

What Happened When Sheila Elliston Refused Love

By Idah McGlone Gibson

A HEAVY BLOW

Sheila was growing hysterical as she kept incoherently begging me to get her picture out of the Rogue's Gallery.

I tried to soothe her, but at last I saw that if I did not leave her and go to town and attempt to obtain her photographs she would see beside herself before Phil returned and would probably blurt out the whole story.

"Susanne gets what she goes after." The words of my friend haunted me. I confess at this moment that for my own sake I did not want Phil to learn Sheila's story as I had had a hand in keeping the secret from him; a secret that now, it seemed, would have been better divulged even if it had prevented the marriage.

At noon as possible Marie and I started for the city. I was still walking with a cane and much afraid of crowds. I felt better when I knew that either Sheila or Marie was with me. Of course Sheila was out of the question on an expedition of this kind although I could see that it was her greatest desire to go with me.

Over the telephone I found that Mrs. Walton was still out of town but fortunately Doctor Thornton was in his office. I had to tell him the whole story and I also had to listen to a terse and much to the point lecture on "The Importance of Being Frank."

"I did not dream for a moment that Sheila would marry your brother, Mrs. Wilmington, without telling him her story. Indeed, I insisted that she ought not to marry him at all and I cannot understand why you, his sister, should have told her to do this without disclosing to him this trial. Only because your family is so powerful and the memory of man so short has kept a reference to it out of the papers at this time.

"Oh yes, I know," he continued quickly as I tried to interrupt him, "that Sheila was innocent and it was a case where money was able to victimize right. It was one of the most cowardly and inhuman things I have ever known a man to do, but for all that, I am afraid that Sheila has laid up more trouble for herself in marrying your brother."

"Why, Doctor, surely you would not be so cruel as to condemn a beautiful girl, as well-fitted to make someone happy and as deserving of happiness as Sheila, to a life of loneliness and despair because the blind ones of the world saw fit to condemn her at the highest of a cruel old man."

"In most cases I would perhaps not do this, Mrs. Wilmington, but now you do not see to a sensitive nature like Sheila's the whole thing is wrong. She cannot forget, she cannot help but imagine, she cannot help but have what psycho-analysts call an inferiority-complex. Every time that your brother tells her he loves her she will be wondering if she is really unworthy. Life will become a perfect hell for her."

"There I think you are wrong, doctor. In her heart Sheila knows she is innocent. Why should she have a feeling of inferiority? All that she fears is only that which we all—we women—fear. It is the terrible speech of people.

"Gossip is such an awful thing. Surely you, as a doctor, know that gossip more than conscience makes cowards of us all."

Doctor Thornton looked at me in surprise. "I did not think," he said, "that you would let the opinion of people you do not know and whom you would never care to know influence you in any way, Mrs. Wilmington."

"I am no stronger than any other woman. Every other woman, I think, every other man, is afraid of the adverse speech of people. We are all trying to keep the bubble of reputation afloat, but we know that at the slightest breath of scandal, it will burst. But while we are here philosophizing, doctor, poor Sheila is counting the minutes and I can bring her back those pictures. How do you think I had better go about it? Would it do any good if I went to the commissioner?"

"I do not think that I would do that at first. I do not know the law that governs these things, but I have a vague idea that those pictures are never given up to anyone. I will give you a letter, however, to one of the detectives that I hired on Sheila's case. He will know all about it and advise you."

Armed with the letter of introduction, I started for this private detective agency. I hated myself for hoping that no one would see me going into the place.

Just outside the door of the building I met Phil! He seemed surprised to see me and asked me where I was going, but it was in such an unexpected way that I was sure that he had no idea of my destination. Fortunately I happened to think that a woman who at times had put up some home-made preserves for me had a shop in the next block. I told him I was going there.

To assure myself that I was not a preparator I did go to the place and gave a generous and painstaking order which took me about an hour. As I came back I saw Susanne Jones come out of the building just ahead of me and walk down the street.

Did I imagine it or did her shoulders sag a little? I told myself impatiently that this thing was making me silly.

I hurried into the building and found to my surprise that I need not have worried about going into a detective office. They were quite like any others and the man to whom the doctor had given me the letter was a benign, tatterly-looking old fellow minus the derby hat, and the black cigar of the moving picture. He seemed genuinely grieved at my surprise and consternation when he told me that there was no way of getting a photograph which had been taken of a criminal.

"A face that is hung in the Rogue's Gallery, madame, can never be taken away."

PRIMARIES HELD SEVERAL STATES

Massachusetts Republicans Nominate Lodge to Succeed Himself.

