FORESTS RETURN A LARGE INCOME

Over Five Million Dollars Realized by Government From Use of Forest Lands in the Country

A total income of $5,653,524.54 was received from the national forests of Oregon and Washington for the year ending June 30, according to District Forester George H. Cecil, of the North Pacific district.

Revenue amounting to $5,063,527.42 was paid into the United States treasury from all of the national forests, says the forest service, United States department of agriculture, in its annual report made public today by the district forester's office in Portland. Receipts for the last quarter were far in excess of those for any preceding quarter in the administration of the national forests except one in 1920.

Nearly four and a half million of these receipts are derived from the use of timber and forage, the remainder for the use of land including waterpower sites.

Income producing business on the national forests showed remarkable stability, the report continues, in view of the depressed or uncertain conditions in the timber and live stock industries of the west, which afford the principal markets for national forest products. The abnormally low output of western sawmills, which caused a decrease in receipts from timber sales for the preceding year continued until the last quarter of the fiscal year 1922; but for that quarter they exceeded $820,000 and for the entire year they totaled $1,738,347.24, and were almost identical with those of 1921.

Approximately 25 per cent of the cattle and 33 per cent of the sheep in the 11 western states are grazed upon national forest ranges during part or all of the year. The grazing business of the forests consequently reflects closely the conditions in the live stock industry of the west, which has been passing through one of the most severe financial depressions of its history.

Twenty-five per cent of all national forest receipts are given to counties in which they lie, to be expended by state and county authorities for schools and roads.

J. G. Griffith, a newspaperman, and W. H. Jones, stock sales agent for the Star car, passed through Roseburg Sunday on their way to Portland from Marshfield, having traveled over the new Coos Bay highway by special permission, this road now being closed to regular traffic. They stated that the people of Coos county were much wrought up over the recent murder committed there by a drunken rancher. The bodies of his two victims were taken to Myrtle Point yesterday.

TWO LIQUOR CASES ARE POSTPONED

The trial of J. R. Conway charged with possession and sale of intoxicating liquor, will be heard in the justice court tomorrow. Conway was one of those arrested on December 23rd at Reedsport. The trial of Lawrence Marquis and W. D. Dewar, who were arrested at the same time Conway was taken, will be postponed until January 9 and 10 at the request of the defense in order that witnesses who are now unable to be present can be brought to the city to testify.

DISABLED VETERANS GET OVER $5,000,000

More than $5,000,000 was distributed among disabled war veterans of the Pacific northwest during the year 1922, according to an estimate given out by the Seattle district office of the United States Veterans' bureau. This includes vocational training pay and straight compensation expenditures, but not hospitalization expense or administration costs. A total of 6,312 new and amended compensation awards were granted during the year and 1,255 disabled World War veterans were rehabilitated vocationally. It was announced.

There are at present 2,750 injured veterans in Washington, Oregon and Idaho taking vocational training at the expense of the government, a decrease of 415 under the number enrolled January 1, 1922. A total of approximately 1,000,000 of war risk insurance held by active-duty people of the district, the Pacific northwest leads all other bureau districts of the entire country in percentage of the World War veterans protected by government insurance. More than $1,000,000 worth of war insurance was reinstated or converted into permanent forms during the last four months of 1922.

Ninety-five per cent of the 864 veterans hospitalized in this district are being treated in veterans' hospitals or wards. The number of hospital cases not being handled by government physicians was reduced from 329 to 44 during 1922. Records of December show an increase of approximately 50 hospitalized World War veterans. The employment section of the bureau has found work for 211 rehabilitated veterans since its formation last August. These men realize an average of $129 a month, a material increase over their pre-war occupation pay.

HOGMANNY DAMP; VERY ENTHUSIASTIC

(By United Press) LONDON, Jan. 1.—New Year's Day is being celebrated with customary enthusiasm by Scotsmen all over Great Britain, the day being a national holiday in Scotland, although England and Wales do not recognize the date officially, except that the London Stock Exchange is closed and the banks are doing their annual balancing of books. Last night's celebrations of "Hogmanny" (As the Scotch call New Year's Day) were somewhat hampered by the lack of consideration shown by the calendar in fixing New Year's Eve on a Sunday. In Scotland and Wales schools are closed on Sunday and in England closing hours are much earlier, but "prudent rogues" had an "unofficial" but really "wet" celebration Saturday night and carried on with noisy supplies Sunday evening. The heaving beds in London and the provinces had New Year's Eve dinners, suppers and dances. Sunday has been the popular New Year's ball with held Saturday or will be started tonight.

At all Scotch dinners the ferocious "haggis" (a wild national dish composed of the heart, lungs, liver of a sheep, or calf, prepared with seasoning and vegetables) was brought on to the strains of the bagpipes, while various brands of "brandy" (imported with alcohol) were served—apart from the flowing bowl of Scotch "whisky."

"Getting the first foot in" (calling on friends with soothing drinks as soon after midnight as possible and snatching the liquor supplies of the friends as well continues to be a popular pastime in the North. In London thousands of Scotsmen—reinforced by local rogues—gathered around St. Paul's Cathedral to "see the New Year in," the vast crowds joining hands and singing "Auld Lang Syne" as the cathedral boomed out the hour of midnight and the dawn of another year.

REED IN PORTLAND

Federal aid for deepening of the harbor at Reedsport, thereby enabling larger ships to go in and out with cargoes is necessary to the well being of a large section of western Oregon, according to Warren P. Reed of Reedsport, who is at the Imperial. A large amount of lumber is manufactured at Reedsport. Practically all of it moves by water. As conditions are the depth of the water over the Umpqua river bar is not sufficient to permit lumber barges to carry their greatest capacities. By extending cutties the water would be made much deeper and ships drawing more water would be permitted to depart from Reedsport. This harbor must of necessity be the outlet for the timber products that are to be manufactured in western Douglas county for years to come. Lumbermen are not able to receive what they should for their products because the depth of the water will not permit them to carry as great cargoes over the bar as would be possible were the cutties extended. Several delegations have visited Washington for the purpose of encouraging legislation to include an appropriation for the improvement of the harbor.—Portland Oregonian.

"DIMMERS" ARE PUT ON DIMPLES BY JUDGE WHO WAS VAMPED BY PRETTY SPEEDERS

Miss Alice McCormick, a prominent society girl, appeared charged with "habitual violation of the parking ordinance." The judge fortified himself against a prize battery of dimples and made Herbert Connell, bachelor lawyer, responsible for her future motoring career. Corjell took charge of affairs with an iron hand, called Miss Dixby into his office, read her the traffic rules and lectured her severely. Miss Dixby, acquored in spirit, wept and after that they went across the street and had a soda. "Women's independence! Bah!" says Judge Wapnick. "There's a time in the life of every pretty woman when some man's got to be made responsible for her actions." Suffrage papers please copy!
