Scientist Finds Portions of Human Skulls in Mounds Near Omaha.

RESEARCHES ARE IMPORTANT

Declares Peace-Loving Race Inhabited the Mid-West Section of America Prior to Time of Indians.

Omaha, Neb.—In an effort to obtain evidence to support his belief that Nebraska was inhabited 4,000 years ago by cannibalistic cave men, Dr. Robert P. Glider, doctor of science, known throughout the West for his desert landscape canvases, has begun excavating a short distance south of Omaha. Permission was granted him after a dozen years of effort to induce owners of the land to permit the excavations.

The site of the excavations is marked by several eroded mounds which the scientist believes were certainly houses of the Omaha or Pawnee Indians. It is his theory that these mounds were built upon the foundations of the houses of the earlier tribe, possibly ancestors of the Mid-West Indians. In support of this belief, he has discovered that the upper structure—declared by him to have been built with mud and stone sides covered with thatch—had an entrance on the south, whereas the lower excavations clearly show entrances from the east.

Finds Bones of Men.

Using the Darwinian accumulation theory—one inch of earth to each century—Dr. Glider calculates that he has reached the 4,000-year-old surface level and there he has discovered portions of human skulls, arm and foot bones.

His discoveries include ashes, declared by him to be roasted human bones. From this he evolves the theory that the early inhabitants were cannibals. Some thirty or forty implements of bone and wood he has found are almost identical with creations unearthed by European archeologists, who have ascribed their area as preceding the historic.

Peace-Loving Race, He Says.

"We have established the fact," declares the doctor, "that there lived in this portion of the North American continent a peace-loving race prior to the time of the Indians, as we commonly apply the term. I deduce this from the fact that the houses were large enough to accommodate from ten to twelve families and that the dwellings are separated by considerable territory. If the race had been warlike, the individuals would have felt a common desire for close association and would have built houses in groups for mutual protection."

OF COURSE DORIS WON OUT

What Was There for Mother to Say in the Face of Such an Argument?

They had been chatting since entering the bus, but the Woman, who sat opposite them on top, heard nothing really good until Grant's monument was reached.

Without taxing her hearing in the least the Woman learned that they were former schoolmates at the university (for university days were mentioned again and again) who were revisiting the city after a number of years.

"I don't think the girls of this century will ever stand for long skirts again," remarked the one in the green dress. "Reminds me of what Evelyn was telling me just before I came away. She was making a skirt for her daughter, Doris. Everything except the correct length had been decided upon. Evelyn wanted to make this a little longer than Doris' other skirts. She told her that the fashion was for increasing the length. But Doris was obstinate.

"Evelyn, you know, generally lets her have her way in matters of dress, but this time she argued and Doris burst into tears. 'Be fair, mum,' she pleaded. 'I must be right, now which do you think I should take—the advice of one mother or of twenty girls?'"

"And what happened?"

"Oh, mother shortened the skirt, of course."—Exchange.

RADIUM HI NEW HAMPSHIRE

Edward Caron, a French-Canadian miner from Montana, has discovered radium in a mountain at Deella, N. H. He has prospected with such success on a lot of woodland he purchased recently as to attract the attention of the United States bureau of mines. Engineers will investigate to determine the extent of the radium deposit. Caron is shown here with samples of the minerals he found on his property. In his left hand he holds a specimen of uranin, which contains radium. In his right hand is a specimen of beryl.

Wolves Menace Farmers.

Warren, Ind.—Terrorized by the appearance of a flock of wolves driven from a swamp near here by the one morning recently, farmers kept their children indoors while others, with rifles and shotguns, accompanied their youngsters to school. Drivers of school buses also were armed.

While Roy Topie went to a field at the edge of the swamp to dig potatoes a large bound accompanying him was killed by six wolves. Cattle, sheep and hogs recently have been attacked by wolves. Families were organizing for a wolf hunt in which several hundred persons will participate.

Tenants Get Landlord's Estate.

Los Angeles—Tenants of George Lewis, who died recently, learned they were his heir. His estate, valued at $22,000, consists of five houses, which were devised to the families occupying them. He was survived by no known relatives.
