WHY THEY GET AHEAD.

A visitor was speaking the other day of the way many Italians and Greeks had gone ahead in her own city, usually in the fruit and candy business. They started in a very small way, yet within a few years their business had expanded, they were occupying larger quarters, delivering their stuff with automobiles, and in one or two cases, owning considerable real estate. It seems queer to many observers that these people get ahead, while so many natives are struggling along, barely able to keep their heads above water. A careful study of such cases will usually show why such people have gone ahead so rapidly. As a rule they work very hard, and keep busy for long hours while other people are playing. Very often their wives and children help them. Any family that is willing to show equal industry can usually make a success of it. Of course any line of business calls for good judgement, and people have to cultivate that judgment by close attention to details and effort to learn the trade they are engaged in. Some people may feel that it is undesirable for men and their families to work these long hours and keep places of business open while others have closed. If children are being kept out of school and women overburdened, the results are undesirable from the community point of view. But it would probably be found that these folks are looking out pretty carefully to see that their children get a good amount of education, as they are ambitious. These hard working people should of course remember that the first thing in life is not to amass money. The thing of first importance is to cooperate with the rest of the community for civic progress and human betterment. Many people, natives as well as aliens, are so intent on gain that they think of nothing else. But in these times when aversion to work is so common, many industrious aliens set an example that natives and old residents could well follow.

THE SOLDIER'S ATTITUDE.

Many men of high ideals who served in the army through the war, find themselves now in a state of disappointment and disillusion. They feel that they gave up their jobs, suffered many losses, exposed themselves to the risks of battle, in order to preserve the ideals of their country. Then they return and find the country torn with factional controversy and a general spirit of grabbing and gouging prevalent. Many of them are thoroughly disgusted, and say that if called on to serve their country again they would say, "Let George do it." The statement is frequently made that the veterans are so thoroughly sick of the way things have gone since they returned, that the majority of them would never serve in the army under any circumstances unless forced by the draft. A question of this kind was raised the other day in a gathering of service men, and it was pleasing to learn that nearly all of them in spite of whatever disappointments they had encountered, yet had the same old spirit of Americanism that they had in the war. "You may think you wouldn't go," said one of them, "but when you hear the band play the patriotic airs and hear the drum beat, your feet would fall in just the same." At one of the citizen's training camps being conducted by the war department this summer, the question was asked of one company whether they would like to return to the camp again next year. All but one said yes. While few of these were probably ex-service men the reply indicated the feeling of the manhood of the country toward military service in time of national emergency. These fellows would all rally around the flag. Many things have gone wrong since the war closed, but the young men still love their country, and would protect it again if the need arose.

The entire European situation appears to be disquieting, and rumors of nations being on the verge of another great war cause universal apprehension. Distrust, intrigue, despair, marks existing conditions, and opinion generally concedes that gradual disintegration is going on there. Col. House, who went to Europe as President Wilson's confidential agent, and who has just finished a two months' trip to the continent, tells newspapers in London that only a spark is needed to set off an explosion at this time. It would seem as though the nations might be willing to bury their jealousies and seek a way to real peace and quiet for their peoples.

A thirteen year old boy, son of an Oklahoma Methodist minister, has successfully passed all tests and been admitted as a freshman in Northwestern University, Chicago. This youngest university student, whose father graduated from the Northwestern in 1912, will take a course in journalism. The youngster may become a power in the newspaper world within a few years.

These growers in the Winston-Dillard section are doing big things, and they will eventually succeed in placing Douglas county on the map as a melon center.

Prune Pickin's

BY BERT G. BATES.

GOOD EVENING FOLKS—

Quite a few of our local citizens will leave tomorrow for the lower Umpqua where they hope to get a free meal.

And if ye ed. had some way to go, we would tag along because a square meal without charge is certainly a rarity these days.

The Labor Day celebration is going to be a humdinger. Let's go WHOOPEE!

This is the time of year when you can get chiggers by rubbing up against a fence post.

In France they make a brew with prunes and call it prunelle.

In America they make their stuff from raisins. Why not call it Raisin-elle?

After a woman has been married two or three months she goes around with an expression on her face that looks suspiciously like wisdom.

CAUSE FOR WORRY.

There was a man and all his life he worked in a shipyard; And he had a baby and it was going to be christened And for a week he couldn't sleep nights Because he was worried For fear the minister would hurt the baby When he hit it with the bottle.

"Who made you?" inquired a lady teacher of a lubberty boy who had lately joined her class.

"I don't know," said he.

"Don't know! You ought to be ashamed of yourself! A boy fourteen years old. Why, there's Dicky Felton; he's only three; he can tell. I dare say. Come here, Dicky. Who made you?"