POINDEXTER FAVORITE

Washington State Gives Senator Big Plurality in a Field of Four— Lady Candidate is Fourth.

(By United Press)

BOSTON, Sept. 12.—Senator Lodge has a plurality of 72,000 throughout the state today, according to incomplete returns. Lodge appears to have won the nomination. Colonel Wm. A. Gaston defeated Sherman L. Whipple for the democratic senatorial nomination. Governor Channing Cox was re-nominated on the republican ticket by a vote of seven to one. Later figures show that Lodge has 100,485 votes and Joseph C. Walker 29,210.

Pointexter Leads in Washington. SEATTLE, Sept. 12.—Senator Miles Pointexter, progressive incumbent, has a lead of more than 25,000 votes over other aspirants for the senatorial honor, as opposition to Pointexter was split three ways. On the democratic ticket Ex-Congressman Hill and James A. Duncan, farm and labor candidates, were successful in securing senatorial nominations.

Groesbeck Renominated Governor. DETROIT, Sept. 12.—Senator Chas. Townsend, who voted to seat Newberry in the senate after charges had been preferred against him of buying his way into the senatorial circle, was probably renominated in yesterday's primary on the republican ticket by a plurality of 29,900 over his nearest rival for the honor. Governor Alex. L. Groesbeck was renominated for the office by an overwhelming vote.

Lady Takes Fourth Place. SEATTLE, Sept. 12.—(By A. P.)—Maintaining his lead of over 20,000, it is admitted here that Senator Miles Pointexter has probably won the re-nomination over his three rivals for the post. On the face of early returns George Lamping was practically 12,000 behind Pointexter. Judge Griffin, of Seattle, held third place in the race, and Mrs. Frances Cleveland Axtell fourth for the senatorial nomination.

Lodge Gets Renomination. BOSTON, Sept. 12.—(A. P.)—Joseph Walker, opposing Senator Lodge for nomination on the republican ticket for United States senator from Massachusetts, was literally snowed under at the primary election yesterday. Governor Channing Cox is leading over Attorney General Allen for governor, and his renomination is practically assured. On the democratic ticket William Gaston and John Fitzgerald are holding big leads over other contestants for nomination of senator and governor respectively.

Progressives Nominate Millionaire. DENVER, Sept. 12.—Progressives won in Colorado primaries yesterday and the democratic gubernatorial candidate, William E. Sweet, millionaire banker, was nominated by a big majority. Sweet is endorsed by the labor and non-partisan league.

NEW TAILORING GOODS. A special showing of fine new woolsens for fall and winter tailoring has been received by the ROSEBURG CLEANERS. Many different patterns for men's suits are being shown including the latest weaves in many attractive colors and designs. Call and let us show them to you.

PAVEMENT NEARS COMPLETION. Less than a mile of paving remains to be laid now to complete the Cantonville cut-off contract, and contractor Cumpson is planning to finish by the middle of September, unless delayed by rain or otherwise. It is quite probable that he will pave Main and Second streets in town of Myrtle Creek immediately following his completion of the cut-off contract. —Myrtle Creek Mail.

Many Babies to Be Judged

The baby clinic which will be held at the Parish House on Sept. 15, is attracting considerable attention according to Health Officer Wade. Slides at the motion picture houses are advertising the event and quite a number of babies will be judged. In order to defray the expense of a score card which will be presented to each of the parents, an admission fee of 25 cents will be charged. Each mother is requested to bring a Turkish towel.

PARLEY WITH DEVALERA IN EFFORT FOR PEACE

LONDON, Sept. 12.—Dublin dispatches state that General Malaher and DeValera met today for discussing peace. Malaher insists that the rebels lay down their arms. Mrs. Charles Horhaus and Mrs. Ida Reiser and three children, Kathleen, Carl and Clarence are visiting with Mrs. Edward Clark in this city. They reside at Vancouver, Ind. Katherine and Carl go direct from here to Chicago where they are to attend Chicago state university. The other members of the party, with Mrs. Clark and daughter, Elizabeth, will go to Crater Lake for a short vacation.

ADVICE TO THE LOVELORN

BY MRS. ELLSBURY

A Daily Column of Questions and Answers Conducted by a Woman Who Knows. Address your Letters to Mrs. Ellsbury Care Roseburg News-Review

Dear Mrs. Ellsbury: Will you please help me? Is it a United States law that one can't divorce an insane person. Or, if a man's wife leaves him and a few years later is sent to the asylum, then later he gets a divorce without telling that she is insane, would the divorce be legal? If he should marry again would his marriage be legal. Thank you so much. WORRIED.

