aug. 11. (Associated Press.)—Declaring that the "crime" is not a useful purpose in community today," the committee on law enforcement included in its report to the American Bar Association one of the most comprehensive studies of the crime situation in the United States. The report, which was made public by Judge William B. Swann, of Chicago, and Charles W. Smith, of St. Paul, declared that more than 50 percent of the crimes in this country are committed by the use of pistols. It also declared that the crime situation in the United States is the worst of any other civilized country. "Here there is less crime," the report said, "than in any other country. From all available sources of information we estimate that there were more than 9,500 homicides last year in this country, and that in 1920 there occurred not less than 9,000 such homicides, and that in no year during the ten years did the number fall below 8,000. In other words, during the ten years no less than 85,000 of our citizens have perished by poison, by the pistol or the knife, or by some other unlawful and deadly instrument. "Burglaries have increased in this country during the last ten years, 1200 percent. "Deliberate murder, burglary and robbery will seldom be attempted unless the criminal is armed. In European countries the criminals as a rule are not armed. "On the other hand, in crimes which indicate the dishonesty of the people, such as larceny, extortion, counterfeiting, forgery, fraud and other crimes of swindling, a comparison of conditions demonstrates that the morals of this country are better than in any of the other large countries of the world. "It is our united opinion that the means provided in the United States for coping with crimes and criminals are today neither adequate nor efficient, for example: "First, we find that the parole and probation laws, as administered, very generally fail to accomplish the purposes for which the laws were designed, and weaken the administration of criminal justice. We recommend that the first offenders only should be eligible for probation. We recommend that the indeterminate sentence laws should be modified so as to apply to first offenders only, and we believe, too, that neither probation nor parole should be permitted those convicted of homicide, burglary, rape, or highway robbery. "Second, we find that more than 90 percent of the murders in this country are committed by the use of pistols. "Third, we find the causes for delay in criminal cases so varied, and the conditions so differing that we hesitate to make specific recommendations. Dilatory motions and many other causes for delay, all accrue to the benefit of the law-breaker. "We recommend that every state be given every right to appeal now enjoyed by a defendant—except from a verdict of not guilty and we recommend that the prosecutor in a criminal trial shall have the right to call the attention of the jury to the fact that the defendant has failed himself to contradict or deny testimony offered by the prosecution. "We recommend that the state be given the right to amend the indictment upon proper terms, in matters of form. "We recommend that there should be but one appeal from a judgment of conviction in the trial court. "We recommend that the time during which judges or courts hold under advisement dilatory motions made in criminal trials; that at the expiration of such time, without action, such a motion shall be deemed to be denied. "Fourth, we find that in some of the states the jury is the final judge both of the law and the facts. We believe that such a condition is absolutely subversive of a government of law, and we recommend the repeal of such statutes. "Fifth, we find in various jurisdictions glaring abuses in the matter of bail, both in the amounts imposed and in the sufficiency or security offered. "Sixth, we find that further legislation should be enacted by congress to punish and prevent lynching and mob violence. "Seventh, we find that more stringent laws limiting and controlling immigration should be enacted and enforced. "Eighth, we find that the bill now pending in the congress, increasing the number of United States district judges and conferring powers upon the chief justice and senior circuit judges to have supervision over the work of the courts and see that the dockets are kept clear, should be enacted. "Ninth, no meritorious case, whether civil or criminal, that is cogni-able in the courts of the country, ought to be denied the service of an able, courageous and loyal advocate. And no man or woman, however humble, ought to be able to say in any American community, that justice is too expensive for the poor. We therefore urge that in every community the members of this association volunteer to aid, without fee, the worthy poor who are being oppressed, defrauded or otherwise wronged, and who have not the means to employ counsel. Tenth, first offenders must be segregated from veteran criminals, for the jails throughout the land today are breeding places for crime, and the young and thoughtless, who may often be reformed, are taught by the professional criminals to scorn the restraints of society and in this connection we may well consider the extensiveness of psychopathic laboratories established as adjuncts to the criminal courts."

RIVIERA THIEF USES CLEVER "GYP GAS"

PARIS, Aug. 11.—(L. N. S.)—If champagne had been flowing freely all evening.

If the moon were shining over the Mediterranean, inviting you to spin along the famous drive that skirts the seashore.

And if a well-dressed young man and a young woman—two whom someone had introduced you, you were sure, at the Monte Carlo Casino or Ciro's, or the Cannes Golf club—offered you a lift home in their big, noiseless motor car.

Would you refuse?

Few refused, police say, the invitations of Jean Castell, known as "Monsieur Jean." There was a way about him that inspired confidence. But especially attractive was the appealing beauty of his companion, her fur coat drawn protectively about her undraped shoulders, her big, innocent eyes.

Those who rode with "Monsieur Jean," according to the police, never spent the money left over after the Riviera's night restaurants had taken their share. Neither did they tell of that night's spin on the Corniche road. The Mediterranean, like all other seas, tells no tales.

Now Castell, together with his pal, Danita Mosca, awaits trial in a Paris jail. The two young men are believed by police to be part of an international band of crooks and highwaymen working in Paris, on the Riviera and in other centers of wealth, especially those frequented by tourists.

Castell, according to the police, is wanted for murder in Tunis and for burglary in the south of France. Both Castell and Mosca had them, when arrested, large sums of money. They are expensively dressed and have appealing personalities.

Search is being made for the mysterious girl crook who worked with Castell, police say, on the Riviera.