"God," lisped the infant prodigy.

"There," said the teacher triumphantly. "I knew he would remember."

"Well he oughter," said the stupid boy, "taint but a little while ago since he was made."

One Roseburg man had a great piece of good luck. He bought a second-hand car and it was stolen inside of two hours.

After seeing how some people eat in public places we agree with the bird who says after feeding his face, "That another dirty job is done."

A lot of married couples hold hands because both of them are afraid to let go.

Watchmaker—"Did your watch stop when it dropped on the floor?"
 Dadd—"Yes, did you think it would go through?"

MARJORIE.

They told me that Marjorie was an old-fashioned girl, but I didn't believe them. I watched the way she danced. Nothing doing! I looked her over—her shoes, her nose, her dress, her makeup, her hair. Nothing doing! I listened to her line. It had a day-after-tomorrow ring in it. But one day she sat down, and I saw the edge of a petticoat.

Yes, they were right! Marjorie was an old-fashioned girl.

First Golfer—"There's a man going across in front of you. You should cry out 'fore!' if there's anyone in the way when you're going to hit the ball."

Second Golfer—"How do I know I'm going to hit the ball?"

Roseburg golfers claim among their number the prize optimist of the world—he went out to play a match game of golf the other day, and took along one golf ball.

WELL INFORMED.

Man (in search of his wife)—"Bridget, do you know anything of my wife's whereabouts?"
 Bridget—"Yes, sor, I put them in the wash."

Our idea of a first-class automobile salesman would be one who could sell Senator Newberry a Ford.

NOTHING.

Johnny—"The camel can go eight days without water."
 Freddy—"So could I if ma would let me."

Some people marry in June and repent in dogdays.

STILL A FLIVVER.

You may bring out your Ford in disguise, if you will, but the jiggle and joggle remains with it still.

About the only person who is in favor of Henry Ford running for president is Henry Ford. It seems to be unanimous that far.

Two lawyers were wrangling over a case in the county courtroom, when one of them became furious:

"You are the biggest fool I ever knew," he shouted.

"Order, there, order!" called the judge, tapping his gavel on the bench. "You seem to forget that I am in the room."

A real homely man has to grin and bear it—the drug stores do not sell masculine beauty. Isn't it the pity?

Bebeed hair has one advantage over the original style. An office girl can put a telephone receiver to her ear without the necessity of pushing a hair puff out of the way.

Baseball Dance to Be a Big Affair

The dance sponsored by the Roseburg baseball club on next Saturday night at the Maccabee hall will be a rip-roarin' affair if the plans of the committee only half materialize. Frank Hills, manager of the team, has the dance in charge, and has instructed The Umpqua Five, the now dance orchestra, to arrange a program of the snappiest fox-trots and dreamiest waltzes in their repertoire. This will be done, according to the orchestra management.

The floor in the Maccabee hall will be in tip-top condition, and when the gong sounds at 9 p. m. Saturday night the barrage will be on. No waits, no delays, and much fun will be the order of the evening, and the entire baseball team will be on hand to see that everyone gets a dance.

A PICTURE OF UNCLE SAM

Dr. Louis Albert Banks will speak Sunday morning, September 3, at the Presbyterian church on "The American Creed." On account of Labor day, Dr. Banks has consented to discuss the question of Americanism, and will portray the characteristics of the real, red-blooded American citizen needed today. This will be the last opportunity to hear Dr. Banks, this season, as he leaves on Monday morning for a long speaking campaign in the east.

At 3000° F. What?

As your motor begins to "warm up," what happens to the oil? It thins, of course. But just how does it thin and how does it act when subjected to the high operating temperatures?

Upon the answer to that question depends the proper lubrication of your car.

Zerolene, being made from selected crudes and scientifically refined by our patented vacuum process, resists engine heat; it retains its lubricating "body" at all operating temperatures. It does not decompose or "break down." It clings to the bearing surfaces and maintains a perfect film of lubricant.

A Minimum of Soft, Flaky Carbon

If the motor is getting proper lubrication, some oil slips past the pistons and is consumed by the flame of combustion. In burning, all oils deposit carbon on the cylinder walls and cylinder heads. Inferior oils deposit a hard, gritty carbon in considerable quantity.

It is this hard carbon deposit which causes pre-ignition, knocking and sticking of cylinder rings, overheating, loss of power, warping and splitting of exhaust valves, and wear of valve stems.

Zerolene deposits a minimum of carbon of a soft, flaky nature which can do no damage and is usually blown out with the exhaust.

Lubricate exclusively with Zerolene, adopting the recommendations embodied in the Zerolene chart of recommendations, and you will develop the maximum power, speed and gasoline mileage of your car.
