School Districts to Enjoy Music

A number of the county schools are lately taken an advance step in educational and entertainment matters by adding a piano or phonograph to their equipment. Mr. H. of Ott's Music Store stated this morning that he has recently filled orders for instruments from four districts and they have been desired, thus enabling children to enjoy them this Christmas time. The school districts supplied are: Glendale Union High School, a piano; Days Creek Union High School, a piano; The Canyonville School, both a piano and Victrola; and the Glendale schools a phonograph.

Don't Forget—Wainwright's supplies can be obtained at 129 West Lane, phone 555.

COOPERATION ASKED

Christmas shoppers are urged by merchants to shop early in the day and if required to shop in the evening to try and complete their purchases before 8:30 in the evening. The Oregon law provides that clerks cannot be required to work later than 8:30 in the evening. Last Saturday night some of the stores were filled with shoppers until 11 o'clock and as the clerking force was reduced after 8:30 it was impossible to give as good service to shoppers as before.

Many Seats Sold for Junior Play

The seat sale for the Junior play, "Clarence" which will be presented at the Antlers theatre Tuesday evening, December 19, has been very good and a packed house is expected. In choosing Clarence to present to the public, the class made a very wise choice, securing a play that will appeal to everyone, and one that although popular on stage and screen makes the same appeal when handled by clever amateurs. The cast, which includes some of the best High School talent, has been rehearsing the play for the past month, under the direction of Miss Ueland and Miss Ross, and are all more than ready to perform.

The story of "Clarence" which was written by Booth Tarkington, is exceptionally clever. Clarence has no medals, no shoulder tarts, no accomplishments. One of the "five million," he served where he was sent, though it was no farther than Texas. As an entomologist he found no field for his work on this side of the ocean, so they set him to driving mules. Now, reduced to civil life and seeking a job, he finds a position in the home of one, Wheeler, a wealthy Englishman with a family. And because he'd been in the army he becomes guide, philosopher and friend to the members of that same agitated and distracted family group. Clarence's position is an anomalous one. He mends the bathroom plumbing, he tunes the piano, he types—off stage—he plays the saxophone. And around him revolves such a group of characters as only Booth Tarkington could offer. It is a real American comedy; and the audience ripples with appreciative and delighted laughter.

His Way.

"I felt kinda lost for a spell after I sold the place and came down to live with my niece," admitted the retired farmer. "I missed the familiar tasks, and there weren't enough new ones to keep me busy. The familiar sounds, too, were absent, and at first I couldn't get used to the new ones; the young lady on the left tinkling the piano, the folks on the right running their talking machine, the feller across the street practicing his clarinet, and so forth. They bothered me. But finally I took to going out on the back porch and filling a saw to quiet my nerves. And it always done so; after a good spell of filling the noises of the neighborhood didn't bother me at all."—Kansas City Star.

THE DEVIL-FISH IN DEMAND

Delicacy, Dried and Fresh, in All Sizes, Never Missing From the Stores of Manhattan.

The devil-fish tribe, big and small, dried and fresh, are never missing from the stores of the Italian, Greek, Spanish, Turkish and Mongolian colonies of Manhattan. They range in size from the small squid to the giant cuttlefish. The cuttlefish can also always be obtained, from one year's end to another, pickled and canned in its own ink.

Sun-dried oysters are always obtainable at Mongolian stores throughout the country. They never use canned oysters. The bivalves are sold on ration, and circled (after drying) for hanging up in stores.

Lobsters' tails, sun-dried, are a great delicacy with the Greeks, and are imported regularly. A caviar is imported from the Hellenes and all along the Asia Minor seaboard. It is the roe of the baskin which is salted down, milk-cured and sun-dried to a firm compactness which makes the article almost as hard as wood. Then it is steeped in and given an effective coating of beeswax. This will preserve it for years and the slightly fragrant beeswax film will hold its faint honeylike odor for as long. This is the real original Turkish kaviar.

Among Home-Made Toys

Among the things that delight little folks are dolls and small animals made of old-down flannel or Turkish toweling, and painted with water color paints. The doll and dressed-up kitten pictured here, are among them. The doll's face may be made of a piece of ribbed stocking and the kitten's face and clothes are painted on.
