

SAVINGS resulting from capacity manufacture are now offered to the buyer of the Studebaker Special-Six. The new price of $1275 is $200 under its former price.

Studebaker reductions became effective August 1st after Studebaker had completed the biggest seven months in its 70 years' history. And at a time when Studebaker had 15,000 unfilled orders on hand! It is a Studebaker policy of long standing to share manufacturing savings with the customer.

The performance, durability, comfort and quality of the Special-

Six are recognized everywhere. And here's new proof of its endurance: Studebaker's sales of repair parts, covering accidents as well as service, for the first seven months of 1922 were less than they were for the first seven months of 1919, in spite of the fact that 186,000 new cars were sold and put into operation since January 1, 1920.

The Special-Six at $1275 represents a new standard of value—the greatest value Studebaker has ever offered, and that means a value that is positively unapproached anywhere in the industry.

Cool lights, cowl ventilator, massive head lamps; tonneau light with long extension cord; rain-proof, one-piece windshield; windshield wiper; eight-day clock; thief-proof transmission lock; tool compartment in left front door.

"NEXT WAR" IS MAIN TOPIC IN EUROPE

By DAVID M. CHURCH,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

LONDON, Aug. 24.—Europe, and particularly Great Britain, is suffering from shell shock.

The World war's effects have not worn off and there is a constant fear throughout Europe of the next war.

Despite the League of Nations, the Washington conference and individual efforts to check war, all Europe talks of the next war, hoping against hope that it will never come, but firmly believing that it will.

Lloyd George, Europe's super-optimist, even has his fears. Not long ago, in a speech to a gathering of churchmen, the premier gave his views of the next war, declaring that it would be the most brutal in all history. The prime minister was very careful to qualify his statements about the next war with the phrase "if it comes," but he left no doubt with his audience that he fears that war will again ravage the Old world.

Lord Grey Fearful.
The words of Lloyd George had not grown cold when Viscount Grey, another British leader, who is not regarded as a pessimist, made a speech in which he gave warning that he, too, cherished grave fears of another war some time in the distant future.

Predictions of war and rumors of war are given the greatest prominence in the European press. Perhaps the people do not become excited over rumors of war, but the press certainly does.

When King Constantine makes a gesture against the Turks the European press becomes violently agitated. If there are menacing motions on the part of the Soviet government of Russia, again the headline writers get extremely busy and trot out their biggest type.

A single newspaper succeeded in working the population of London up to a war pitch by a campaign demanding greater aerial protection. Day after day this newspaper dinned into its readers that London might be wiped out of existence in a few hours' time by aerial raids of the ever expected next war. The newspaper not only succeeded in arousing London's population but it actually succeeded in arousing the British government to increase the strength of aerial defenses of London.

Few Hope for Peace.
The hopes against the next war in Europe seem few and far between. A few clutch at the League of Nations as a probable war-preventative, but the majority believe that it can be and is of little use. Some militarists are in favor of facing their fears and rebuilding large armies and navies. But everywhere there seems to be a very definite, although nebulous faith in the United States to prevent the ever-threatening next war. No one seems to know just how the United States can prevent the next war. Some argue that with the United States in the League of Nations another war would be impossible, but this doesn't satisfy many.

The net result of this fear of the

Equalization Board Meeting Announced

The annual meeting of the county board of equalization will be held at the courthouse on Monday, September 11, County Assessor Frank Calkins announces. At that time an investigation will be made of the tax rolls and assessments and all errors corrected. Any person having remonstrances to make concerning the assessments on their property or who have grievances to settle concerning assessments will be given a hearing at that time and the respective cases passed upon by the board.

next war and faith in the United States is pretty apt to be a general push on the part of European governments to get the United States involved in European affairs, so that when the much-feared next war does come the United States will be in, on whose side nobody knows, but every European wants the United States on his side when the next war comes. European soldiers in the World war didn't love the American doughboy, but they respected him, and the whole of Europe wants to have the doughboy as his ally the next time the call comes to go over the top.

More Men Than Women Have Appendicitis

Medical reports show men are more subject to appendicitis although many sudden cases occur among women. It can be guarded against by preventing intestinal infection. The intestinal antiseptic, Adler-ika, acts on BOTH upper and lower bowel, removing all foul, decaying matter which might cause infection. It brings out matter you never thought was in your system and which may have been poisoning you for months. Adler-ika is EXCELLENT for gas on the stomach. Nathan Fullerton, druggist.
