Apple "Killed" by Lightning Is Revived by Electrical Current

(International News Service.)
CINCINNATI, Ohio, Oct. 10.—That an apple can resuscitate as well as the belief voiced by Clarence here. The apple tree was killed by lightning. Then it was restored to electrical current. The tree, which stands near the site of attracting scores of curators. It is literally covered with blossoms and bears twenty apples. The tree was hit near the top by lightning. Immediately the apples fell to the ground, while the tree died, apparently. Chris Brown opened a hole in the tree. While wiring the store, he encircled the tree with wire. Nichols was ready to cut down for fuel when he noticed the limbs were turning green and buds were popping out from the branches.

Frosts, however, are expected to destroy the tree's second crop of apples this year. Horticulturalists from all sections of Northern Ohio are studying this latest phenomena.

White-of-Egg Calumet a Vital Element Most Baking Powders Lack

Don't use a leavener that does not contain white-of-egg. When you do you take chances—you run the risk of spoiling your bakings.

CALUMET

The Economy BAKING POWDER

contains a small amount of white-of-egg. This makes it possible for representatives of the company to test it frequently for leavening strength—right on the dealer's counter. Nothing but absolutely fresh stock is permitted to remain on the dealers' shelves. It must always be up to the high Calumet standard.

Remember the white-of-egg in Calumet protects the success of your bakings. It is the economical positive bake-day aid and its sale is 2 1/2 times as much as that of any other brand.

A pound can of Calumet contains full 16 ounces. Some baking powders come in 12 ounce instead of 16 ounce cans. Be sure you get a pound when you want it.

GLENBROOK FARMS CLOSES YEAR'S WORK

News-Review Representative Inspects Methods Handling and Drying Prunes.

FAN DRYER IN USE

Lack of Efficient Help Has Been a Big Drawback in Handling This Year's Output of Fruit—Quality Little Below Standard.

A visit to the Glenbrook Farms Holdings, managed by C. R. Shipman, and located in the southern part of the Umpqua valley, in that fertile section adjoining the city of Hiddle to the south, reveals one of the most productive fruit centers in the county. Here, aside from the big 2200-acre tract held by the Glenbrook concern, are numerous other substantial dividend-paying fruit tracts. In fact, this section of the county has long been noted for its excellent soil, and those who make their home in the southern end of the Umpqua valley are mighty thrifty and progressive set of farmers.

As the writer's visit was limited, only sufficient time was had to visit and inspect the Glenbrook's property, which has been brought up to a high standard of cultivation by the manager, C. R. Shipman. The prune season was just closing and the big fan drier received its last consignment Monday. The drying methods employed at this plant differ to that carried on in many other orchards in the county. The big prune drier is of the "fan" variety and is modern in every respect, the fruit handled quickly and cured in the best possible manner. The fan drier is the result of Mr. Shipman's study of the best and most efficient way of drying prunes, and the drier was built and installed under his personal supervision. The system differs from the ordinary method of drying prunes, the circulating hot air method being used. A large fan controls the air which keeps up a continuous circulation of high pressure and has proven very successful since the plant was installed, and has also been adopted by a number of other big prune orchards in the county owing to its efficiency from a proper drying standpoint, and the rapidity with which the fruit is handled. The drier has a capacity of 800 bu. of fruit every 24 hours.

The output at the Glenbrook farms this season, while the prunes were not fully up to the standard in size, as has been the case throughout the prune belt this year, shows up well, and a big crop was harvested, and it is now ready for shipment to foreign markets. The discouraging difficulty with this year's prune season was the lack of sufficient help to harvest the crop, it being next to impossible, Mr. Shipman states, to obtain steady and efficient help. A like condition has prevailed in many parts of the county during the height of the prune harvest, and growers have been disappointed by their inability to get sufficient help at the proper period to insure best results which has not only been of great inconvenience but has been a factor and drawback to harvesting the entire crop in many orchards, thousands of pounds of the fruit having been left on the ground owing to the lack of help.

The Glenbrook company has 700 acres planted to prunes and 600 acres of the finest prune land in the county embodied in this tract will soon be set to the same variety of fruit. The company also has a commercial apple orchard of some 20 acres and has given considerable space to the stock and hog industry during the last few years.

A large force of men is employed on the farm, the prune drier alone requiring 16 hands during the drying season. Mr. Shipman has the entire superintendency of the place, and gives his full time to the cultivation of the orchard tracts and other industries on the place. The location of the Glenbrook holdings are ideal, and the lay of the land perfect for the use to which it has been put. The farming equipment, housing facilities for employes and the general conduct of the farms is modern in every respect.

Plans and materials are already at hand for the erection of a modern new home on the place to be occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Shipman. This will be of modern architecture and will be built with every convenience for the occupants. An excellent water supply, taken from a large concrete reservoir adjoining the property gives fine service, not only for household purposes, but in the way of fire protection, as well.
