Were he to neglect to keep this property well painted he could be a good many dollars out, in a few years. He knows that the cheapest in the end policy is to paint when the need comes and use paint that is thoroughly dependable—Heath & Milligan. This insures him fewer gallons to start with and therefore fewer hours labor to apply the paint—more years of wear, and an easy surface to repaint.

Thirteen Years of Scouting

They All Agree

that BOY SCOUT Leaders are producing for the Nation its greatest need—Men of Character Trained for Citizenship

The Boy Scouts of America will be celebrating their Thirtieth Anniversary, the week of February 8th to 15th. This Movement has created for American boyhood remarkable aids in character building and citizenship training. This program of organized work and play directs the "gang" instinct in boys into channels of wholesome, useful activity; the boy's energy to constructive ends.

The Part the Boys Play

The program stresses hiking, overnight camps, winter and summer camping, an understanding of nature and life in the open. 200,000 scouts attended organized camps last summer under trained leadership. This activity alone builds up a sturdy boyhood. All of the boy's thoughts and actions are based upon the code of conduct known as the Scout Oath and Law, which a boy must promise to observe before he becomes a scout. The daily "Good Turn" by a Boy Scout creates in his heart a spirit of kindness and service to others. Community Good Turns have been of invaluable aid to cities, and even the nation itself.

Resourcefulness and Leadership

Troops of boys are organized into smaller units known as patrols. A boy patrol leader is given charge of this smaller group of eight boys, and this has proved to be an ideal method for developing and training leadership qualities in boys. They progress with their training from Tenderfoot to Second Class to First Class Scouts. Then they have the opportunity of branching out along lines of 60 different vocations which are represented by Merit Badges. To become an Eagle, a First Class Scout qualifies by earning twenty-one merit badges. These twenty-one merit badges must include life saving, first aid, personal health, public health, cooking, camping, civics, bird study, path finding, pioneering, athletics, or physical development and any ten others.

The Part That the Man Plays

Over every troop is a volunteer scoutmaster. There are 18,005 scoutmasters in the country today—mature, red blooded men of character—who are unselfishly giving their time to this service; and 18,983 assistant scoutmasters. Training courses for scoutmasters are found in many of the leading universities, colleges and theological seminaries.

About 50,000 men of all professions and businesses are acting in local communities as members of troop committees, fathering local troops, members of the local councils, courts of honor and special examiners, etc. Each one of these local councils has one or more representatives on the National Council, which is composed of over 1,000 men.

Boy Literature

Not only has this Movement had a tremendous influence upon general literature for boys, but has defined this interest in the form of magazines and pamphlets and other publications. Predominant among these are, a "regular" boys' magazine called BOY'S LIFE, conducted in every way as a high grade and interesting magazine for boys, and shot through and through with the splendid ideals of the outdoor Scouting program, and the Handbook for Boys, now in its 25th edition, of which nearly a million copies have been distributed.

International

Last summer there was held in Paris an International Conference of scout officials from all over the world. 200 delegates represented 32 different countries.

Our Own Community

Every citizen in this community, man, woman, and youth, may well give earnest heed to what is being done and what can be done through the Boy Scout Movement. They can well afford to devote their interest and their power in every possible way to encourage the Boy Scout workers to do still greater work, to reach out for more boys and to produce for each community more men of character, trained for the responsibilities of citizenship.

Anniversary Roundup of Boy Scouts

To celebrate the Thirtieth Birthday of the Movement in the United States, every effort is being made to recruit 100,000 more boys, an increase of 25 per cent over membership records of a year ago. Present reports indicate that this goal will be reached. That means half a million boys guiding their daily lives by this Oath:—"On my Honor I will do my best: 1. To do my duty to God and my country, and to obey the Scout Law. 2. To help other people at all times. 3. To keep myself physically strong, mentally awake and morally straight."

More men of character are needed as scoutmasters and in other places of leadership. Find out through the nearest local scout headquarters or from any adult member of the organization how you can serve our boyhood through the Boy Scouts of America.

SALEM WAITERS MAY TAKE EXAMS

SALEM, Feb. 5.—All Salem waiters, waitresses, cooks and other persons handling foods not in their original packages, will be required to submit to a physical examination twice yearly and will not be permitted to serve the public if they have any type of communicable disease, according to the terms of a bill for an ordinance which will be submitted to the city council next Monday night.

