HOW TO BROADEN OUR INTERESTS.

An educator offers the interesting suggestion that Americans are becoming narrow and prejudiced because of the concentration of population in large communities. Or, it may be that it is not so much the tendency of people to live in cities and towns which is restricting our view so much as it is concentration of interests, or, to be still more exact, specialization. We go through the same work every day. Our applications are invaried. We arise at a certain time every morning, eat breakfast on schedule, leave home on schedule, and arrive at work on the dot. We have figured out to fine exactitude just how long each formality takes. We then perform the usual duties at the office or in the shop. We go to the same places for lunch, and generally eat the same food. In the evening we travel home on the same carline or over the same streets. After dinner we go through a regular social routine. Our entertainments, our social relaxations, our friendships, our employments are all standardized. We meet the same friends, who are mostly persons who think as we do. If we go to the other end of the town or the county, it is to meet persons who are like us, or find the same so-called diversion which we have in town. In our businesses or professions we have specialized, and our business or professional minds are specialized. We specialize in our friendships, our entertainments, our recreations. We specialize in our acquaintanceships. We specialize in our manners, in our habits, our interests. Society and business are complex, and because they are so we imagine that we are diversified in our ideas and broad in our views. We are living in a complex situation, and judge ourselves by the impression of our general environment. We think we are as big as the city or the town. To live in a big community is not broadening of itself. The very things which should liberalize us intellectually tend to confine vision to small compass, as we avoid the associations which should give us greater outlook. It is the diversification of intellectual interests and social contacts which broaden the view, and we can find this diversification anywhere. We can be hermits in the city or citizens of the universe in the country, or we can get the higher, wider vision in the city.

One of the great lacks of education has been the failure to hold young people in school long enough. Those who drop out prematurely are handicapped for life, and are not as useful to the community. Splendid work to remedy this condition has been done in Newark, New Jersey, by the Rotary Club. It is something that could be accomplished just as well in Roseburg. Their boys' work committee found that out of 1740 boys graduating from elementary schools, only 1327 entered high school. This committee sent a personal letter to each boy graduate of the grade schools, explaining why the club was anxious for him to complete his education. He was also invited to have an interview on the subject with some member of the club. Over 200 of these boys had interviews with the men of this club and many of them changed their plans and will take more education. Arrangements were made to find work for many who needed money. If such a plan could be worked out all over the country, it would make a tremendous difference in American citizenship.

It is pretty hard to pick out any one idea that is the central thought of American life. Perhaps the conviction that in the long run the people can be trusted to manage their own affairs, and that the evils of democracy will cure themselves in time, is our most characteristic thought. Such a faith enables people to accept election results that they may not like, with confidence and a feeling that our people will not go far wrong. The people sometimes make mistakes, but they do not go very far on any wrong road. If the men they put in power do not make good, they are quickly put out of office. In other countries things are different. In Russia the soviet government has not made good, but no way of getting it out of power can be seen, since it controls the army and holds office by main force. But our people cheerfully accept the principle of majority rule, confident that if the majority makes an error, it will see the bad results thereof and reverse its decision.

When congress resumes its work its members will be considerably perplexed by the conflicting demands made upon them. They may feel that the country has expressed considerable disapproval of their doings, but there will be a great divergence of opinion as to the particular things that the people want to have done. There is one bit of advice that could be handed out to all these men, and that is that they should do what they think is right and best and leave the consequences to the people. The men who are limping and whiffing all the time for fear they are not going to get re-elected, are not winning the popular esteem that is the only sure basis on which a successful political career can be created.

GOOD EVENING FOLKS—

Be it ever so humble
There's nuthin'
So durned difficult
As trying to get Back on the job
After a vacation of
A couple days.

Old Rip Van Winkle had it on the rest of us at that. He got out of buying Christmas presents for at least 20 years.

The peon pants craze has struck the state like a cyclone and we imagine the boys will be doing their hair up in ribbons the next thing.

Ye-ed, is now a member of the Hammer and Sledge Club, and if our readers fail to giggle at our gags it is because we have been branded as such. A scuffed-up humorist is usually as comical as a case of measles.

If this column is discontinued until after Thanksgiving it is because we've sold our typewriter to purchase a turkey.

The local janes are now wearing the new styles which consists of long dresses, dangling earrings, semi-bobbed hair and a gift of gab.

Since Kaiser Bill became entangled in the matrimonial net we haven't heard much from Castle Doorn and we hope his new frau will keep him subdued for some time to come.

OUR MAIL BOX.

Dear Ed. of Prunes: I am trying to think of something to give my wife for Xmas and can't decide between a smoking stand or a silk shirt. What would you suggest? A BENEDICT.

Dear Mr. Benedict: Take our advice and give her a check book with all the checks torn out.

Some people are so conceited. We saw a fellow today point down the street wearing a sweater with his name embroidered on the front of it. It read, "Harley Davidson."

Congress is in special session today and thus far no mention has been made of the late soldiers' bonus.

SHORTEST CONVERSATION YET RECORDED.
"Number please."

If we printed all the stuff in this column we've been told to print our readers would be placing a fly on our chest and singing, "Lead Kindly Light."

After conducting a series of researches we've discovered that a bed-bug can go 316 days without food. The grocery stores would starve to death if they depended on the purchases of the bedbugs.

