WIRELESS CONNECTS THE EAST AND WEST

(By United Press.) SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 28.—The east and west may never meet on land, but already they are meeting and interfering with each other in the air.

The great wireless station at Nauen, Germany, has filed an official complaint that its nightly business is being interfered with by the big Kalaoku station in Hawaii.

The official wave length of Kalaoku and Nauen is almost the same, and Nauen finds it difficult to cut out interference from Hawaii. Nauen handles a tremendous amount of private dispatches, news and official communications from Germany to German interests throughout the world.

United States radio officials are working to eliminate the trouble.

OREGON OUT TO WIN THANKSGIVING GAME

EUGENE, Nov. 28.—(Special)—Oregon will be primed for the hardest fight of the season when the Webfooters go into battle array against the University of Washington eleven in Seattle Thanksgiving day, according to Coach Shy Huntington who during the past week put the Oregon men through long, hard nights of practice in preparation for the contest.

The players are rounding into late season form, according to the coach, and by virtue of their past two victories have the winning psychology. Furthermore, they are in condition for the first time this season and have developed the machine-like precision which comes only when the fundamentals of gridiron tactics have been thoroughly mastered.

Several star members of the eleven which trounced the Oregon Astoria have been on the hospital list since that game but Trainer Bill Hayward expects to have them in shape within the next few days. "Cogg" Campbell, 200 pound tackle, has been ill in bed for the past week and Coach Huntington expresses some apprehension as to his condition. George King, star halfback, is suffering with a sprained hip and Quarterback Chapman's leg is badly skinned and blue-burned. However, with the possible exception of Campbell all men are expected to be in fighting trim when the team leaves for Seattle Tuesday.

Line Coach Spellman has Reid, who has made his letter this year, and Gooding, a new man this season, who has been showing unusual development lately, to shift into the tackle position if Campbell is unable to play.

Terry Johnson is slated to take the end position left vacant by the injury of Bud Brown, two year star, whose knee was broken in the O. A. C. game. Johnson played a good game against Idaho this year and Huntington expects him to handle the job well although the loss of Brown is a damaging one. Vic Bracher, a promising but inexperienced lad, will be taken to Seattle as a substitute end.

Ward Johnson and "Dutch" Gram, halfbacks, who have been erratic so far this fall because of

INJURIES ARE ROUNDING INTO SHAPE IN SPLENDID STYLE

These big fellows will probably alternate during the coming game and their playing is expected to be a feature. Last year the Oregon team wound up the season against Multnomah and played a game which was a revelation to followers of coast football. The webfooters beat the clubmen decisively although they were badly outplayed before the contest started. The team on that day was in much the same condition and spirit as Huntington expects it to be against Washington this year—a team with the winning spirit, composed of strong men, in good condition and out to win.

The Oregon coaching staff is not underrating the Washington team. They realize that Rainshaw has a hitting team of big men, but the Oregon coaches are confident their team can turn back the advances of the Huskies and beat them.

We have on sale at The Fern all of the season's flowers and greens appropriate for Thanksgiving. We are at your service. Let us assist you in making your selection. Carnations and chrysanthemums are our specialty.
