State Chamber to Meet January 5

PORTLAND, Nov. 21.—(Special.)—January 5 has been selected as the date of the annual meeting of the Oregon State Chamber of Commerce, according to arrangements by state chamber officials today. Delegates from every commercial organization of the state will gather in Portland on that date for discussion of development plans and for the election of state chamber officers for the ensuing year.

The outstanding feature of the annual meeting will be consideration of the state-wide development program proposed by the Oregon Development Board. This program has already been adopted by the Portland Chamber of Commerce and the campaign to raise a fund of $200,000 for development and advertising purposes for a two-year period will be under way on December 5.

While this $200,000 development fund will be raised entirely among the business interests of Portland, it will be expended in advertising the resources of Oregon, investigating and strengthening existing marketing organizations, land settlement, and other state development work. As the state chamber has been designated as one of the organizations to undertake the actual work proposed under the development plan, it is expected that the coming annual meeting will be one of the most important in the history of the organization.

According to the by-laws of the state chamber, all commercial organizations in good standing are entitled to representation. Invitations are being sent throughout the state urging such organizations to appoint their delegates so that each section of the state will have a voice in the proceedings of the annual meeting.

VICTROLA MUST BE SOLD.

Fine large size Victrola and records will be sold at a positive bargain for cash. For full particulars and where it can be seen address Geo. C. Will, Salem, Ore.

MOVIES

"SO THIS IS ARIZONA" WITH A FOUR-STAR CAST IS TO BE SHOWN HERE

"So This Is Arizona"—anything can happen there. Talk about all-star casts—how a thick Franklyn Parnum, "Shorty" Hamilton, Al Hart, Genevieve Berte, and Francis Ford. Imagine a sergeant of infantry, who served overseas, escaping all the hell that was issued to our boys over there, and coming back home for recuperation and rest, to hit up with a series of incidents that would make Hades look like a convalescent ward. You just must see "So This Is Arizona."

Franklyn Parnum in the heat role of his career.

Francis Ford, who is responsible for "So This Is Arizona," is the same particular personage who made the "Universal serials" hop over the screen in lively fashion. This is his best feature.

Al Hart, "the admirable villain," shows some more wickedness in "So This Is Arizona." He's a real bad man, but you'll like him just the same. At Liberty theater tonight and Wednesday.

HOLT A FIGHTING PARSON

Jack Holt has the unusual role of a fighting parson in his latest Paramount picture, "While Satan Sleeps," which came to the Antlers theater Thursday and Friday. He is not actually a parson in the story, for he only assumes that disguise in order to safely spy out a little town which he and his pal plan to rob. But even at that, there is no disguise in the way he fights, especially when a dying girl shows him the error of his ways and another beautiful girl proves to him that she loves him for the man he appears to be. Tight lightning not only his enemies, but wages a terrific battle for the regeneration of his own soul. Which is all by way of saying that the picture is one long punch from beginning to end and that it teems with heart interest. Fried Brunette plays opposite the star.

JEAN PAIGE IS HEROINE OF FILM BASED ON NOVEL

Jean Paige, who has not been seen upon the screen since her memorable appearance as Jessie Gordon in "Black Beauty," based on the famous story by Anna Sewell, is the star of the big special production "The Prodigal Judge," which will be shown at the Antlers Theatre for the last time tonight. It was made under the direction of Edward Jose. The picture is based on the story by Vaughan Kestey which was the most talked of novel of the year when it was published some years ago, and has since maintained its place as one of the best American novels.

"The Prodigal Judge" is a story of the antebellum days with the locale mostly in Tennessee. While the novel takes its name from the Judge, Colonel Stoeum Price Tuberville, a livable hero, eloquent at every bar and palatial in his capacity of attorney and inventor, the interest centers mainly around the loves and fancies of the pretty heroine, Betty Malroy, and it is this character that Miss Paige portrays. She is admirably fitted into this story of the late '30's and early '40's, with the quaint and dainty costume of that period.

FAITH FIGURES IN NEW SCREEN STORY

Paul R. Hampton, producer of many successful screen productions, has scored again with a gripping comedy-drama, "Heart's Haven," a photoplay of the battle upward to happiness of two family groups, solely through the applied power of faith and will power, which is coming to The Liberty Theatre tonight. This is the first photoplay of its kind to be produced in the search of the big producers for "something different," which, at the same time, holds all of the elements of human interest.

"Heart's Haven" is declared by the critics who have seen the premiere showings to be one of the big films of the year. Although not metaphysical the story through out carries a theme of philosophy of mind and brings happiness or destruction to the characters, according to the manner in which they have responded to the mental urge of faith.

Coupled with the visualization of this subtle force, the photoplay portrays a story of intense interest of a typical group of Americans of today. It is the successful screening of this combination which holds up this producer's reputation for being one of the most progressive minds in the industry.