"What did they do to you," said one of our readers today, commenting on the initiation and deprecation we went through while entering the sacred domain of Hammer and Sledge at O. A. C. "They damned near killed me," he muttered as we lifted a feeble finger and placed it lingeringly on a typewriter key.

OUR QUESTION BOX.

Dear Missus Pillsbury: Mama says I'm wrong to kiss men. I am beautiful and only 16 yrs. of age. At present the only man I kiss are my brothers. ORANGINA.

Dear Orangina: What lodge do you belong to?

The auto laws nowadays are so numerous that it's hardly possible for one to motor a block without being pinched. The other day Jess Hodges, one of the town cops, halted a motorist on the main drag.

"You're pinched for violating the auto laws," he said.

"Which one," inquired the driver.

"Dunno, but ye certainly hain't come all the way down Jackson street without bustin' one of 'em."

OUR GREATEST NEED.

What Roseburg needs is more councilmen with throat trouble.

When Longfellow wrote his "Bar-foot Boy," we'll bet he didn't have any idea we'd be writin' about "Bar-kneed girls."

HANDOUTS ACROSS THE WHEEL.

Kind-hearted old lady No. 41144 watched with amazement as the carload of specimens of tramp gobbled one of sister's dud doughnuts, progressing from the outside to the inside almost at one gulp.

"My goodness, you were hungry!" she exclaimed.

"Yes, yes, mum," explained Ragged Robin. "I usta to be a golfer and it's always been my ambition to make a hole in one."

"Ahah!" exclaimed a man on Cass street. "See a pin and pick it up, and all the day you'll have good luck," and he bent over to pick it up. He had half into the mud, his glasses dropped from his nose and smashed on the sidewalk. He burst three suspender buttons and tore the shirt-hole out of the neckband of his shirt.

Quite a commotion took place on the main street last week when two cars of a well-known make claimed the right of way.

Reedsport Mill

Sets Fine Record

REEDSPORT, Nov. 20.—What is thought to be a record of long standing and considerable consequence was made last Friday by the Reedsport Sash & Door company when this plant turned out, completely assembled, 492 four-by-eight garage doors complete for shipment.

Under the management of C. M. C. Johnson and H. C. Morris this concern has made a wonderful record in the past six months in getting out doors. The operations have been greatly handicapped from the lack of sufficient freight cars to handle the output of the mill and also through the want of first class material and adequate dry kiln service to furnish proper seasoning of lumber and material.

The Reedsport Sash & Door company is without a doubt one of the best equipped plants of its kind to be found in the United States and the daily output of finished product can verify such statements. The plant employs in the neighborhood of 70 men and has a weekly payroll aggregating about $3,000. Nearly the entire output of the mill is shipped to Chicago by box cars and distributed throughout the United States and the Orient from this point. Several new improvements are being made to the plant which will increase the output and will also add better working facilities for the men employed by the company.

S. A. Kendall Spends Day In Roseburg

S. A. Kendall, owner of a great deal of timber property in this county and a part owner in the Douglas County Light and Water Company, spent today in Roseburg, greeting friends and making an inspection of the company's holdings. He is on a short trip to the west and is returning tonight to Washington, D. C., where he is to resume his work in Congress. Mr. Kendall is a representative to Congress from the state of Pennsylvania and is an influential member of the lower house of this country. I. G. Broadway Is Sole Proprietor

In a deal concluded late last week the firm of Broadway & Hamilton was dissolved, the entire real property at the corner of Main and Washington streets, where the company has been doing business, and machinery, autos and tractors being taken over by Mr. I. G. Broadway, the senior member of the firm, who will hereafter be in sole charge. Mr. Hamilton expects to go to California for the present, although he has not determined as to just what he will engage in. During the few months that the firm of Broadway & Hamilton has been operating here, a fine business has been built up, and the new management expects to continue the policy that has been followed so successfully. Mr. Broadway will continue to act as distributor for the Gardiner automobile, and expects to add new features to the automobile accessory stock already carried. The garage and repair department will be looked after by competent mechanics.

GOVERNMENT BUILDS MILES OF ROADS

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—Ten thousand miles of federal-aid highways were completed in the last fiscal year, bringing the total mileage to 19,508, says an announcement of the bureau of public roads, department of agriculture. The year's work constituted a new record.

Texas leads in miles of completed federal-aid roads with 1,733 miles, while Minnesota is second with 1,416. Texas also is first in mileage under construction with 1,408 miles, and Nebraska is second with 970 miles. Iowa is third with 945 miles.

Texas and New York receive the largest allotments of federal aid, which is distributed on the basis of population and mileage of state highways.

Aside from the federal-state highway work, the bureau of roads has completed 1,352 miles of road in the national forests, and there are under construction 617 miles, the whole to open up regions of great natural beauty.

Based on available data, bureau officers state, the sum to be spent this year on highways will total $742,000,000. The figure includes federal-aid roads and projects built in addition by the states and smaller nonfederal units without the aid of federal funds.

More than 30 miles of bridges have been built under the federal-aid highway program since 1916. One of the largest of these bridges, that from Mandan to Bismarck, N. D., is more than three and one-half miles long and cost $1,428,000. Highway building over the country is to be given additional impetus, as the result of assistance offered by the federal government. The bureau of public roads has addressed a memorandum to the highway departments of all the state governments, offering them thousands of tons of explosives which were left over from the war. Vaseline is being distributed in large quantities, and road builders and highway engineers are urged to write to Washington, to obtain allotments of the explosives, for use both in construction and maintenance.
