DOUGHBOY'S LOAD HEAVIEST IN ARMY

American Fighter is Forced to Carry More on His Back in Proportion Than is the Army Mule

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—(By the Associated Press.)—The heaviest laden pack animal of the army is the doughboy himself. Inch for inch by size or pound for pound of his own weight, the buck private of infantry carries on his back into battle double the burden handled by horses or mules or motor trucks.

And he is expected to jog cheerfully along through the ooze beside the road, leaving the good going to the gas and animal transport. Army experts are racking their brains for ways to cut down the doughboy's load. Exhaustive study has been given to war experience for that purpose. Through the American Legion and similar organizations, efforts have been made to get the men who carried the infantry packs in France to suggest changes. But as yet it has been impossible, it was said today at the war department, to get only a few ounces of weight off the backs of the trudging infantry.

Experts figure that the average load for a foot soldier should not exceed 61 pounds. Yet under the present organization tables, "No. 3, rear rank," (who is the automatic rifleman in the infantry) must stagger along under about 133 pounds when fully equipped. All of the machine gun personnel is burdened almost as heavily, carrying from 115 to 125 pounds per man; and the machine gunners since the war make up about one-fourth of the strength of an infantry outfit.

The bulk of the doughboy's load is fighting equipment. What he carries for his own bodily comfort has always been stripped down to the absolute minimum. Aside from his "iron rations," his blanket, overcoat, extra shoes, mess kit, canteen and his few essential toilet articles, the weight the infantryman packs has a grim purpose. The whole intricate business of war revolves around the doughboy and his rifle and bayonet.

The American army rifle is still about the last word in efficient, light weight fighting tools. There is no prospect that its weight can be further reduced. So the experts are pondering over each other article in the infantry pack to see what can be eliminated or sent back to the wagon trains until needed.

Since the war ended, plans have been worked out to lighten the emergency rations, the two days' supply each hiking soldier carries with him. Several ounces can be taken out of the container weights and a few more out of the mess kits, and ounces feel like tons toward the end of a forced march. It now seems probable, also, that the "pop" tents carried heretofore may be abandoned or at least greatly reduced in weight and that the extra shoes will go back to the escort wagons. Still another development is in experiments with new water proofing methods to make raincoats and perhaps, overcoats, unnecessary and also to save the doughboy from having to carry pounds of water in his soaking equipment after a march in the rain.

If all of the individual fighting and defensive equipment that is provided for him was loaded on the doughboy's back, he probably would not be able to lift his feet off the ground and if he did succeed in moving, he would clatter and rattle like an old cook stove. In addition to his arms, ammunition, food and clothing, modern war requires that the infantryman should have available as he comes to grips with the enemy hand grenades, rifle bombs, trench knife, day and night fire works for signaling his position, sandbags for quick entrenching picks and shovels for digging himself in, gas mask, helmet, first aid kit, and a dozen other things he might need. But there is no possibility that he could carry it all and move, so the experts are weighing the probabilities and article by article reasoning out just how far it would be safe to send it along the supply line so that it could be brought up when the call came.

TODAY ANNIVERSARY OF FIRST GAME

UNIVERSITY OF OREGON, Eugene, Feb. 22.—(Special.)—Washington's birthday will be the twentieth anniversary of the first game of football played by a University of Oregon team. On February 22, 1894 Oregon played Albany College, winning by the score of 45 to 6. The triumphant Oregon team effectively used a smash center and the old "Flying Wedge" whereby one man was forced through the resisting Albany team by the combined efforts of the Lemon Yellow players. Frank Mathews, a senior, was captain of the first Oregon team. C. M. Young of Eugene and J. A. Church of Princeton were coaches. Since the Albany College game twenty-nine years ago Oregon has had a remarkably successful football history, winning ninety-nine games and losing only forty-nine. Eighteen games were tied.

One of the most famous teams in Oregon history was the 1916 aggregation. After winning every conference game with the exception of that with the university of Washington which ended in a tie, Oregon went to Pasadena and defeated the University of Pennsylvania 14 to 0 in a big intercollegiate game.

The year 1919 saw another great team wearing Oregon colors. The team went through a successful conference season. Oregon played Harvard in an intercollegiate post-season game and lost by one point 7-6.