Ans. No, it is not a United States law. Laws regulating divorce are state laws, and are passed and regulated by the state government. The divorce in the case you mention might possibly be legal, but before a definite answer could be given, one should be in possession of the facts, and have an opportunity to study the regularity of the divorce proceedings. These answers are based on Oregon laws. Some states, notably Washington and Kentucky, make insane, subsequent to marriage, and of sufficient duration, a cause for divorce, and prescribe the procedure which must be strictly followed. The only thing to do is to consult a competent lawyer, lay all of the facts of the case before him, and let him look up the law bearing upon your case.

Dear Mrs. Ellsbury: I am 5 ft. 9 inches tall, and am 21 years old. Can you tell me if I am underweight? I weigh 135 pounds, and don't look too thin. Can you also tell me of a becoming way to fix my hair? It is very short, of a good brown color, fine and straight. I have no objections to curling it, but have no success so far in fixing it well. It is quite thick, and I am sure should be easily fixed. I will be more than grateful for any help that you give me, as I am really in a quandary. My face is average size, neither long and thin, nor short and fat. Could you tell me also if a girl should play golf in trousers? I am very grateful for your help. SUSANNE.

Ans. Yes, you really are underweight. You should weigh 147. But I am of the opinion that that is a very generous estimate, especially for someone who is naturally slender. If you do not look too thin, and if you feel well, do not make any effort to gain any more weight. The tall, slender girl is in style right now anyway. Your hair is very easily fixed in a becoming manner, and if you follow my instructions carefully, I think you will agree with me. Wash and dry in your usual manner, providing your usual manner is a good one. Dry with a light rotary movement of the finger tips all over the scalp, keeping the hair in constant motion. If you cannot afford a marcel, you can get a good effect yourself in this manner. Take a small strand of hair, and twist it tightly, then wrap it around a straight curling iron. Do not use the clamp on the curling iron. Do this with all your hair, and when you are through you will have an abundance of "corkscrew curls." Be sure you wrap all of the hair, down to the end, not just the part next to the head. Comb and brush it out until the curls are just enough of a wave to suit you. Part it on the left side, and put a loosely back over the head. The ends will probably just reach the back. Short bangs, cut in front, will also aid this style which is really very simple. You should not have to curl more than once a week. Be sure and wear a hair net. The hair should also be washed once a week. Trainers, usually the new style knickerbockers, with golf hose, and low heeled shoes, are quite correct for a girl to play golf in.

His Exercises, Without Clothes, Shocked Neighbors, Won $50 Fine

(International News Service.) KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 12.—Callisthenes staged by Mike Starplino, physical culturist, a la Adam, were not appreciated by his neighbors. As a result Mike worked out a $50 fine imposed by Judge Edward J. Fleming in Municipal court. Several witnesses residing in the vicinity of Starplino's home testified that his muscle exercising exhibitions were too revealing. "It was terrible," one woman testified. "Every morning and every evening he would stand before an open window and shimmy. His exhibitions were revolting." "I wasn't shimmying," interrupted Starplino. I was practicing muscle exercise that has enabled me to gain weight." "And judge," shrieked another woman, "he wouldn't have any clothes on, as a flapper—nothing but a mighty short pair of white pants." "Trunks," corrected Starplino. "They're just narrow minded." Detectives from a South Side station testified that as a result of complaints from the callisthenic enthusiasts' neighbors they watched his house for more than two months. They declared that when they arrested him he was clad in his undies and was practicing his gymnastic stunts.

Versatile Oyster Changes Sex

So often He Worries Scientists

(International News Service.) LONDON, Sept. 12.—Although an oyster's existence is usually a shut-in one, yet there is one oyster, hailing from the River Itchen, near Colchester, England, who has seen much of life. He has changed his sex three times in the past 12 months. This fact is vouched for by Dr. J. H. Orton, a well-known scientist at West Mersea. He found a male oyster in June, 1921, and gave it the pet name of Oliver, being, of course, unaware of the curious twist in the creature's nature. Young Oliver, according to a letter written by Dr. Orton to the British Medical Journal, was a happy, contented, affectionate little bivalve until July 3, 1922. On that day Dr. Orton found that Oliver had presented him with thousands of young oyster children. Oliver's name was immediately changed to Olivette but a fortnight later it was found that he or she had again joined the male sex. That within 12 months Oliver, or Olivette, according to which he or she may be to-day, has had three changes of sex. Oliver is now taking a vacation in the Marine Biological Laboratory at Plymouth, where numbers of scientific men sit at his feet, and in order to avoid confusion, he is now commonly addressed as "Oily."

