BUILDING UP RETAIL TRADE.

If merchants and their helpers were not a pretty good natured class of people, whose rough edges have been worn away by much contact with their home folks, they would have reason to get irritated at times. There are some people who will send off or go to distant cities and make important purchases of clothing and house furnishings. Then when they find that they want some little trifling article in a hurry, they will rush down to the home stores and the men who own and operate them are a treblame the store if it does not have precisely what they want. They expect these stores to keep stocked up all the time on a wide variety of goods, yet they will not help supply the all around patronage which is the only basis for keeping such a general stock. It is a tremendous convenience and advantage to have a fine group of retail stores in a town. Such establishments connect a community with sources of supply that deal all over the world. A good store supplies the comforts and essentials of civilization, and it is a wonderful benefit to have it close by where you can call on its service at any moment ,and get its supplies and its advice. But people can not expect to have the kind of stores their community is entitled to on the basis of its population and wealth, if they are constantly running off to other places to buy goods. Unless they give their patronage to their home stores, the home stores can not serve them efficiently. It is well to remember that the home stores and the men who ow nand operate them are a tremendous force working all the time to provide this community with all forms of modern equipment, to improve its civic advantages and to advance its prosperity. When you support them, you back up and help your community.

Social workers say that one cause of the money difficulties seen in some families, is that the children fail to make a fair return to their parents for all they have received. There are indolent and grown up young people who accept support from parents who are hard up, even though these young folks have not acquired family ties of their own. There are widows who get little or no help from adult and able-bodied sons, who have no dependents of their own. Such ungrateful fellows may refuse to pay any more for their board than will cover the bare cost of the food, and sometimes they sponge on parents without paying anything at all. Their mothers may be so afraid of offending them and driving them away from home and into bad courses that they put up with their neglect. Many hard hearted children make little return for the wealth of affection and service they have received.

The growth of cities and the tendency of rich and poor to draw away from each other form lines of division through American social life, creating class feeling and making it difficult to get unity of action. Social bitterness grows in such an atmosphere and revolutionists who prate about an overturn find willing listeners. F. J. Stimson, former ambassador to Argentine, remarked in an address recently, that in some ways the countries of South America have solved such social problems better than we have. In Buenos Ayres, he said, there is not a poor family that is not in direct touch with some rich family. "I never called their attention to a case of distress," he said, "without a remedy being forthcoming in 10 minutes or less." If worthy people in trouble found equally quick relief in this land, a great deal of bitterness would disappear.

Every little while some alleged scientist "unfolds the secret of long life," and very many people, perhaps, really believe that eventually the long sought goal will be discovered and men thereby enabled to live unnumbered years. Length of life, however, is not the purpose an all wise Creator had in mind, but rather a profitable life. And when one lives temperately in all things, becoming a blessing to those about him and a real help in bettering conditions in uplift work, he will be doing what is expected of him. Not only that, but the very fact of his temperate habits will give him a rightful claim upon the "four score years" promised to those whose strength is not impaired by wrong conceptions of life.

REDS ARE TOLD TO MOVE TO OREGON

CHICAGO, Nov. 16.—The I. W. W. national convention today ordered pickets stationed at the doors of employment agencies in many cities where workers are being recruited to replace marine transport workers on the docks at Portland and Astoria, Ore., San Pedro and San Francisco, Cal., Philadelphia, Pa., and Mobile, Ala.

The convention also decided to send a corps of speakers into the I. W. W. camps in Oregon, Washington and California. The organization recently has called two strikes in the latter state, one on the Hetchy Hetchy aqueduct project and the other on the Southern California Edison power plant.

"Ji Haglund of Butte, Mont., retiring chairman of the national executive committee, in a speech at the morning session, advocated scrapping all "soulless high-brow" books on the Marxian doctrines in favor of literature devoted to "immediate action and concrete problems." No action was taken, although several delegates spoke in favor of that plan.

HOWDY FOLKS—

Hays may improve the movies in some way, but the comedies appear to have reached the top notch in bathing beauties.

Many a man pretends to have a cool head when all he has is cold feet.

The chap with a note due is a promise sorry man.

A modern loving son is one who lets his father have the auto once in a while.

It's hard to determine which is the most dangerpus, an "empty" gun or a "loaded" auto driver.

A man's trousers are a better friend to him than his wife—anyway there's a lot of places he can go without his wife.

"Folks dat we don't know, but jes' hear about," said Uncle Eben, "allus seems a heap better or a heap wuss dan whut dey is."

HELL.

"There is no hell," says Conan Doyle;
"There is," says Henry Myers,
Interviewed in his Sunday clothes
While changing two flat tires.

"There is no hell," says Conan Doyle;
"There is," says William Lugs,
Interviewed in his back yard
Where he was beating rugs.

"There is no hell," says Conan Doyle;
"There is," says Ellis Kent,
Whose house burned down a year ago,
Since when he's paying rent.

"There is no hell," says Conan Doyle;
"There is," says Orville Lake,
Who coughs up 30 cents a pound
When purchasing round steak.

"There is no hell," says Conan Doyle;
"There is," says Nellie Dare,
Who unbeknown to ma and pa
Just lately bobbed her hair.

"There is no hell," Bill White agreed,
And so did Norman Howe,
But their opinion has been switched,
They both are married now.

Many a man with two spare tires has no spare cash.

Motion is the law of life but moving is different.

In New York a man burned his wife's clothes to keep her from running around. No one noticed the difference.

Return of the prodigal skirt sure kills the fatted calf.

Some men become loafers because they are too light for heavy work and too heavy for light work.

HOT TUNES.

