GOOD CASTS HELP MUCH IN MAKING GOOD PHOTOPLAYS

Louis B. Mayer, producer of Anita Stewart and Mildred Harris Chaplin pictures, is a disciple of the theory that good casts contribute powerfully to the making of good photoplays and he says he never fails to make it a very special point to secure the best artists obtainable for every part there is in every picture he produces. He has given good demonstration of the fact that he practises what he preaches in the supporting cast he chose for Anita Stewart in her latest First National release, "Sowing the Wind," which is booked for a showing at the Majestic theatre tonight. Included in the list of players who cooperate to make this picture play a success are: James Morrison, Ralph Lewis, Myrtle Stedman, William V. Mong, Josef Swickard, Ben Deely, Harry Northrup, Margaret Landis and William Clifford.

POPULARS PLAYERS IN CAST

One of the most popular casts seen in a long while was assembled for the Paramount picturization of Cynthia Stockley's famous story, "Pink Gods" which is coming to the Antlers theatre tonight. The featured players are Bebe Daniels, Paramount star, and James Kirkwood, leading man who scored heavily in "The Man from Home," Anna Q. Nilsson, who was also in that picture and Raymond Hatton, a popular character actor, have splendid roles. The cast also includes Adolphe Menjou and Guy Oliver. The scenes of the picture are laid in South Africa.

MOTHER A TIGER IN FIGHT FOR BOY

In "Rich Men's Wives," the Gasnier-made Preferred Picture that is scheduled to open at the Liberty theatre on Thursday for an only two day engagement, one of the big situations shows Claire Windsor, in a tigress-like battle for her little son, (Baby Richard Headrick.)

She is the rich man's wife who is driven from her home a sacrifice to gossip and envy. An o'erwhelming yearning for her baby boy drives her back to the scene of her greatest unhappiness and she arrives in time to see the friveling society butterflies using her child as a medium of a laugh. Furiously she bursts through the ring of guests and lifts her son from a fountain bowl, then turns her wrath upon the father who had aided in the joke on the child.

House Peters plays the role of the father and others in the cast are Rosemary Theby, Gaston Glass, Myrtle Stedman, Charles Clary, Mildred June, William Austin and Martha Maddox.

CHAPTERS FROM A WOMAN'S LIFE

By Jane Phelps

CHAPTER 49

Even though Doreen saw though Helen Ralstrom's device to attract Ralph Connor's attention, she flushed painfully at Walter's remark. He was ashamed of the picture, else why had he been so annoyed that it had not been destroyed.

"How small Helen Ralstrom is," I thought bitterly, "to go out of her way to annoy me." But I spoke brightly to Walter, chatted a moment with Ralph Connor, then left.

It was not easy to hide my jealousy of Helen Ralstrom all signs of how she often hurt me. But it had been clear to me from the first that showing my jealousy was no way to handle Walter. And now that our little son had come to us I felt it almost an insult to his father to doubt him.

Yet as I walked away from the studio my cheeks burned, my heart was hot with indignation. Why wouldn't Walter let her go? Get another model? Surely their were many girls as suited to his work as she, many beautiful girls who would not cause me to be unhappy.

Mrs. Page glanced keenly at me when I reached home.

"Has anything gone wrong, Doreen?" she asked.

"No, why?"

"I thought you looked disturbed. While you are nursing the baby you must keep calm. It's bad for a child to have a mother out of sorts." It was the baby she was thinking of—her grandson, not me.

"Where did you go?" she queried.

"I took a walk then dropped in at the studio a moment."

"Ah, I suppose Miss Ralstrom upset you."

"Not at all,' I replied "Ralph Connor was there and I chatted with him. He is a delightful man. You must meet him some time," I added as I left the room.

But my little white lie was not to go unchallenged. When Walter came in he said:

"I don't know what got into Helen today to show that silly picture to Connor. I didn't dream she had saved it."

"What picture?" his mother asked.

"Oh, a silly thing Helen and I had taken one day when we were at the beach!"

I caught Mrs. Page's eyes fixed on me. A peculiar smile hovered on her lips. But she said nothing then. After Walter left us, however, she remarked:

"So that was it! What kind of a picture was it?"

"In their bathing suits. The picture meant nothing. People often have such snap-shots taken," I said. "It was the way she showed it to Mr. Connor."

"It isn't a good habit to lie, Doreen, even to protect Walter. I knew something had happened, something disagreeable, as soon as I saw you. After this when I ask a question, please answer it truthfully or not at all."

I made no reply, my thoughts busy. Walter had not cared a whit that I saw the picture, how it might affect me. He was embarrassed that Ralph Connor, a man whose opinions he respected, should see the intimate pose. I visualized the scene at the studio after Connor left, Helen's laughing triumph that she had let the picture be seen.

I was terribly afraid Mrs. Page would speak of it again to Walter tell him I had been chagrined, hurt. But to my relief it was not again mentioned. Yet I realized there was no use trying to hide very much from her sharp eyes. I must learn to mask my feelings better.

Tomorrow—Helen Tempts Walter to Make Love to Her.