Since 1894 the following men have served as captains of University of Oregon teams: Frank Mathews, 1894; H. S. Templeton, 1895; J. M. Edmondson, 1896; R. S. Smith, 1897, 1898 and 1899; F. J. Ziebler, 1900; C. A. Redmond, 1901; H. I. Watts, 1902; F. G. Thayer, 1903; J. H. Templeton, 1904; J. R. La-tourette, 1905; W. C. Chandler, 1906; Gordon C. Moore, 1907; Fred C. Moulton, 1908; Dudley Clarke, 1909; Charles M. Taylor, 1910; Bill Main, 1911; Dean Walker, 1912; Robert Bradshaw, 1913; John Parsons, 1914; Anson Cornell, 1915; John Hackett, 1916; Ray Couch, 1917; Dow Wilson, 1918; Stan Anderson, 1919; Bill Steers, 1920; Mart Howard, 1921; Archie Shields, 1922.

CAMAS VALLEY SCHOOL NEWS

School began in the primary room Monday morning after an enforced vacation of about ten days caused by the illness of Miss Basford. We are glad to welcome the little folks back again for we missed their cheerful words and happy smiles.

Sunday evening everyone present at the Epworth League greatly enjoyed the set of slides, "Incidents of the Life of Christ." The slides were taken from famous paintings beginning with the annunciation. Many beautiful pictures were shown of incidents during His life. The last picture was of his ascension. Mr. Brown explained each picture and gave the references to which the picture pertained.

The school program and box social given by the high school student body last Friday evening was pronounced a success by those present. The program consisted of several songs and a short but humorous comedy, "Hans Von Smash."

Mr. Porter acted as auctioneer. There were about twenty boxes. The sum, $35.86 was realized from the sale of the boxes.

We were sorry to learn that the vote at the school meeting was against building a new school house this year. All the high school students are pleased very much that we are to have Miss Titus with us again next year.

NOTICE OF BIDS FOR WOOD

STRAW HATS AMID THE WINTER'S SNOW

By Hedda Hoyt Fashion Editor for the United Press

(Written for the United Press) NEW YORK, Feb. 22.—(United Press.)—Women's hats are the heralds of spring. Despite the weather prophet, the ground hog, they are out in all their glory.

Men have a straw hat day, when they throw away the winter felts for the summer straws. They wait calmly for this day and then blossom out in unison. Women are not content to even wait for the ground-hog to proclaim straw hat weather and even as early as January, many of them turn out in straw affairs trimmed in rosebuds.

February demands the between-season bonnet and at present the winter hats are beginning to look decidedly passé.

The early season hats this year are invariably poke-shaped, fitting close to the head and with scarcely any brim. They are more youthful than any shapes we have had in some time and should be becoming to most any type of face if properly trimmed. They may be widened with huge ribbon bows, heightened with feathers or broadened with side clusters of ribbon rosettes.

Youthful Effect The most youthful effect for the poke is the side trim of shirred ribbon rosettes placed flatly at the sides of the bonnet. These rosettes may be made of plain ribbon, ribbon with silver or gold edges, metal ribbon or narrow black lace. The Parisian whim of the moment is to have a small cluster of bright flower buds in the center of the rosette. Round medallions of pearl beads are also popular as a center for gold or silver metal rosettes. Where pearls and metal ribbons are used, more of an evening bonnet effect is obtained.

Black Lace Evening affairs at present are certainly demanding lace both for gowns and hats. Nothing could be

Black Satin Slippers

Nothing could be more appropriate for the matron who doesn't care for the evening slippers of colorful brocades of gold or silver than the black satin slippers, embroidered in silver with silver heels. It is true that black slippers make the foot appear less conspicuous, but unless black is brightened up a bit it passes unnoticed among this season's footwear. The silver heel adds a novel touch to the black shoe and can be matched with silver hose.

The newest slips designed to be worn under the one-piece frocks are made of the same color as the frock and are cut on form-fitting lines. The shirred skirt attached to a princess waist which was popular last season has been discarded, because many of the dresses were so transparent that the waistline of the petticoat showed through the gown, giving an untidy effect.

Long kid gloves have silk ribbon fringe extending along the rear seam from waist to top of the glove. White gloves have white ribbon fringe three inches wide or black and white fringe to correspond with the black stitching on the glove. Fawn colored gloves have fawn colored fringe. One can easily purchase this silk ribbon fringe by the yard and sew it on a
