ROSEBURG, OREGON, FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 23, 1923.

MR. GILLET'S MESSAGE

"As the sick man, discouraged, becomes the easy prey of the quack, so the citizen, discontented, becomes the ready mark of the demagogue. Don't let your discontent lead you to blindly follow the first man who promises a panacea. The quack and the demagogue alike always follow one method. They paint sympathetically your sufferings, which are real, in order to win your confidence in their remedy, which is generally chimerical." The Speaker of the House of Representatives, Frederick H. Gillett of Massachusetts, makes this statement in the course of a brief message to the people of the United States today, through the Rotary Clubs of the country, on the subject of the individual's citizen's responsibility for legislation. In twenty-seven countries of the world ninety-thousand Rotarians are this week carrying on a gigantic campaign to set before the people of the communities in which they live the responsibilities of the individual citizen. The campaign is incident to the annual observance of the founding of the first Rotary Club in Chicago February 23, 1905, and is designed to be a demonstration of the sort of community service Rotary has been organized to do. In each country where the campaign is in progress messages on the responsibility of the citizen for the various branches of the government are being relayed to the citizens of those countries from the heads of the various branches of government. The messages do not concern parties or controversial questions. In the United States the messages follow the outlines of representative government laid down in the Constitution. President Harding has sent out the message on the individual citizen's responsibility for the execution of the laws of the country through the proper choosing of executives and backing them up in their efforts to administer the duties of their offices. The Speaker of the House of Representatives speaks on the individual citizen's responsibility for legislation and the Attorney General of the United States, Mr. Daugherty, is the author of the message on the individual citizen's responsibility to the courts.

The ways and means committee of the Oregon legislature saved the taxpayers of the state practically one million dollars by the liberal use of the axe on proposed appropriations embodied in the state budget. Some of the members, it is alleged, have been roundly rebuked for attempting to cut the cost of state government, by eliminating several appropriations backed by certain interests. The million dollars saved to the state is equal to a reduction of 15 per cent in the proposed budget. As has been said before, the way to reduce is to reduce, and the ways and means committee seemed to have the right "hunch" and put over a very good program.

It has been said there is not a man big enough in the entire state of Oregon to compile a workable consolidation measure. They've got us cinched—that horde of office holders—until some individual is brought forth who has the brains and strength to lift us out of the puddle.

Now that the income tax bill has been passed refer the measures to the people and get their opinion on the matter. Nobody else seems to know what the bill really will bring forth when put into operation.

Well, we have something to look forward to any way. That fifty-fifty tax reduction promised by Governor Pierce in his pre-election campaign promises.

The income tax bill will soon be a reality, but nobody seems to know what benefit it will be to the state at large. Time will tell.

Well, we're glad it is all over. The janitor of the state house can now take a well earned rest, the poor fellow.

THE VILLAGE RHYMESTER
by Carlyle Emery

Dear Folks:

When Harold Duncan got his raise, said he "Oh Boy, what happy days ahead for wife and for me. Why we've been married, at me see, just fourteen months ago today and now I've had a raise in pay."

"It's time I dropped my petting too, and started in a life anew. I'll hold myself aloof, severe, cut out the Pet and Dolly dear. The wife may at first demur, she's bound to know it's best I'm sure. The Boss is cold and hard as nails, I'll bet a hat he never fails to act with dignity and pride when sitting by his fireside."

When Dolly met him at the gate, she said "Hello, my precious mate. Come kiss your wife nice and sweet, for dinner dear, she's got a treat." But Harold held his head up high, and looked severe and gave a sigh and told her he must change his ways because today he'd had a raise. And business men were cold and stern, and things like petting they must spurn.

One day the Boss was feeling sick, and Harold had to reach him quick to get a deed or something signed. Imagine how he felt to find his Boss upon his hands and knees aplaying Horsey if you please. His Kiddie on his back astride, and when a door was opened he heard his Boss with laughter say "Hello Sweet-heart, come on and play." When Harold reached home at night his wife said "How's the man of Might?" But Harold smiled and drew her near and said "Come kiss your Hubby dear."

GOOD EVENING FOLKS

Most of us are
Ticked to death
With ourselves but Somehow or other
The people around us
Don't show
Much enthusiasm.

The Eugene basket shooters are in the village today for a knock-down-and-drag-out with the locals this eve, which we hope terminates in such a fashion as to make us all say "I told you so" with a smile on our face.

Ye ed. visited a hash house today and ordered soup and got choked on a button found in it. The soup was probably made from "dressed" beef.

Gossiping, which has been the favorite indoor sport during the winter months, will be resumed this spring in the great outdoors.

A former Buddy of ours dropped in to visit yesterday. A hun bullet clipped his skull during the war and as a result he has been suffering considerably. The government for which he fought allows him $10 per month and recently when he was married raised that "enormous" amount to $15.

SUNSHINE WORKERS
Sunshine work is simply rendering obedience to the Divine command, "Do as good as you have opportunity;" if we allow an opportunity to pass without doing good if it is in our power to do so, then we are guilty of breaking this command. By obeying it we become sunshine workers. Our opportunities may not be great, but if we do what we can it will be as the cup of cold water and the widow's mite of olden time. A cheerful word to the discouraged; a word of sympathy to the sorrowing; a little dainty to an invalid; a book, a picture, a growing plant may bring sunshine to some poor heart. A cast off garment may be rescued from the rag barrel, cleaned and repaired and given to some unfortunate person. Any of these and legions of other opportunities grasped will entitle us to be enrolled as Sunshine Workers.—Ex

The poor down-trodden, tax ridden, poverty stricken, pauperized populace still has enough Jack left to send their kids to school in limousines.

No, woman does not propose but when the cave man grabbed the cave girl by the back hair and was dragging her off to his dark den in the rocks we shouldn't wonder if she wasn't thinking all the way, "Well I thought I'd get him this time."

Judd, who used to ring a cowbell up and down the main drag, has returned from a lengthy trip north to Eugene where he copped a green Freshman lid from some unsuspecting youth.

The spring crop of high school graduates will soon be with us and we hope they don't set the world on fire like they expect to do.

Every day you see nice young women who are willing to trust their whole lives to young men who the butcher wouldn't trust for a dime's worth of liver.

It's toasted. This one extra process gives a delightful quality that can not be duplicated