It is believed that the bill will have the support of the aldermen. It carries with it an emergency clause and will become effective immediately after it receives the signature of the mayor. Examinations, which will be given applicants at no cost to them, are to be held on June 30 and December 31 of each year, the ordinance provides. The successful applicant will be given a health certificate and any person found working without such a certificate will be liable to arrest. The maximum sentence provided would be a fine of $100 and 20 days in the city jail.

LOCAL STUDENTS AT CONFERENCE

Nine local students accompanied by Miss Lewis, faculty advisor, were delegates who attended the meeting of the High School Press Association and the Association of High School Student Body Presidents and Secretaries, at Eugene Friday and Saturday. The meetings were sponsored by the Department of Journalism at the University of Oregon, and problems of High School editors and Business Managers were up for discussion.

There were four hundred delegates in attendance at the meetings and the conference this year proved very successful. The local students attending were: Roland Schwartz, Vivian Orcutt, William Thrall, Paul Trueblood, Glenn Radabaugh, Mary Reams, Adelbert Young, Harold Cooper and Ray Bert. Paul Trueblood, junior, was elected president of the State Press Associations of high schools, which is quite an honor.

Two other appointments were made, Glenn Radabaugh was nominated Chairman of Nominating Committees and William Thrall Chairman of the Resolutions Committee.

Several interesting talks were given by the local delegates, William Thrall, editor of the Orange "R" spoke on the "Sources of News." Glenn Radabaugh, president of the student body, association, told of the benefit of Athletic associations. Much comment was given on the success of the local students in publishing their high school news paper the Orange "R" which is said to be the best in the State.

The object of these journalistic conferences, which are held annually, are to promote the editing of more high school papers and less costly annuals.

A well appointed banquet was given the delegates on Friday evening. They were also guests at the different Fraternity Houses on the Campus during their stay there.

Mrs. Walter Glenn left for Cisco Texas Saturday evening where she will be the guests of friends and relatives. Mrs. Glenn expects to be away about a month or six weeks.

FARM REMINDERS

In plowing through Canada Thistle, Morning Glory or Quack grass patches, the plow should be cleaned off each time it goes through the patch to avoid dragging the roots elsewhere in the field and starting new patches of the weed. A better plan is to mark off the patches by plowing a furrow around them or by using stakes and then plowing them separately.

The standard varieties of wheat for western Oregon are Huston for the heavier lands and Blue Chaff for the mellow and warmer soils. Early planting of the spring cereals gives results more nearly equal to fall planting. Soils dry enough to sow, should be planted in February or March if possible. The same holds true in connection with the planting of Three-grain oats or Hanchen barley, both standard varieties for the Willamette valley in general.

Hotbed sash can be purchased unglazed for $1.50 f. o. b. Portland. Glass 16x12 inches in size can be purchased for $3.80 per box of 60 panes. Only 18 panes are required for each sash, so the cost of a sash should not amount to more than $3.50 when painted and ready for use.

This is an inexpensive yet permanent piece of garden equipment, which will be worth many times its original cost in producing plants. Nearly every small allotment garden in England—and there are thousands of them—has its little greenhouse or set of hotbed sash. Such equipment in this country is considered a necessity.

Early plowing of sod land is advisable in February and March in western Oregon where there is open weather. Plowing of clover and other sod offers opportunity for decay action and should result in better yields. For intensive crops, as potatoes or other cash crops, it will pay to plow shallow in late winter to start decay action, and then plow three or four inches deeper several weeks before the soil settles.

Alfalfa may be killed out by plowing deeply with a sharp plow.

Disking before plowing at this season is less necessary and is usually undesirable.

Experienced buyers of vegetable seed for gardening choose standard varieties of vegetables and specifically make their wants known in such a way as to get what is recommended, and to accept no inferior substitutes. No gardener who prides himself on any vegetables grown can be satisfied with a mere request for carrot or beet seed. Vegetables are as well defined as apple varieties or the different breeds of hogs.

A recommended list of horticultural varieties of vegetables is available to every grower of vegetable crops. Why "dilly dally" along with a variety of seed of unknown value when you can get varieties which have proved their worth? Make your requests for list of varieties to the Clerical Exchange, O. A. C., Corvallis, Oregon.
