MANY CHANGES IN BOXING TITLES

Dempsey the Only Pugilist Whose Crown Was Not in Jeopardy

SIKI WAS SUSPENDED

Charges of Frame-Up and Improper Conduct Result in Ban Being Clamped on By Commission

NEW YORK, Jan. 2.—"Uneasy lies the head that wears a crown" in the domain of pugilism—proof of which is the unusual number of sensational upsets featuring the ring record for 1922. Review of the year shows that three world's and two American titles changed hands. With the exception of the heavyweight ranks, where Jack Dempsey remained supreme but inactive, all the crowns were in jeopardy at some time.

Four of the titles changed hands in New York while the fifth, the world's light heavyweight championship, passed into the possession of the Senegalese, Battling Siki, when he knocked out Georges Carpentier in Paris last September. Siki also acquired the European heavyweight title by his victory. Since then, however, he has lost whatever prestige he gained by drawing a long-term suspension from French boxing authorities for improper conduct and adding fuel to the flames of controversy with unsubstantiated charges that his bout with Carpentier was intended as a frame-up for Georges to win but that he double-crossed the expatriate by a "change of heart" during the bout.

Johnny Buff, veteran Jersey City boxer, met double disaster during the year, losing the world's bantamweight title to Joe Lynch, of New York, a former champion of the division, in July and the American flyweight to Pancho Villa, the Filipino sensation, in September. Buff, minus much of his former prowess through a long illness, was knocked out by Lynch in the fourteenth and by Villa in the eleventh round. He has not appeared in the ring since then.

Another veteran went down to defeat before stamina and youth when Jack Britton, king of the welter ranks for years and one of the craftiest ring generals of all time, lost a decision and his world title to Mickey Walker, of Elizabeth, N. J., in November. But a few months before Britton had put up one of the best fights of his career against Benny Leonard, lightweight titleholder, winning on a technical foul in the thirteenth round.

The American light heavyweight title changed possession twice. Gene Tunney, Greenwich Village favorite, took the honors from Battling Levanski in January by the decision route but lost the crown in May to Harry Greb, of Pittsburgh, who gained a decision after a hard-fought 15-round bout.

The situation in the featherweight and middleweight division was complicated by decisions of the New York State Athletic Commission which took away the licenses of the respective titleholders, Johnny Kilbane, of Cleveland, and Johnny Wilson, of Boston, and declared their laurels open to competition so far as the Empire State was concerned. Kilbane was outlawed for refusal to accept a challenge from Johnny Dundee, of New York, and Wilson for ignoring an agreement to box Harry Greb, Pittsburgh Mauler.

Dundee and Danny Frush, English boxer who took up an American residence in Cleveland, were picked by the New York Commission, as logical contenders for the featherweight title and the former acquired what honors the commission was capable of bestowing by knocking out Frush in the ninth round of a contest in August.

Like wise, Dave Rosenberg, of Brooklyn, was declared middleweight champion by the commission after a victory over Phil Krus, of Harrison, N. J., in August, but the honors were transferred to the veteran Mike O'Dowd, of St. Paul, former titleholder, when he won from Rosenberg on a foul in the eighth round of a contest staged Thanksgiving day.

The Middle West also seemed to regard Wilson as middleweight king and the recognition was conferred by boxing authorities in several states on Bryan Downey, of Cleveland.

Benny Leonard was the busiest champion of the year. The lightweight king fulfilled a strenuous midsummer program when he fought in Kansas a few weeks later and he in July defended his title against Tender A Philadelphia southpaw, in a sensational 12-round no-decision bout at Jersey City, N. J. Leonard received the popular verdict at the ringside, but he was given one of the stiffest battles of his career and came close to defeat in the eighth round under a staggering attack by Tender.

Leonard later defeated Ever Hammer, of Chicago, in a contest at Michigan City, Ind., but a serious infection of the mouth, the result of injuries sustained in the Tender fight, has since kept the champion out of active competition.

Charley White, hard-hitting Chicagoan, established himself as one of Leonard's most formidable rivals and may be matched with the champion in the near future. White's latest and most impressive triumph was the knockout of Nield Mitchell, of Milwaukee, in the tenth round of a 15-round contest.

Officially Dempsey's heavyweight title was at stake once during the year in a four-round encounter with a middleweight sparring partner, Jimmy Darcy, at Buffalo, N. J., in July, but there was little risk involved. The New York State Athletic Commission ruled that under the boxing statutes a decision must be rendered, and Dempsey, and Dempsey willingly complied with the technicality, receiving the official verdict.

Dempsey also formally accepted the challenge of his dusky rival, Harry Wells, for a title bout, but that was as far as negotiations proceeded, it being agreed that a match could not be promoted before next summer. White's prestige gained little from his performances in several bouts in New York with Negro opponents, but he remained generally regarded as Dempsey's strongest rival.

Two other figures, meanwhile created interest in heavyweight circles—Lloyd Johnson, of Iowa, and Luis Firpo, Argentine sensation. Johnson has developed rapidly and included a knockout of Bob Martin among his victories. He will face his hardest test next month when he meets Bill Brennan, rugged Chicagoan.

Firpo came to this country early in the year and knocked out in rapid succession several lesser lights. But while he demonstrated heavy punching ability he showed little boxing skill. Returning to South America, he knocked out Jim Tracy, Australian boxer, and now plans to return in January to the United States. He has received offers to box either Johnson or Brennan.

MRS. G. W. HALL SICK FOR YEARS

Wants Women to Know How She Was Made Well by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Lima, Ohio.—"Indeed, your medicine is all you say it is! I had very severe troubles such as women often have, and could do no heavy work. I was sick for several years, and from reading your ads. I finally decided to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I am now doing my own washing, which I haven't done for several years, and can walk long distances without those dragging pains and weak feelings. The Vegetable Compound is fine, and I never forget to say a good word for it to other women when they say they need something."

—Mrs. G. W. HALL, 639 Hazel Avenue, Lima, Ohio.

There are many women who find their household duties almost unbearable owing to some weakness or derangement. The trouble may be slight, yet cause such annoying symptoms as dragging pains, weakness and a run-down feeling.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a splendid medicine for such conditions. It has in many cases relieved those symptoms by removing the cause of them. Mrs. Hall's experience is but one of many.

RED CROSS FINDS NEED OF CLOTHING

The Red Cross here is badly in need of clothing and bedding, according to Miss Agnes Piteford, civilian relief worker. Clothing is needed for children from 6 months of age to 15 years of age while a large amount of bedding is needed. Miss Piteford states that she has found a number of homes where the children have not sufficient clothing to protect them from the winter cold, while many families have been found where the children and adults lack sufficient bedding to provide warmth and comfort at night.

Clothes of all kinds suitable for children, or clothes which can be made over are desired. Roseburg residents who can help fill this need are asked to leave contributions, marked for the Red Cross, at the Chamber of Commerce office. From there they will be distributed to places of actual need.
