Five Innings Featureless

The game started at 11:05 o'clock Pacific coast time. The first five innings were almost without a feature, the Giants doing the greater part of the hitting off Joe Bush, the Yanks pitcher and the Yanks manager to do little with Nehf, who was twirling for the Giants.

The first score came in the sixth inning when Witt tripled, but was out on fielder's choice when Dugan hit to Bancroft. Ruth singled, scoring Dugan.

Again in the Seventh.

The Yanks scored again in the 7th inning when Meusel singled, Nehf threw wild to catch Schang, Meusel taking third and Schang advancing to second. Meusel scored on Scott's sacrifice fly.

YANKS' MANAGER NOT POPULAR WITH FANS

By HENRY L. PARRELL
 (By United Press.)

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—Miller Huggins, the little pilot of the Yankees, is the greatest manager in baseball—for getting the razzberry.

Huggins gave New York its first American League pennant last season and he was greeted with complimentary reminders that any sap of a manager could have won a pennant with that tea.

He was rewarded this year with the kind words that all his pitchers and star players he should have won the pennant by 12 or 13 games.

If the Yankee manager allowed the knooks to get under his skin, he would be out of baseball, because he has been treated to nothing but criticism since he took charge of a misfit team and built it up into a pennant winner.

Being of a retiring disposition, Huggins never has appealed to the crowd in New York, where the more belligerent type is favored. He has always gone his way quietly and it seems that he has achieved enough in New York to be recognized as a good manager.

Huggins was born in Cincinnati, Ohio, March 27, 1880 and he got his big league start with the Reds in 1903 after he had spent a season in the American Association with the St. Paul club. He played second base for the Reds until 1910, when he was sold to St. Louis Cardinals. When Roger Bresnahan was relieved of the management, Huggins was named in his place in 1912. When Colonel Ruppert and Huston bought the Yankees from John Johnson, president of the league recommended Huggins for manager and he was transferred out of the league.

The Yankee leader is regarded as a

BRIDGE TO BE BUILT AT OLD SITE

City and County Virtually Agree to Rebuild Old Alexander Bridge.

ARGUMENTS HEATED
 Taylor Endeavors to Inject His Proposed Site into the Conference But Is Told That He Is Not Concerned.

At a late hour this afternoon a conference between the city council and the county court ended in an agreement that the two bodies will enter into a 50-50 agreement for the construction of a bridge to Umpqua Park Addition, at the site of the old Alexander Bridge. The city sprung a bombshell on the conference when it reversed its recent decision and came before the court with a proposition to build at the site of the old Alexander bridge.

Mayor Hamilton stated that the council has considered the matter carefully from all angles and has finally reached the agreement that either an undergrade or overgrade crossing and a bridge at the old Alexander site is the most feasible project and that although it may be a little more expensive that it will prove the best in the long run.

Stanley Taylor made a lengthy appeal for his proposed site which is only a short distance upstream from the old site, and although it was inflamed quite plainly that he was out of order and was finally told that he was not a party to the transaction he continued to inject his proposition into the discussion and several heated arguments occurred.

The city, through Mayor Hamilton, flatly stated that it will not cooperate in the construction of a road along Mr. Nebo. The expensive part of the construction would be within the city limits, the mayor stated, and the city would receive no park as it will when the bridge is finished. The only proposition the city would entertain would be a bridge either at the Fullerton street site or at the old site.

Mayor Hamilton said, and the council has unanimously expressed itself in favor of the upper bridge.

Taylor's project is entirely outside of the city limits and consequently cannot be considered by the city, it was shown.

Taylor endeavored to show that his proposal could be carried out and that the residents of Umpqua Park Addition prefer his site and was flatly informed by Attorney Neuner that the matter is one to be settled between the city and the county and that the parties he claims to represent are not concerned in the matter aside from the service which the bridge will render.

PEACE IN NEAR EAST AT HAND

Allied Generals and Turkish Commander Completing Preliminary Terms.

WILL SIGN A PROTOCOL
 Greece Bitterly Opposed to Giving Part of Thrace to Turks—One report Says They Are Preparing For Trouble.

(By United Press.)
 ATHENS, Oct. 4.—Official communique from Mudania tonight announced an agreement on protocol admitting the Turk back to Europe. The Ankara government was assigned eastern Thrace. Constantinople is to be under Allied-Kemalist control.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 4.—(By United Press.)—The allies and Turks meeting at Mudania in a secret peace parley agreed to a majority of the protocol terms prefacing the armistice pact, according to an official communique issued this afternoon. The settlement will be announced tonight unless the Greek representatives, arriving late, acquiesce without prolonged discussion. The Ankara government is reported to have accepted the principles of the allied note sent last week.

Fresh orders were given the Turkish troops to avoid conflicts with the allied and Greek forces.

