RESULTS OF NEGLECTED EDUCATION.

Money for education has not come very easily. While large sums have been spent for schools, yet an enormous element of people of alien descent do not know our language. When it came to providing adequate facilities to Americanize the foreign born adults who know little English, the American taxpayer always groaned and said, "We should worry." Now as a result in part of his own indifference, he is worrying in earnest. The present trouble in the coal mines, as one illustration, could be handled far better if the people we dealt with were thoroughly Americanized. From 60 to 80 per cent, it is estimated, of these miners are men of foreign birth, parentage or language. The vast majority of them can not probably read any newspaper printed in English They must get their ideas to a large extent from foreign language papers many of which are not in harmony with American ideas. Agitators who acquired the bolshevist point of view under tyrannical governments would get a grip on such people. A mass of un-Americanized people like that is difficult to get at. If they have grievances, they find difficulty in expressing them. They go along year after year in sullen silence, unable to impress their complaints on their fellow countrymen. Then the spirit of revolt flares up, and is likely to go on to dangerous extremes, and it is almost impossible to meet them in any friendly way. The great need of the country is unity and cooperation. This spirit can not be had while a vast mass of the people are separated by the barriers of language. If every workingman could read our American newspapers, the business of many agitators would be gone, and real grievances would be more speedily redressed.

When a man does commit a felony, society claps him in jail, if it can catch him. If the offender had been supporting a family that leaves them a problem to be dealt with. In many places they are neglected. The wives and children may be worthy people, doing the best they can to make good in the world. But the fact that they have a husband or father in jail may prove a handicap to their progress. Some people will fear the children might inherit the bad blood, and would dislike to employ them. Such families often become public charges from no fault of their own. Society's duty does not end when an offender is locked up where he can reflect on his errors. There is an obligation to the innocent wife and family. If the home is broken up, an incentive toward straight living is taken away from the prisoner when he is released. Society should look with interest and sympathy upon such families. They often have a difficult path to travel. Neighbors and townspeople should inquire into the welfare of those seeming needy and public officials and civic organizations should see if they need assistance or guidance.

Many people have argued that the United States cannot be prosperous until conditions in Europe are straightened out, so that they can buy American goods freely. The figures just issued of American exports for the fiscal year ending June 30th last do not uphold this discouraging theory. These exports for the past year, though less than half the stupendous total for the flush times of 1920, yet reached the great sum of $3,771,181,000. The average for the pre-war years from 1911 to 1914, was only about $2,270,000,000. Of course prices are higher now, so totals mount up more. But the increase is nearly double the figures of the pre-war years, while prices can not average much over 50 per cent above pre-war figures now. Our foreign trade is very good, in spite of Europe's poverty. If at any time business conditions are unsatisfactory, the trouble is not to be found across and world and in conditions beyond our power to remedy. It is right at home among ourselves, and is due principally to the lack of unity and harmonious cooperation among our own people.

When a public official gets so far advanced in public life that he cannot appreciate a good joke he has reached that degree in his dotage that it is well he should be relegated to the category of "has beens." Over at Klamath Falls during the visit of the 1925 Portland delegation some good humor was "pulled" at the expense of the visitors. Mayor Baker took exception to the trite sayings and proceeded to stir up a mess that set the people of the Klamath country about 200 miles further away from Portland than heretofore.

AROUND THE TOWN

Market Specialist Here—

R. S. Beede, specialist in marketing and organization, spent yesterday and today in Roseburg conferring with County Agent B. W. Cooney.

Pattern Models, Tailored Hats, Sport Hats at The Vogue, Saturday, Aug. 26th.

Back From Auto Trip—

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Fisher, who have been spending the last two weeks visiting points in southern Oregon and northern California, returned home last night. They report a very pleasant trip.

The Vogue. Millinery Opening, Saturday, August 26th.

Went to Corvallis—

Miss Emma Henkie, of Portland, who has been visiting for the last three weeks with Mrs. T. O. Dixon, left this afternoon for Corvallis in response to a message that an aunt was seriously ill at that place.

The ladies of Roseburg and vicinity are especially invited to visit The Vogue, Sat., Aug. 26th, where you will find correct millinery displayed. The proprietress during several weeks spent in the east this summer visited many of the leading millinery houses gathering a feast of inspirational ideas.

Are on Fishing Trip—

The Corvallis Gazette-Times has the following item in a recent issue:

"Professor and Mrs. J. B. Horner and Misses Vera and Pearl Horner, accompanied by Mrs. Horner's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Simpson, of Albany, left the city this morning in two cars loaded with camping outfits and are to be away a short time on a camping and fishing trip. They are enroute to Alsea and will camp either in that section or the Tidewater country, and hope to make a big haul. The Horners have made several interesting automobile trips over the state this summer."

GOOD EVENING FOLKS—

A sixteen year old boy recently killed a deer above Ralph Knight's place and was packing it home when a stranger happened by and, impersonating an officer, confiscated the deer and sent the lad home with a reprimand. It is reliably reported that L. J. Barnes acted the part of the officer.

Pete Parks' picture in "Ye Olden Days" colyum today makes ye ed. remark that the photographers of those old days must have been wonderful.

GOIN' FER THE COWS.

Gitting up, to see the sun rise,
Hustlin' round the farm,
Gittin' the kinks out of our legs,
Limbering up our arms,
Moin' a swathe through early dew,
Our feet wet—I allows,
Over the narrow path we race,
Goin' fur the cows.

