ROSEBURG NEWS-REVIEW, AUGUST 14, 1922.

THE ROVING MAN'S POINT OF VIEW.

Some people object to the idea of buying a dwelling and settling down in one place, on the ground that they may desire to move to some other city. There are some persons whose business necessarily takes them from place to place, at frequent intervals, so that the satisfactions of the permanent home nest are denied them. But the great majority are located, or they would do well to settle down, with some degree of permanence. Some argue that the workingman is more independent if he will not tie himself down to one dwelling and that he should be ready to pull up stakes and move on if he sees a better chance. There is too much of this moving around in these times. The costs are greater than people think. The mere expense of trucking furniture is considerable. Three moves are said to equal a fire, and furniture rapidly deteriorates after being jolted over the roads and in freight cars a few times. A man's position in a certain business concern is to the nature of an investment. He knows the methods of that place and becomes more valuable the longer he stays. When he quits and goes elsewhere, he has to learn new methods, and he is less effective for a time. A man stands the best chance of promotion on an average to stay with the business where he knows the methods, where his employers know him and have come to value him. Changes of course will occur, firms go out of business and have their ups and downs, and some people must occasionally move from city to city. The history of home owning has been, though, that those who had the title of their own dwellings have been apt to sell for more than they paid. Building materials have kept going up as they became scarcer, and many a man who had to dispose of his dwelling has found that he has made a neat profit by owning rather than renting.

Buyers' Week, which closed Saturday at Portland, was largely attended by people from all parts of Oregon. There was also a large number of out of state people who took advantage of the excellent program arranged for the occasion and the great showing of merchandise and other wares made by the merchants and manufacturers of that city. This third annual event was the best Portland ever put over, and the interest displayed by the thousands of people who took advantage of Buyers' Week this year is evidence of its growing popularity throughout the entire state. It is an excellent means of gaining closer acquaintance between the buyer and seller, thus cementing together the business men of Portland with the business men of all parts of the state, working in unison for a greater Oregon. This kind of cooperation will bring about concrete results that is sure to strike a happy medium between the metropolis and the smaller communities of the state.

It is often difficult to get public money appropriated for tree planting purposes, because taxpayers may think the city won't get the benefit until after they are dead. Charlotte, Michigan, has manifested a better spirit. It had a tract of rather sterile gravelly land adjoining a park, and it was decided to plant a forest there and dedicate it as a memorial to Charlotte's veterans of the World War. Nearly 7000 white pines have now been set out, the labor being performed by citizens, directed by an agricultural college forester. In three years the trees will be large enough to carpet the ground and add to the appearance of the park. In 10 years they will be 20 feet tall and a beautiful young wood. In 25 years they will be noble trees and their beauty and value will increase for a century. This is a fine example for the cities of Oregon to follow.

The idea of a "rest room" has sounded rather faddy to some of the old timers, who never wanted to interrupt their labors by resting, and who failed to see why other folks should. But business men have found that a rest room is a good factor in any plan to build up the business of a city. A few moments on an easy chair in a rest room will make a tired woman visitor feel herself again and she will start out with renewed energy.

Couple Celebrate Fiftieth Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. M. M. Van Horn, of Happy Valley, celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary on Saturday, August 12, with a quiet family dinner at the Hotel Umpqua. Covers were laid for six, their guests being Mr. and Mrs. Fred S. Hamilton, of Half Moon Ranch, P. M. Van Horn, of Milwaukee, Wisconsin, and Master Charles Lead, better than only grandchild. Mr. and Mrs. Van Horn were recipients of many gifts and letters of congratulation from relatives and friends through the country.

GOOD EVENING FOLKS— Eating corn on the cob in a restaurant is pretty embarrassing when it gets stuck between your teeth. "I see they've got a new way of burying the dead down in Roseburg," said a Yoncalla feller to a Roseburgite. "Howzat," was the answer. "Oh they just let 'em walk around."

The usual number of flies and higher priced cars were seen on the roads yesterday while the pedestrians without life insurance worked in their gardens.

Now that the railroads in California have placed an embargo against green fruit shipments we won't have to put up with any more of those punk watermelons that have been shipped in here.

Quite a few of the local elite pounded a festive gawif ball around the cow pastures at the country club yesterday.

The Yoncalla ball team dragged a weary foot homeward after their desperate attempt and failure to take the home team into camp yesterday and those who had any money left purchased lozenges to reduce the swelling of their tonsils.

There are people who think there is an awful lot of moonshine about all this prohibition business.

ANOTHER WALLINGFORD. A get-rich-quick scheme occurred to a Buffalo man. He trapped army deserters and collected $50 a head reward, by advertising that big legacies awaited them. This is the kind of cheese that no mouse can pass by. The scheme worked. The schemer, however, is arrested for using the mails to defraud. The law nails nearly every Wallingford unless his plunder runs into millions.

PORTLAND, Aug. 13.—The resignation of United States Attorney Lester W. Humphreys, tendered last April, has been officially accepted by Attorney General Daugherty, and will be effective upon the appointment and acceptance of his successor, according to word received from Washington this morning.

The communication further stated that appointment of a successor would be made about the first of the year. Senators McNary and Stanfield having agreed to submit their recommendation by January, 1923.

Named by Wilson. Humphreys was appointed by the Wilson administration November 19, 1919, and he took office here December 8 of the same year, succeeding Bert E. Haney. The appointment of Humphreys was for a term of four years which expires November, 1923. The attorney plans to practice law in Oregon following his release from government service.

John Veatch, assistant United States attorney, will in all probability tender his resignation before Humphreys leaves the office, he said this morning. It is rumored that the two men will enter into partnership.

Many Considered. While no definite announcement has been made regarding a successor to Humphreys, it is understood that a number of well known barristers are angling for the position. The appointment will probably be for a four year term, although it is possible that the appointee may be asked to fill the unexpired term of Humphreys.

The men most frequently mentioned for the position include George Neuner, who came into prominence as district attorney of Douglas county during the Brumfield murder case last summer, Barge Leonard and Pat Gallagher. The latter is a well known Ontario, Ore., lawyer. The position carries a salary of $4,500 a year.

NEW NAZIMOVA PICTURE PRESENTS ISEN DRAMA

From the days when Nazimova first thrilled the New York public by her portrayal of Henrik Ibsen's characters, the picture world has awaited the day when this distinguished Russian star would present an Ibsen play on the screen. Now it has come to pass. Next Tuesday and Wednesday at the Liberty theater, Nazimova will be seen as Nora in the well-known Ibsen classic, "A Doll's House," her first independent production for United Artists.

It is a picture with a human appeal, inasmuch as it deals with a topic of universal discussion, that of Feminism, and when first produced on the stage aroused a world-wide controversy.

REAL SCREEN NOVELTY. Fascinal, different, dramatic, possessing two separate plots and two separate sets of characters, "Borderland," the Agnes Ayres Paramount picture which plays at the Antlers theater for the last time tonight, is claimed to be a real photo-dramatic novelty.

A discontented, restless modern wife is about to make a mis-step, when she is warned by an ancestor who had suffered from a similar error. There is claimed for this story by Miss Dix an unique combination of the appeal which made so successful such plays as "Lillian," "The Return of Peter Grimm," "The Tempest," and "Peter Pan." Paul Powell directed.
