CHEEP! CHEEP! CHEEP!

As the chicken said when the Ford ran over it. We are again being accused of selling cheap machinery. Thanks for the free advertising. We admit it. We are glad of it. The people who buy it are glad of it. Everybody's pleased all around. Our competitors tell everybody how cheap it is, the farmers tell everybody how good it is, and we sell the goods. We have some money, and quite a lot of credit, and we have to be very careful of both of them, but we cheerfully put our money behind the quality of the machinery we sell. If you buy a machine from us and it doesn't do the work you want, bring it back and get your money.

SOLVES MYSTERY OF FICTION

Question Long in Dispute Said to Be Explained by Weavings in Persian Rug.

Most Persian rugs tell a story of some sort, but few tell one as clearly as a Persian rug Banks bought and proudly exhibited to his friends.

The rug was at least 200 years old, the dealer said, the prized rug of a family allied by several marriages to the family of the rug merchant. Into it had been woven the history of this first family.

This history is told, not as in most Oriental rugs, in Arabic characters, but in hieroglyphic figures that suggest the whole story. At one end are two figures, man and woman, the founders of the family, and their first home, a humble dwelling. Time passes, represented in the rug by six inches of weave. The couple are able to buy two cows. Children come to the home. Horses and sheep are bought as the family continues to grow prosperous. And in the center of the rug is the symbol of the attainment of great prosperity—a great house.

Banks, the American owner of this rug, declares that the mystery of the origin of American success fiction is solved. Two hundred years and more ago they took this medium to show how perseverance and frugality paid.

MADE THE BRITISHERS GASP

When It Came to Underdone Meat, Cowboy Was in a Class by Himself.

It is related that in the early days of the Southwest, when Fort Worth, Texas, was a railhead and rather on the edge of things, three Englishmen who were bent on seeing the borderlands of America sat down at a table in the dining room of the one small hotel for dinner. The fourth occupant of the table was a cowboy, just in from the range.

Presently the waiter came up and orally presented the menu, announcing that the only meat available was antelope steak, and asking how the guests would like to have it cooked.

"Underdone," said the first Englishman.

"Serve mine very rare," said the second.

"I wish mine scarcely cooked at all; just sear it a bit on a hot griddle, and bring it so," said the remaining Briton.

The waiter turned to the cowboy, who had frankly listened to the three other orders, and the son of the plains drawled, "Wal, just cripple the damned deer a little and chase it through here; I'll git a slice off it before it sits out."—Saturday Evening Post.

GLIDE NEWS.

A surprise party was given Saturday evening, March 3, in honor of the De Bernard family at their home on the North Unquap.

The Glide grange will meet Saturday, March 10.

A large crowd attended the dance given in John Alexander's hall Saturday evening. Everyone reported a good time and expect the same at the next dance, March 17. Everyone is welcome.

Bobby Blakely is improving nicely from an attack of the flu. The Glide Parent Teachers met last Friday night at the school building.

The Christian Workers' Band from Roseburg held services at the church on Sunday the 4th.

Miss Elvan Strader of Dixonville spent the week end with Ruth Blakely.

Miss Nellie Andrus has returned home from Roseburg, where she spent several weeks on account of illness.

Work will be started on the new highway up the river to Diamond Lake soon.

Raymond Andrus had a hard fall Saturday, which resulted in a broken arm.

LEGION PRAISED FOR MEMORIAL DAY FIGHT

INDIANAPOLIS, March 7.—Telegrams and letters have been received from all parts of the country at headquarters of the Indiana department of the American Legion congratulating that organization on its successful effort to prevent the holding of the Indianapolis speedway automobile races on Memorial day. Backed by the Legion, the Memorial day bill was passed in the Indiana house of representatives. Previous favorable action had been taken in the senate.

Because the Indiana Legion members believe that the holding of the speedway races is not in keeping with the spirit of reverence to the dead which should exist on memorial day, the memorial bill was passed first in the Legion's legislative program for the present session of the state legislature. Opposing the ex-service men was a powerful lobby maintained by the speedway interests. Desperate efforts by enemies of the bill to amend it were defeated one after another and the Legion finally emerged from the struggle victorious.

The action of the Indiana department was in accord with resolutions adopted at the 1921 national convention of the Legion at Kansas City and at the last Indiana department convention.

Flower Symbolic of Crucifixion.