Drivin' 'em up to the barn,
Milking fore its late,
Steppin' 'em to rest awhile,
Leanin' on the gate,
Drinkin' in the pure, sweet air
That's around you—I allows,
Puts the pep in your gait—
Goin' fur the cows.

Then workin' the live long day
In the burning sun,
We have many a harder task
That we've just begun.
Going home at close of day,
When the sun sets—I allows,
Glad to be, when all is done,
Goin' fur the cows.

Wandering over the same old path
Up the old hillside,
Wind a playin' with your haid,
Till it's satisfied,
Cooling of your heated brow,
I do love it—I allows,
Air that comes at even tide,
And goin' fur the cows.

THE GREAT DIVIDE.

Will—"A woman's life is divided into two periods."

Bill—"Whaddayamean?"

Will—"The first she spends looking for a husband; and the second looking after him."

We rejoice because wireless telegraphy requires no poles on which candidates' pictures may be nailed, but there is always a drawback. What will the radio fans do when the air is full of candidates' pictures?

The designers of some of the summer dresses apparently wish the wearers to enjoy the healthful results of skin breathing.

"Well, Sam," said the colonel sympathetically, "I hear you have had some hard luck."

"What, me, suh? Nossuh. Ah ain't had no hahd luck."

"Why, wasn't that your brother who was killed in a railroad wreck recently and wasn't that your wife that was hurt in an automobile accident?"

"Oh, yassuh—but dat's deir hahd luck, not mine."

There are two ways to judge a man—by what he stands for and by what he falls for.

And then, there is the applicant for a position who thinks he ought to be hired because he needs the money.

SHOWED SYMPTOMS.

"You discharged your office boy?"

"Yes, because he never did anything but stand around and look wise."

"I guess you've seen the last of him."

"I don't know about that. He may turn up here some day as an efficiency expert."

Paderewski is quitting politics in Poland for the piano and has taken up something that he can play.

If you have missed an inner tube lately, possibly you can find it tied up with sonny's bathing suit.

EVER THUS.

An Egyptian mummy with bobbed hair has been found. They are now digging for her horn-rimmed spectacles.

"Hot days ain't made fo' cold hearts," said Charcoal Eph, in a mood, "but yo' cyarn't boil de sentiment out o' two what's paddlin' a canoe in watahmillion time."

If divorce statistics are reliable barometers, the love knot is a slip knot.

CONVINCING.

"Your honor, I was not intoxicated."

"But this officer says that you were trying to climb a lamp post."

"I was, your honor. A couple of pink crocodiles had been following me around, and I don't mind telling you that they were getting on my nerves."

SHORT STORY IN FOUR FIGURES.

Bill was trying out his new "Four."
His speedometer said "Twenty."
The speed cop said "Forty."
And the judge just said "Fifty."

God pity the man who after a lifetime of wonderful opportunities has nothing to write on his tombstone except the fact that he made money.

In Ye Olden Days

(From the Roseburg Review, February 5, 1891.)

Isadore Wollenberg, of the mercantile firm of Wollenberg Brothers, is down from Canyonville today.

Dan Clarke was released from the county jail on a habeas corpus writ last Saturday. The writ was returnable before Judge Riddle and he discharged Clarke from custody on irregularity in the papers by which he was committed to jail. Dan has spent his time since his release singing songs to crowds of small boys on the streets and telling of his religious experience at revival meetings. He is just a little "off" mentally.

We have received a large number of bills from Senator Fullerton, who is at the state legislature.

P. R. Dobbs, C. A. Schlbrede and V. S. Patterson have filed articles incorporating the Christian church of Roseburg. They propose to erect a house of worship here this year.

The new Catholic church bell has been placed in position.

J. T. Cooper was over from Wilbur Saturday and found time to drop into our office for a few minutes' chat. Mr. Cooper is one of Oregon's earliest pioneers, this being his 42nd year spent in Douglas county. When he came here Roseburg had not been thought of, and there was not a settler between Mr. Cooper's present place and Yoncalla, where the Applegate family had already settled.

C. W. Parks and company, located in their elegant brick building on Jackson street, are conducting a first class grocery store. They carry a very large and well-selected stock of staple and fancy groceries and do a leading business. During the coming year they will enlarge their premises, extending the building to Main street

Married—Bollenbaugh-Russell, at the residence of Vyrus Russell January 22, 1891, George Bollenbaugh and Dora Russell, all of this city, D. D. Levens, J. P., officiating.

Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Houston gave a pleasant whist party last Saturday evening.

Women the Greatest Buyers in the World

There are 22,000,000 homes in the United States. The women who buy for these homes spend on the average $500 each, or a total of $11,000,000,000, each year. That is more than $36,000,000 every working day. Every year it amounts to half as much as America's Liberty Bond issue.

Each woman is a part of this army of buyers, and each, of she will, may be guided to wise and economical purchases if she will, may be guided to wise and economical purchases she can of the advertisements which manufacturers are printing for her benefit.

The advertising in every newspaper and every magazine is a buying guide for this greatest buying force in the world. This advertising makes it safe and easy for every member of this buying army to make her purchases.

It establishes in her mind a buying habit and gives her a preference of one brand of goods to another or an advertised article to one that is unknown.

It identifies for her a certain product as being standard, so that she may easily dodge the wiles of sellers who try to sell something that is not so good.

It fixes merit as an everlasting adjunct to certain articles.

It makes her know that the manufacturer who is proud of his product and jealous of his reputation and character cannot do otherwise than make his product at least as good as he says it is.

More than likely it is better.

Advertising points out where this greatest buyer in all the world's history may find quality goods by showing her pictures of them over and over again which enables her to recognize them easily and quickly.
