

Public Opinion Valued By Strikers

By FRANK L. SAVAGE,

YORK, Aug. 15.—Perhaps the most important incident in recent history, not excepted, is the fact that the public has been made aware of the importance of the railroad strike by the public opinion of the railroad.

the eastern district, at least, are of both railway executives and strikers to see that the public facts straight has been far more evident than any mutual conference the private exchange of information.

has been the disposition to the public informed through the publication of statements, and ultimatums, the only position shall not be weakened by errors of omission or commission. Each camp has been served to illustrate more vividly the recognized importance of the strike in the pronouncements of the other.

Employs Statisticians.
The headquarters of the striking employees has retained a bureau composed of highly trained, professional statisticians, whose duty it has been to collect authoritative data tending to show that the suspension of work has had a material effect on the operating schedules of the railroad.

Through this bureau daily statements regarding the extent of trains, the percentage of the walk-out, and the condition of equipment have been sent to the public.

the other side, the railway executives have maintained an information bureau whose duty it has been to show that train service has been impaired, that new employees are being taken on in large numbers, and that the railroads are being run very nicely, thank you, with the assistance of their employees, now on strike.

Reports at Variance.
The reports of the rival camps are expected to be at wide variance, and there was no failure of side to live up to expectations.

ammunition of both has contributed largely to the public opinion of the other.

much-wooded public, as a consequence, has been obliged to employ its discriminatory faculty in an unusual degree in order to select itself from being mentally misled and in an effort to follow a happy middle path in forming opinions.

Following is an excerpt from a statement issued by an official of the Central strike committee, coming presumably from the statement made day by day by an official of the National Railway Executives' association that car shortages are less severe now than they were on the last day of three consecutive days prior to calling of the strike:

Advertising is the Sunlight of Business

To all that is healthy and vital in business, it means increased strength and growth; but advertising is a fierce heat which withers and consumes that which is unsound.

A business which is not a good business should not be advertised. A business which would not benefit from widespread appreciation of its ideals had better acquire a new set of ideals.

MOONSHINE QUALITY FARM BUREAU IS GETTING BETTER, TO HOLD PICNIC DRY AGENT ASSERTS

By H. T. HOPKINS,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

PORTLAND, Aug. 15.—If you are going to drink bootleg whisky you should get on the outside of the moonshiner's product rather than consume the contents of the imported bottle.

This advice comes from no less an authority than Jesse Flanders, federal prohibition enforcement officer for the Portland district.

That moonshining is rapidly becoming an important industry in this state was admitted by the federal official. He also admitted that the quality of moonshine liquor is growing better and that the possibilities of paralysis, blindness or instant death, due to drinking moonshine, are decreasing.

A fair grade of "mountain dew" is now dripping from the illicit still, compared to the poisonous liquid that was manufactured two years ago, Flanders said.

"We find that moonshiners are learning more about their business," declared the prohibition enforcement officer. "Chemical tests show that the poisonous liquors of a few years ago are disappearing, and a better grade of moonshine is being produced."

Imported Liquor Rotten
"But while moonshine is getting better the quality of imported liquor is growing more abominable. The man who buys Scotch whisky is taking a big chance with his money."

Most of the liquor that is being smuggled into Oregon is made in Scotch distilleries and then shipped to Japan. There it is adulterated, doped and doctored. One bottle of genuine liquor is made the base of about four bottles of inferior stuff. It then is shipped to Canada, sold to American rum-runners and smuggled into this country. No matter how many labels, revenue stamps and embossed corks a bottle bears, the buyer cannot tell until he opens it just what sort of concoction the bottle holds.

"Our investigations show that the making of wine, beer and whisky by private citizens for their own consumption is gradually dying out. It was only a fad, and people, after experimenting, have found out that as amateurs they are not able to make a beverage that is fit to drink. Homebrewing is simply a fad that is about to disappear."

"There is only one thing that is going to stop the manufacture and sale of liquor in this country—that is a constant, bitter and relentless war on those who engage in that traffic."

Crystal Warnock George Wilcox Wed

A quiet wedding took place last evening at the home of A. J. Warnock, when his niece, Miss Crystal Warnock, became the bride of Geo. I. Wilcox. The wedding comes as a complete surprise to their many friends here. The ceremony took place about 11 o'clock last evening, with the Rev. C. H. Hilton, pastor of the Christian church, officiating. He used the ring ceremony.

Only a few friends and relatives of the contracting parties were present. Following the wedding services, a crowd of young people invaded the Warnock home, and were later taken to the Grand grill, where a lovely wedding supper was served.

The bride is well-known here, having made her home in Roseburg for a number of years. She formerly conducted the Elite beauty parlors. Mr. Wilcox is employed at the present time with the California-Oregon Power company, and their plans for a future residence have not been given. Mr. and Mrs. Wilcox have the many good wishes for future happiness from their friends here.

Oakland Selected for Annual Picnic to Be Held Soon Farmer Organization.

MANSFIELD TO SPEAK

Venison Barbecue and Basket Dinner
Will Be Held at Noon and State
President Will Speak in the Afternoon.

The annual farm bureau picnic will be held in Oakland on Saturday, September 2, according to the announcement made this afternoon by H. A. Hercher, president of the organization.

It was first planned to hold the picnic at Yoncalla, but for various reasons Oakland has been selected as the place of meeting. The picnic this year is expected to be the best ever, and a large attendance is anticipated. The forenoon will be given over to a community sing, speaking and a musical and literary program. Some good talent has been obtained for these events, and it is expected to attract a great many members and friends of the organization. At noon a venison barbecue and basket dinner will be served. In the afternoon, George Mansfield, president of the State Farm Bureau, will deliver the principal address.

Mr. Mansfield is a man whose speaking ability is well-known to the farmers of Douglas county. He is in close touch at all times with the political situation, particularly as it refers to agricultural industry, and is also a close student of the industrial conditions relative to marketing and the financial end of the farming business. His talks are always interesting and instructive, and he carries a message which the average farmer will go a long way to hear, as it gives him instruction in the various problems which daily confront him in his business. The promise of Mr. Mansfield to speak at this picnic will add greatly to the interest in the event and will draw many who might not otherwise attend.

Following Mr. Mansfield's address, an impromptu parade will be formed and will go to the baseball grounds where a rattling good ball game will be played. Mr. Mansfield says that the Farm Bureau will select the two best ball teams in the county for this game, and will expect an exhibition that will be worth going to see.