When the Spanish sailors were roaming about South and Central America they found a flower so symbolic of the Crucifixion that they named it the "flower of the Passion." In the five-petaled purple or lavender blossoms with stripes of white they saw the crown of thorns and the five marks of the wounds of the Savior. The styles were the three nails, and the stamens were the hammer that drove the nails into His hands and feet. The floral leaves were the two apostles, Judas and Peter being shown; the one having betrayed and the other denied the Master. The leaves were the hands of the persecutors, and the clinging tendrils the scourges.

Some of the species of the flower are cultivated for the pale yellow berries, of the size of a small apple. The seed of some species is poisonous, the juice from them acting like morphine.

THRILLED BY RACING TRAINS

Lying in Berth, Traveler Enjoyed Sight of Locomotives in Keen Contest.

A looker-in at the window confesses to a guilty admiration for a train race. He says that in his travels by night he has a habit of looking out of the window. Sometimes he enjoys views of the starlit heavens which he does not obtain in any other way. Once he was astonished by the sight of a brilliant constellation which he had never observed before. He drew a diagram of it and was told that he had discovered Orion. Early one morning on the Grand Trunk he observed a Canadian Pacific train gaining on his own, with the fireman shoveling in coal with unusual energy.

Evidently the Grand Trunk engineer and fireman saw it, too, for the speed of his own train perceptibly increased, and eventually the national locomotive won out. While the Canadian Pacific train was gaining he regarded the race as a foolish and dangerous performance; but as the contest became more even his point of view changed. It seemed like a healthy competition.

There could be no finer race to watch—it beat horse racing and yacht racing all hollow. He could see all the time which was gaining. Then to lie in bed and witness such a contest suggested that combination of luxury and excitement which was one of the marks of the decadence of Rome. That comparison sobered him again—he did not like to contemplate the decline and fall of our civilization through this kind of indulgence. He admits that it is dangerous, but he would like to see another race.

CAN OUTFLY ANY AIRPLANE

Blowing Teal Duck Has Been Known to Travel at Rate of 300 Miles an Hour.

It is a mistake to suppose that an airplane going at the rate of 248.5 miles per hour could overtake the fastest bird. The blowing teal duck flies in excess of that speed, and has been known to go as fast as 300 miles per hour with an inconsiderable wind in its favor. The hawk is perhaps even faster, though capable of only short bursts of speed. Duck hawks have been known to overtake and catch greenwing teal in the air, and possibly they also catch an occasional blowing. The rush of the duck hawk, if the observer is fortunate enough to see it close up, as concealed duck hunters sometimes are, is perhaps as incredible a phenomenon as there is in nature. It was with hawks that falconry was developed, and it is likely that all birds of prey are capable of high speed.

Whether there is any winged creature as fast as the blowing teal is something bird observers would like to know. The blowing, long of wing and slender of body, a veritable ring-bond of the skies, is built for speed. It no doubt can fly at top speed for hours at a time, and it is probable that many blowing pass in a single day or night from the breeding grounds of the North to those of southern waters on which to winter.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Words With Many Meanings.

In some languages the same sound is used for ever so many different things. Even in English there are words and sounds with more than one meaning. The word "box," for instance, has at least six meanings. "Glass" does duty not only for a very useful vitreous substance, but also for a mirror, a drinking vessel, a barometer, a telescope, and several other things. Or think of the various senses in which the word "case" is used. You can easily recall many English words which have a double or a triple meaning—so spelled differently and mean quite different things, yet have the same sound.

In Japanese, such pitfalls for foreigners are far more numerous and bewildering. The sound ki, for example, has no less than 72 different meanings! In writing, each of these 72 words has a distinct Japanese character all to itself, yet all are pronounced ki.

Lace Announces Visit of Stork.

So fond are Hollanders of their children that when a new baby arrives the parents want to tell the whole world about it. So they hang out a dainty bit of lace on the front door, so neighbors and friends may know the good news. If the baby is a girl, the lace has a background of bright tinsel. If it is a boy, a pink background is used with the lace.

The lace is not only an announcement. It is also an invitation for the neighbors to call. All bring presents. These visits continue for several days after the baby is born.

Father treats the "boys" of the crowd to beer in large steins, while the women drink coffee in honor of the new heir.

Predatory Wasp.

A convict, who wanted more than the regular prison fare, once made a complaint in rather impudic terms. An inspector entered this man's cell and found it very hot and stuffy.

"Why have you your ventilator closed?" he asked.

The prisoner answered plaintively: "Well, inspector, the last time I had the ventilator open a wasp flew in, you see, and carried off my dinner while my back was turned."—Pittsburgh Dispatch.
