MONEY AND MARKETS.

During the last thirty days, commercial and industrial activity has reflected the usual stimulation of fall and winter demand. Retail trade in the large cities is more active than at the corresponding period of last year, and seasonal acceleration is evident throughout the country. Uncertainty as to the volume of purchases by the farmers of the grain and livestock states has not been dispelled, however. Wholesale trade has been good throughout the current period. Stocks of many kinds of goods in the hands both of wholesale and retail dealers are light, but neither this fact nor threats of higher prices have been sufficient to induce buyers to make substantial forward purchases. The conservatism shown justifies the belief that the catastrophe of 1920 has not been forgotten.

Total car loadings and loadings of merchandise and of less than carload lots are practically at the record levels established in 1920. Despite car shortage, especially for coal and for the movement of farm products, the railroads are handling freight remarkably well. Coal has been rapidly moved to the lake ports for shipment to the northwest before the close of navigation. Receipts of wheat at primary markets to date, while somewhat less than for the corresponding period of 1921, are well above receipts for 1920. The livestock movement is satisfactory. Cotton is moving more rapidly than in 1921. Some industrial consumers are beginning to accumulate coal reserves, and the disappearance of premiums for immediate delivery is evidence of improved transportation for steel.

The manufacturing industries as a whole are operating at not far below normal. Steel output is at 75 per cent of capacity. There has been a notable expansion of pig iron production which for October exceeded any month since December 1920. Railroad orders continue heavy. Demand from the automobile and building industries is good, due account being taken of seasonal declines. Buying by agricultural implement makers is still light. The indications seem to be that demand for steel may slacken somewhat during the remainder of the year, but that recovery will be made early in 1923. Demand for machine tools is fair.

The woolen and worsted industry is at between 80 to 85 per cent of capacity. Boot and shoe manufacturers range from 80 per cent in New England to capacity at St. Louis. Cotton consumption in October was 433,950 bales, compared with 494,745 and 401,325 bales in October 1921 and 1920 respectively. October output of automobiles made a new high record for that month. Building is exceptionally active for the season, this condition being reflected in the various industries producing building materials.

Officials "Stumped" by Booze Problem

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—The law enforcement arm of the government is said by high treasury officials to be without any plan or proposals looking to a more thorough enforcement of the Volstead act, although the subject was gone over in detail at the cabinet meeting with President Harding last Friday. Secretary Mellon was represented as being unable to offer any solution to the problem, while the returns from the initial traffic in liquor continued to be large.

Prohibition officials have made the best use of the tools they have in checking the liquor traffic according to the view held to have been taken by the treasury head. He was said to have declined to express an opinion as to whether the sale of liquor, once it was in the hands of dealers, would reduce the amount of "bootleg" whiskey brought into the country.

The treasury secretary was undecided to believe "that complete enforcement could not be expected under existing conditions." The impression was given that he believed it would take much more money and a far greater staff of enforcement officers than now were available to oversee the importations and fraudulent withdrawals from bonded warehouses as well as to defeat the sale of liquor, once it was in the hands of dealers.

Well, gang, tomorrow is Thanksgiving. About everyone you meet today is telling us about how much there is to be thankful for. Thanksgiving this year comes on the 29th of the month and personally we can't find anything much about that date to be enthusiastic about. About the only folks who will be able to give "thanks" will be the bill collectors.

GOOD EVENING FOLKS—

Quite a few of the local folks gathered at the Elks Last eve to enjoy A chindig and A slice of turkey and Ye ed managed to Get his share of both In the meat line.

The New York mayor is all het up over the Ku Klux. This is a good time of the year to get het up without having to build a fire.

There is a general impression that the lowlands are unhealthy, but who ever heard of a frog having a chill.

A local sheik lost his watch and wanted to advertise in our colum for it but he couldn't put in writing how it sounded when it ticked.

The cast of the Elks Minstrels are already and ready to go before the footlights and "show off" and we hope the natives will gather round in large numbers on the two nights, December 5 and 6, for the purpose of amakin' their bands together.

A local saxophone tooter owed a small bill at a drygoods store and not having the filthy lucre to wipe out the debt, sat down and played the store-keeper a dollar's worth on his horn.

A tin peddler advertises that he will be through here next week to buy up all the old rags and we are in a quandary about throwing our other pants on the market.

THEY OBEYED.

A chance visitor at the Jones home noticed that their dining room table was crowded with dishes, each set on the top of another filled dish—some stacks being three stories high.

"What in the world is the idea?" asked the visitor.

"Oh, you see we rend and before the advertising matter in the magazines, and we have obeyed every one that told us things we should serve for every meal. We find, however, that we have so much stuff on now as we can get. We've discontinued our subscriptions."

THE RUSSIAN LANGUAGE.

An American officer was drilling a Russian regiment. He sneezed and three men answered: "Here."

There will come a time, as the novel says, when President Harding will look back to that day when he took the front page of the Marion, Ohio, Star at prime time and wish by all that's high and holy that all he had to do was to remake it in time to catch the first mail.

MISTOOK HIS MISSION.

An old gentleman of 84 took to the air to a girl about 15. The minister looked at him a minute, then said:

"The font is at the other end of the church."

"What do I want with the font?" roared the old gentleman.

"Oh, I beg your pardon. I thought you had brought the child to be baptized."