Dr. Orton thinks that the sex change is due to changes in the environment and that Oily can please himself whether he will be a male or a female. He hopes to learn a lot more yet about his oyster. But Oily sits tight and says nothing.

BRITISH FREIGHTER ON FIRE HEADS FOR COLON

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 12.—The British freighter, Roman Prince, from Antwerp to San Francisco, is reported to be on fire. The ship was off Colon at the canal zone, and wireless messages stated she was makoff for that port, expecting to reach there tonight.

State Press Comment

CONGRESS WET OR DRY? What happened to be the sky falling in the straw vote on prohibition taken by the Literary Digest is found to be but a meteor shower. Up to September 1, in 25 states 227 congressmen have been nominated. Of the total 247 are dry and 22 wet. In district electing new candidates for Congress the majority are dry. Not a dry state has thus far been lost, and a total of two congressmen have been added to the wet list. Forty-six out of the 45 states ratified the Eighteenth amendment. There seems to be no probability that any one of these states will return a congressional representation that will favor any change in the prohibitory law. There is no reason why any congressman should vote for any modification of the law, if governed by the facts regarding the success of

Five Independents File For Office

SALEM, Sept. 3.—Five other independent candidates, besides Charles Hall, have filed with the secretary of state's office up to today, the last day on which certificates of nomination for independent candidates may be filed. These are T. M. Kerrigan, independent candidate for public service commissioner to succeed himself; F. T. Johns, industrial labor party candidate for congress from the third district, and Anders D. Burchlund, A. A. Hoglund and J. R. Nasholin, industrial labor party candidates for state representatives from Multnomah county.

A certificate of nomination filed for C. V. Soderwick as the industrial labor party candidate for county commissioner of Multnomah county was sent back for corrections and has not yet been returned.

Candidates who desire to file by individual petitions have until September 25 to register their intentions. Only one such petition has as yet made its appearance here—that of George I. Storey, a candidate for circuit judge for Clackamas county, and this was returned because of lack of sufficient signatures.

Individual Farms May Show Exhibits

SALEM, Sept. 2.—The individual farm exhibit at the state fair promises to be an interesting feature. Articles entered in this class will not be allowed to compete for premiums in other classes. All exhibits will be made up from the products of individual farms, displays to be grown by the exhibitor. The amount of money offered in this division is to be divided pro rata, according to the number of points scored out of a possible 100. The same will be determined by a scale established on garden products, orchard products, fruit products, dairy products, grain (threshed), number of varieties, arrangement and decoration and miscellaneous products.

The individual farm exhibit is to be divided into two classes, eastern and western Oregon. The latter will comprise Clatsop, Tillamook, Lincoln, Coos, Curry, Columbia, Multnomah, Clackamas, Washington, Yamhill, Polk, Linn, Benton, Douglas, Jackson, and Josephine counties. The remaining district shall comprise Clatsop, Sherman, Baker, Union, Willamette, Klamath, Lake, Harney, Grant, Wasco, Malheur, Hood River, Crook and Wheeler counties. The exhibit will be held at the Oregon State Fair grounds, Salem, Sept. 25-30. The exhibit will be held at the Oregon State Fair grounds, Salem, Sept. 25-30. The exhibit will be held at the Oregon State Fair grounds, Salem, Sept. 25-30.

In the horticultural exhibit which will be housed in the agricultural building, cash premiums will be awarded for best specimens of apples, pears, peaches, plums, quinces, grapes, and Oregon-grown nuts. Special ribbons will be given for new varieties and seedlings.

Adding color and attractiveness to the first floor of this building will be the floral display, which as last year will be under the supervision of F. A. Van Kirk, Portland. Both the professional and amateur will be given a place in this show. Cash prizes as well as the Pomocory, Irwin, Griffith and Gardner & Keene cups will be awarded in the different classifications.

The amateur exhibit now promises to be an interesting part of the floral show, to be conducted under the supervision of the head of the floral department.

THAT BAD BACK

Do you have a dull, steady ache in the small of the back—sharp, stabbing twinges when stooping or lifting—distressing urinary disorders? For bad back and weakened kidneys Roseburg residents recommend Dashi's Kidney Pills. Read this Roseburg statement.

Mrs. M. A. Slaughter, 265 W. 1st Ave. says: "I know the value of Dashi's Kidney Pills and am glad to recommend them. There is nothing better for kidney complaint than Dashi's. I had severe backaches and a soreness over my kidneys that made it hard for me to do any stooping or lifting and my kidneys didn't act right. Dashi's Kidney Pills soon relieved these ailments and strengthened my back and kidneys."
