Alabama Cows Get "Corned" on Mash; Two of Three Are Dead

International News Service.)
BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Oct. 30.—Increasing popularity of the mash variety of Alabama "moon" was effectively demonstrated in the hearing of a case in Judge Smith's division of the Circuit here. Evidence adduced also pointed out the fact that a new field was being opened up for the activities of the moon forces.

By 'extract of corn,' according to testimony offered, is now finding its way among the bovine species. The ordinary milk cows belonging to Henry Culp, of Shaden Mountain, as usual one morning for their customary pasturage. With the shades of evening two of them returned home in a deplorably intoxicated condition, one of them dying later of acute alcoholism.

Investigators found the third member of the bovine booze party, dead, close by an illicit still and a quantity of "mash."

An interesting question in connection with the case—which has not yet been answered—is:

Did the lone, surviving cow yield milk punch instead of the straight lactic acid fluid for the first few days immediately succeeding her "jag"?

The mills, shops and packing plants, with the many jobs they offer, are too great a temptation for them to keep at their books. The boy or girl who wants an education can get it these days. War Vets Make Claims to Govt.

War veterans of Roseburg took advantage of the recent visit of W. F. Loomis, special contact representative of the U. S. veterans' Bureau, who spent two days interviewing former service men of this vicinity relative to their disabilities and telling them offers of the government relative to compensation, vocational training, hospitalization and war risk insurance. Mr. Loomis interviewed 15 former service people and of this number one filed claims for federal compensation, he announced just before his departure.

Veterans who failed to meet the government representative and believe that they have just claims against the government should get in touch with the Portland office of the Veterans' Bureau by letter.

Upon leaving this community Mr. Loomis urged every war veteran who has allowed his government insurance to lapse to have it reinstated immediately.

"War veterans of the Pacific Northwest are carrying approximately $150,000,000 of reinstated war risk insurance," stated Mr. Loomis. "During one week's campaign recently nearly $1,500,000 in government insurance was either renewed or converted into life endowment policies. However, there are still thousands of former service men in this district who have failed so far to take advantage of this splendid opportunity to secure this inexpensive and highly protective insurance. The 1922 dividend to veterans amounts to $1,750,000. This insurance is no money market for the government but rather a reward to the veteran on the part of the country. Lapsed insurance may be reinstated by payment of two months premium.

Project training, or giving the war veteran a start on his own land, a new way of rehabilitation, is proving very popular among former service men this summer and promises to be one of the most successful means of making injured war veterans self-supporting, the government agent stated.

"A total of more than 200 veterans in this district have already taken up work on the national estate agency work on their own projects," stated Mr. Loomis. "Over 700 ex-service people are training to follow agricultural pursuits. Compensation of $80 and $100 plus allowances for dependents paid project trainees assist them materially in paying for their land and establishing themselves on small farms. Training of this kind is especially fitted for middle aged people, veterans with little education and men with large families.

Mr. Loomis announced a new move on the part of the Veterans' Bureau to dignify vocational courses under the government and help the trainee who has finished his course secure employment. Diplomas or certificates of graduation will be issued to these disabled veterans who worked so earnestly for two or three years. In many instances, to learn a new vocation, he stated.

These certificates will be signed by national and district officials of the Bureau and are to be presented to the rehabilitated trainees through branch offices of the government agency. Nearly 1,000 veterans rehabilitated in this district since the war will receive these diplomas as well as those who will complete the various courses in the future. These men are especially trained under government supervision.

There are many rehabilitated men unemployed at the present time and employers are urged to give them first opportunity for new openings.

ADHESIVE TAPE USED IN PLACE OF CORSETS

EUGENE, Ore., Oct. 31.—(U. P.)—

Corsets, they say, are coming back into style. Women are wearing 'em again, and—his!—they say some men are also. Factories are burning the midnight oil to stay the nation back to normalcy.

Co-eds here—that is, some of 'em—give the old idea the merry 'blat! They'll not wear 'em, no matter what Dame Fashion says, especially when adhesive tape is just as good.

Eugene modistes are authority for the report that co-eds are getting around the corset edict, which goes with the present day gowns, it is said, by using the tape in a certain way—that is, sticking it—Anyhow the play here is a hit beyond the male reporter, but that's how it's done.

"Oh yes," sighs Miss Co-ed, "I guess we'll stick to the present styles."

It looks that way—if the modistes have the dope straight.
