

There Is No Substitute for Quality

When you buy a house you make sure that the foundation, the walls and the roof are constructed for permanence. Buy a motor car in the same way.

The sturdy body of the Studebaker Light-Six Sedan is an admirable example of substantial body-building. It is constructed of the finest materials and with a high degree of craftsmanship to give years of satisfactory service—on wheels that are built to last.

Eight stout ash pillars, from floor to roof, insure permanent strength and rigidity. The four wide-opening doors are a real convenience in getting in and out. Broad windows provide clear vision in every direction.

Sets are of generous proportions with deep springs to give lasting comfort. The upholstery is of mohair velvet plush, as durable as it is attractive. The heater will give warmth and comfort on cold days.

The Light-Six has proved its reliability on the highways of the world. The ample power, quietness and remarkable flexibility of its motor are a source of continuous satisfaction. It is easy to handle in traffic. Constant gear shifting is unnecessary because it throttles down to a walking pace in high gear. Vibration, which is so annoying in closed cars, is virtually eliminated.

The low price is due to complete manufacture by Studebaker in one of the most modern and complete automobile plants in the world. Middlemen's profits are eliminated and the savings are passed on to the buyer.

The name Studebaker stands for comfort, quality and durability.

THIS IS A STUDEBAKER YEAR

ATTORNEY GENERAL MAKES HIS ANNUAL STATEMENT

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—A new basic judicial organization, to meet the augmented work which has resulted from "the ever-increasing complexity of government," was suggested by Attorney General Daugherty in his annual report, made public here today, on the operations of the Department of Justice. Noting that 69,722 criminal cases were begun in the last fiscal year, the report declared the point was being approached "where a revamping of the machinery used in this work is inevitable."

Adoption of some method by which the Government could retain attorneys who have special knowledge of government matters in addition to legal training was one of the several suggestions advanced by Mr. Daugherty. The recently enacted legislation providing additional judges should help the situation, he said but probably will not entirely remedy it.

"The failure of local self-government in parts of the country," the report said, "results in the insistence of the citizens of those communities that the Federal government perform that function in which the local government has failed and frequently in matters where there is concurrent jurisdiction between the State and Federal government. It is difficult to establish a policy as to the extent to which the Federal government should take jurisdiction. This is peculiarly true of offenses arising under the Federal reserve act, the narcotic act, the Volstead act, and the postal frauds act. There has been an effort on the part of this division during this fiscal year and have the United States attorneys and the state prosecuting attorneys meet from time to time for the purpose of cooperation. Evidence of the benefits of these meetings is overwhelming."

"The existing procedure for the removal of a defendant to the jurisdiction where the crime was committed is unduly cumbersome and results in unjustified delay and injustice. Under such procedure the trial is frequently delayed from one to two years."

Announcement was made in the report of the "desire of the Department to return, or to recommend for return" all property seized under the Trading with the Enemy Act in cases where the owners come within "the enabling section (paragraph 9) of the act."

"The question in almost all of these cases," Mr. Daugherty reported, "is either of title or of citizenship. For instance, the Alien Property Custodian has seized and now holds the property of estates, which are quite complicated, by reason of the rights of United States citizens, alleged to have been acquired subsequent to the war. Oftentimes the question becomes one of the validity of title prior to the war, and in this connection it is exceedingly difficult at times to distinguish between the pre-war ownership of a claimant and a simple claim of indebtedness, and it is then necessary to have the question submitted to the courts."

"It has also been necessary to send representatives of the department to Europe to secure evidence from those familiar with certain cases. This evidence was material in the consideration and trial of these cases and in the determination of certain claims, so that a fair and impartial hearing could be given to litigants and claimants. In fact, it was usually at the request of litigants and claimants that these representatives were sent abroad, and while such investigations and the taking of such evidence served to accommodate claimants, it likewise protected the government in the administration of the trusts created over these properties."

It may be expected that the future will see any number of interpretations by the courts of the provisions of section 9 and of the question as to whether the litigant is a proper party claimant under this section. The questions of law arising are many, and while, in general, it may be said that the provisions of section 9 do not conflict, it must be recognized that there exist some exceedingly close questions as to which of the