WOOL GROWERS WILL RECEIVE PAYMENT

The Pacific Cooperative Wool Growers in January distributed another wool payment amounting to $200,000 to twelve hundred Western Oregon wool growers. In December, the association distributed $80,000 to wool growers residing in Idaho, Washington and Eastern Oregon. In November it sent out $44,000 to some four hundred growers representing sales of its graded mohair. There will be still another substantial payment before the entire 1922 pool is finally closed. These wools were graded, some being scoured, by the association, and marketed in an orderly manner throughout the year. As a result, member growers will receive several cents per pound more than was obtainable for mixed, ungraded wools at shearing time. This margin ranges from three to twelve cents per pound depending upon the grade of wool.

The Pacific Cooperative Wool Growers sold for the highest price west of Ohio in 1922, when one carload of Southern Oregon fine, half, and three eighths sold for 51, 52½ cents respectively. On the finer and medium grades the association average prices established new high points for Oregon wools in 1922. Over half a million pounds of wool were sold at these prices.

Growers of wool received substantially more through the association's grading process, as the wool was sold on its merits, for actual value. Wool Manufacturers and wool growers believe the educational value of grading and marketing the clip in the best known merchantable condition, as carried on by the association is worth thousands of dollars to the wool industry of the northwest. The association, whose headquarters is in Portland represents 2200 wool growers residing in Oregon, Washington, Idaho, and northwestern California. Directors of the association are Fred W. Herrin, Ashland, Oregon, president; C. L. Beckley, Dixonville, Ore., vice-president; J. B.Cornett, Shedd, Ore., secretary-treasurer; other directors are J. W. Smith, Aurora, Ore.; T. D. Tyrer, Friday Harbor, Wn.; G. H. Thompson, Macleay, Ore.; E. A. Mc Cormack, Eugene, Ore.; W. E. Hunt, Maupin, Ore.; Wm. Riddell, Jr., Monmouth, Ore.; R. Roy Booth, Yoncalla, Ore.; Scott Henry, Oakland, Ore.; Frank DeFord, Central Point, Ore.; W. W. Poland, Shedd, Ore.; H. G. Peckham, Wilder, Idaho; and C. J. Hurd, O. A. C. Corvallis, Ore. The manager is R. A. Ward of Portland, Oregon.

If You Need a Medicine You Should Have the Best

Have you ever stopped to reason why it is that so many products that are extensively advertised, all at once drop out of sight and are soon forgotten? The reason is plain—the article did not fulfill the promises of the manufacturer. This applies more particularly to a medicine. A medicinal preparation that has real curative value almost sells itself, as like an endless chain system, the remedy is recommended by those who have been benefited, to those who are in need of it.

A prominent druggist says, "Take for example Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a preparation I have sold for many years and never hesitate to recommend, for in almost every case it shows excellent results, as many of my customers testify. No other kidney remedy has so large a sale."

According to sworn statements and verified testimony of thousands who have used the preparation, the success of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is due to the fact, so many people claim, that it fulfills almost every wish in overcoming kidney, liver and bladder ailments, corrects urinary troubles and neutralizes the uric acid which causes rheumatism.

You may receive a sample bottle of Swamp-Root by Parcel Post. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and enclose ten cents; also mention this paper. Large and medium size bottles for sale at all drug stores.

ONLY FOUR STATES ESCAPE LYNCHINGS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12. — "Only four states in the Union have never had a lynching," according to a statement issued today by the commission on the church and race relations of the Federal Council of Churches. They are Massachusetts, Rhode Island, New Hampshire and Vermont.

There are only three other states that have had no lynchings since 1889 —New Jersey, Utah and Connecticut.

Nine other states have had a clear record during the last ten years. They are Nevada, Colorado, Minnesota, Iowa, Wisconsin, Michigan, Indiana, Delaware and Pennsylvania. This means that only 33 per cent of the states of the Union have not had a lynching in the last ten years. At the same time, it is pointed out that 83 women have been lynched since 1889. The churches are engaged in a nation-wide campaign against lynching and facts are being gathered.

"The total number of persons lynched by years gives a startling picture of lawlessness," the statement continues. "There was a slow decrease from the climax in 1892 and 1893 down to 1908. During the latter year and 1909 there was an increase, then another slow decrease until 1918, when a tendency to increase was manifested.

"The sex of the victims in the cases where a record has been made shows an alarming number of women. Since 1889 there have been 83 women, 17 white and 68 colored, killed by mobs. Some of them were put to death with savage tortures, such as burning and disemboweling. Such brutality might be expected in pagan times or heathen countris, but by no means i na civilized countries, but by no means in a civilized land today."

Every three out of four of those lynched during the period from 1885 to 1921 were black. In this connection the statement says:

"The list of victims of mob violence reveals the slough of prejudice out of which the evil springs. From 1885 to 1921, inclusive, 1028 white persons and 3,069 colored persons were slain by lynchers. The number of white victims, however, has rapidly decreased since 1900. Among the victims classed as white were a German (during the war), Italians, Mexicans and Jews—indicating that lawlessness spreads where prejudice abounds. Except in two years since 1903 the number of white victims has been less than ten each year. The number of negro victims during the same period has fluctuated slowly downward to range between 50 and 100, except in 1902, when the number reported was 104 and in 1917 when the number reported was 38. There is some evidence to indicate that during recent years negroes have been lynched and the facts concealed from the press, so that no record has been secured."

Protestant churches throughout the country observed Sunday, February 11, as Race Relations Sunday, when they began a campaign of education against lynching.