She stopped by the side of an old peanut roaster,
This very deaf lady, with pride,
"No, sir," she said firmly, after looking it over,
"I'll give you no money for tunes I can't hear,
And besides, something's burning inside!"

Roseburg Optimist (to pessimist)—"You are so pessimistic that you look in the death column for your name.

Free air at the filling stations and hot air in other places are about the only free things one gets these days.

Teacher (to girl in front seat)—"You always have dirty hands."

Pupil in front seat—"You think my hands are dirty; you ought to look at the girl's behind.

"Go slow—Chickens ahead," signs have been put up along the roads in New York state. Autoists are puzzled to know whether they are to slow up to keep from running over feathered fowls or to permit swell dressed ones to hop on the running boards.

SOMETHING TO WORRY ABOUT.

We have never been able to figure out what a savage with a ring in his nose does when he has a cold in his head.

The smaller the hole a man gets into the louder he howls.

Methinks I hear a sound so fine,
there is nothing 'twixt it and silence,
And yet a sound.
Either an adenoidal molecule trying to talk or an atom striving to get its collar button out from under the bureau.

Bulgin Sued by Texas Oil Magnate

FORT WORTH, Texas, Nov. 16.—Rev. E. J. Bulgin, evangelist, giving his residence as Portland, Ore., was sued for $100,000 Wednesday in district court at Eastland by Colonel D. Gordon, one of the best known oil operators in the Texas fields. Defamation of character is alleged.

The suit alleges that in the presence of 2000 persons last Thursday, Dr. Bulgin, from the pulpit, denounced the part that Gordon played in the adoption of a resolution in a meeting of ex-service men asking that the Ku Klux Klan not parade on Armistice day. The resolution adopted also criticized the klan.

According to Gordon's petition, Bulgin referred to Gordon as that "low-down, pug-nosed, bootlegging German-Jew," and applied other harsh epithets to him.

Gordon was in the United States army 19 years and served as an officer during the World war. Bulgin has been holding revivals in the oil fields for two months.

Boys Arrested Here Are Found Guilty

Roy Cooper, alias Jack Kennedy, and Claude Ferrand, alias Lee Confrey, were scheduled to be sentenced in the federal court in Portland today for violation of the federal motor vehicle theft act. Cooper and Farrand were arrested in Yoncalla ,in company with Ruth and Norma Grey, aged 14 and 16 years.

Cooper and Farrand, with the two girls, left Los Angeles in a stolen car. When they reached Roseburg they were broke and one of the girls started out to pawn a fur neckpiece. She was able to raise 50 cents with which they bought food and they slept out in the car over night. The next morning while the girl was on the street again she was picked up by the juvenile officer, Miss Pitchford. The boys, taking the other girl, immediately skipped out of Roseburg, money being furnished them by a local man who started out with them.

Reaching Sutherlin they "ditched" the girl and went on alone but were arrested at Yoncalla and brought back to Roseburg. They were taken to Portland for trial and were found guilty, Miss Pitchford and Dave Shambrook of this city being called as witnesses. The girls have been held as witnesses but will be sent back to their father who is residing in Cleveland, Ohio. They had been left with a family in Los Angeles.

Reap the Reward of Perfect Health

Good Looks Follow Good Health

Fresno, Calif.— It is over twenty years ago since I first heard of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and Golden Medical Discovery. It was after motherhood and I was simply a wreck. My strength was all gone. I never left my room and rarely left my bed for six months. This was my condition when I heard of Dr. Pierce's medicines. For several months I almost lived on the Favorite Prescription and the Golden Medical Discovery. I gradually gained in strength and spirits. To the healing and strength-giving qualities of these remedies, I am sure I owe my life and present good health. It is a pleasure for me to give this endorsement and express my gratitude for the good I have received." —Mrs. L. J. Foote, 2415 Merced St.

Dictionary Long Time In Making.

For three centuries some of the foremost literary men of France have been working at a book that is not yet completed, nor, presumably, ever will be. They are the forty "immortals" of the French academy, and the book is their French dictionary. The French academy, says the Mentor magazine, was founded early in the Seventeenth century by a group of young men who wished to purify and embellish the language. They undertook to publish a dictionary, a rhetoric, and a grammar. In 1694 the dictionary was published, but the first part of it was then already out of date, and needed revision. And, so it has gone ever since. Members are elected for life. They seek entrance and must visit each of the thirty-nine members in turn when seeking admission.

Mesopotamia Still Picturesque.

Mesopotamia, land of the Garden of Eden and Mt. Ararat, is just as much a picturesque region as when Cain and Abel were boys, but it is almost overshadowed by its historical setting, says a National Geographic society bulletin.

Along the Tigris river are boats which look more like tubs. They are made of wicker, from 5 to 10 feet in diameter, and are tarred to make them waterproof. They are called "goofas." Other water craft are rafts with blown-up goat skins attached to give them buoyancy.

This is a land of dates. There are date trees everywhere there are any trees at all. Every courtyard, the secluded scene of family life, has its date trees, and trees and cupolas form a quaint skyline.

The First Lesson.

"What is your attitude toward the unemployment situation?"

"One of hopeful expectancy," said Mr. Cobbles.

"How is that?"

"I believe when my boy has loafed a few months longer he'll quit admiring his college diploma, stam it down in the bottom of his trunk and go out to look for a regular job."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

His Plan.

"Them two kids of mine look so much alike," admitted an Arkansas father, indicating his twin sons, "that b'gung if I hain't got a notion to curve their initials on their shells, or do something that-a-way, so's I can tell t'other from which."—Kansas City Star.