Representatives of both sides of the Mudania parley are conciliatory. Kemal himself will attend the next conference when the general peace terms are to be settled. The date has not been definitely set.

GIANTS TOTING KICK FOR PINCH

Always Come Through In the Time of Stress With Wallop, Observes Walsh.

SAID JUST A "SLEEPER"
 Really Fighting Outfit When Elusive Pennant Seems to Be Fleeting—Staged a Comeback—Trounced the Famous Pirates.

By DAVIS J. WALSH,
 (International News Service Staff Correspondent.)

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—Glancing back along the trail laid bare by the 1922 pennant race in the National League, the impression is gained that the Giants, while inconsistent, always had the punch whenever it was needed. They might be a bad world series bet, devoid of pitching as they are, but the records prove them to be a fighting outfit in a pinch, and the post-season classic is just one pinch after another.

In other words, the worthy Mr. McGraw may be pulling a "sleeper" for the benefit of the favored Yankees.

If so he has succeeded admirably in convincing everyone that the Giants cannot hope to win unless they can bring Altt Nehf and Jess Barnes to the series in top form. Further, he has allowed the impression to become general that Bancroft is almost criminally careless in his fielding and that Groh plays third base after the most approved tangle-foot manner.

Perhaps so; perhaps not. The Giant pitching staff has been a terrible thing for some months, and the left side of the infield has made damaging errors of commission and omission from time to time, but that hasn't prevented the club from playing foot-proof baseball in the big moments of the race. Whenever actually threatened the Giants showed where the balance of power lay.

Thrice Lost Lead

Consider their record for the year. They were out of the lead three times to-wit: July 22 for one day, August 4 for one day and August 9 for three days. They were threatened often, however, in spite of getting away running by winning 16 of their first 29 games.

Starting through the West, they won two straight from the Cardinals then dropped two and fell into a protracted slump. By June 3 only a whisper separated them from Pittsburgh, and had the Pirates won that day they would have gone to the pace. But the Pirates were beaten. The Giants, seemingly, were through with trifling.

They came back to the Polo grounds and knocked off the Cubs, Reds and Pirates in a row, starting West again behind a five-game lead. Again they waxed indifferent, and by the time they reached St. Louis, first place was the stake. They managed to get an even break; lost the lead in Cincinnati July 22, but were back the following day and trampled into the Polo Grounds to meet the

ARMISTICE DAY CELEBRATION TO BE BEST THAT CITY HAS KNOWN; PLANS ADOPTED

Outline For Observance of Holiday Adopted at Meeting of the Umpqua Post of the American Legion Last Night—Committee Reports Excellent Progress.

The biggest and best Armistice day celebration ever held in Roseburg, is assured as a result of the meeting of Umpqua Post of the American Legion, last night, at which time plans were adopted for the celebration to be given on November 11. At the present time the plans are only roughly shaped, but enough has been outlined to assure the citizens of Douglas county that it will be the biggest day Roseburg has had for many years. Other details will be worked out later and other attractions added, but the main features of the day are already being arranged and a good time is assured to all.

The day will start off with a monster parade, which is being planned by Attorney Guy Gordon. All of the fraternal orders of the city are arranging to enter decorated automobiles, while many of them will have their membership in line. A number of unique and humorous stunts will be introduced in this parade which will be led by the Douglas County Concert band.

It is urged that all ex-service men of the county participate in this parade. Uniforms do not matter, although it is desired that as many as possible wear uniforms. The committee is planning to issue either a badge or a cap to every ex-service man, whether a legionnaire or not, and if the old uniform is too small or too badly moth-eaten to be worn, the civies will do as well. The committee is extremely anxious that there be a good showing made.

Immediately following the parade there will be a patriotic meeting at the armory. Efforts are being made to address this gathering and in the event he cannot be obtained, some equally prominent speaker will be brought to Roseburg.

At noon the Legion is preparing to serve a free banquet to all ex-service men of the county. This feature is expected to develop a better get-together spirit and will bring back the comradery of war days.

From 1 o'clock on, the afternoon will be turned over to the high-school students who will hold a rally on the streets prior to the football game at Laurelwood field between the Roseburg high-school and the Grants Pass high-school. This is expected to be a hotly-contested game and will bring out a big crowd. The banquet and afternoon sports are in charge of Dr. E. B. Stewart.

At 5 o'clock the ceremony of Retreat, the lowering of the flag, will take place in front of the Federal building.

In the evening a 8 o'clock will be given a concert and short program at the armory preceding the big dance which will continue until midnight. These arrangements are in the hands of Attorney Frank Neuner.

Each of the members of the main committee have authority to select assistants and to appoint subsidiary committees to handle various details in connection with the program. At the present time the committee is working hard, and within a few days
