LEGISLATIVE LOBBYISTS

Frank M. Dondell, recently Republican floor leader in Congress, said in a recent interview that lobbyists have too much power with Congress. He wishes that members would vote as they talk in the cloakrooms. But according to Mr. Dondell, many of them are waylaid by lobbyists who represent all kinds of interests big and little, and are persuaded to vote against their original judgment.

Roger Babson, the noted statistician, remarked in a recent article, that one of the greatest troubles with boys today, is "green pastures." To one afflicted with this disease he says "the pasture farthest away always looks the greenest."

When parents object to some habit or practice that their children have picked up, they are told that "Everybody's doing it" and that they are "back numbers" if they object.

A determined effort should be put forth by the city and county to build a bridge across the South Umpqua river to Alexander's addition. It is hoped this important step will not be delayed indefinitely but that some concrete way can be devised whereby the city and county can cooperate on a basis that will insure prompt action.

Local merchants have gone one record against fake advertising. This is a capital idea. Hundreds of dollars are filched out of the business men of this community every year by worthless advertising schemes.

Dear Folks: When the morning sun is rising, when its rays begin to shine, gathered 'round the breakfast table many millions sit and dine. Some have eyes with heavy eyelids for they had but little rest, some are feeling mean and groggy, some with spirits much depressed.

For day is what you make it, and you make it at the start. If you leave the breakfast table with a heavy feeling heart you will find it hard to shake it. But go forth gay and you'll find when work is over that you've had a happy day.

PRUNE PICKIN'S BY BERT G. BATES

GOOD EVENING FOLKS— Speakin' of grammatical Errors and slob Which have struck This colyum quite Heavily of late we Wish to say that We have nothing to do With what Dumbell Dora Or Lafe Perkins say And hereby serve notice That we cannot be Held responsible In a court of justice.

Thomas Edison has a hobby of asking college graduates questions to ascertain their fitness for positions. As yet he has been approached of late by local high school students who are looking for positions and we have hit upon Tom's plan of asking questions. The following questions will be asked of all Roseburg high school students applying for a job:

"Four sardines for every man, woman and child in the United States" have been packed by Los Angeles canneries this year, it is announced. If any child, or even man or woman, find that four are not enough, he can have eight so far as ye ed. is concerned.

SAYINGS OF THE GREAT! Adam: It was a great life if you didn't weaken. Plutarch: I am sorry that I have no more lives to give to my country. Samson: I'm strong for you, kid. Jonah: You can't keep a good man down.

David: The bigger they are the harder they fall. Helen of Troy: So this is Paris. Columbus: I don't know where I'm going, but I'm on my way.

Nero: Keep the home fires burning. Noah: It floats. Solomon: I love the ladies. Methusalem: The first hundred years are the hardest.

Queen Elizabeth to Sir Walter Raleigh—Keep your shirt on. The cow college fellers are stagin' a hop tonight for the high school boys and girls in hopes of enticin' some of 'em to their insitut next year.

Mark Jones, the rattlesnake rancher, was in the village last week getting his hirsute adornment trimmed.

Dist. Atty. Gawge Neuner is back from the Coos Bay district where he diffused the atmosphere with oratory.

Hank Ford, the famous tinsmith, is getting his campaign hat brushed up for 1924 and if elected promises to make his son Edsel, secretary of war, which should insure perpetual peace.

DUMBELL DORA THINKS Edison is the man who sings for phonograph records.

Considering what bootleg has done to stomachs, even if beer should come back it probably wouldn't recognize the old place.

Our sanctum this week made an attempt to paint up the exterior of the bldg, but were thwarted by bystanders who insisted on packing most of it away on their coat-sleeves.

A breakfast food peddler was in our midst today and distributed shredded hay and such which insures us of a morning meal as long as the samples last.

We all make mistakes but thank goodness the other fellows always looks worse than our own.

The preacher was out in his garden, working in his shirt sleeves. He was making a fence. A small boy was watching him over the wall.

"Ah, Johnny," said the preacher, "trying to pick up a few hints so as to become a carpenter?"

"No," said Johnny, "waiting to hear what a preacher says when he hits his thumb a hell of a smack with a hammer."

The trouble with runnin' a colyum of lite saying and witticism and epigrams and such is that folks expect you to make 'em laugh when you're talking to 'em.

STATE PRESS COMMENTS

In the Same Class Governor Pierce addressed the students at Willamette university Thursday, using as his subject the position that the denominational school holds in the educational field and its importance and value to society.

The point is well taken. Each fills its own field and each is a friendly stimulus to the other. But what is the essential difference between the denominational school of higher education and the denominational school of primary education? If one is of value to the nation, why is not the other? Why does the governor deem higher education in private schools beneficial, and primary education so harmful that he advocated its abolition in Oregon? And can the private primary school be eliminated, without later eliminating the private college?—Capital Journal.

Jobs For Lame Ducks There will be a couple of jobs on the new joint commission for the regulation and control of the halibut fisheries of the North Pacific.

That Penitentiary Fracas. Much has been said and is being said relative to the present administration at the state penitentiary at Salem. From this distance it appears to be a political scrap, purely and simply.

Every little incident out of the ordinary, and some that are not out of the ordinary, have been pounced upon by enemies of Warden Smith, or rather the bitter opposers of Governor Pierce, who do not have the welfare of the state of Oregon sufficiently at heart to get behind the present administration or at least keep quiet until it has been proven incompetent.

We are not of the political faith of the present executive, nor do we approve of all of his policies, but we are loyal Oregonians and believe in supporting our administration until it proves itself unworthy of our support.

We do not approve of knocking when there is nothing to knock about. No matter how efficient Governor Pierce and his aides may be, they have not had sufficient time to accomplish much good, especially when a certain element tried to prevent achievements by shouting an adverse public opinion.—Marshfield Daily News.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN The City of Roseburg has a good bell that can be had very cheaply, and any one wishing such a bell should apply to R. L. Whipple, City Recorder, for prices. The bell weighs about eleven hundred pounds.

N. Y. LIFE INSURANCE CO. MUST PAY BULGARIANS IN GOLD AS PER CONTRACTS (International News Service.)

SOFIA, March 21.—A three-year fight in Bulgaria between the New York Life Insurance Company and its policy holders in Bulgaria has just ended, with victory perching on the banner of the Bulgarians.

When European currency depreciated as a result of factors attributable to the war the insurance company began paying off its policies in paper less. The policy holders contended that the terms of their contract called for payment in gold.

After considerable negotiation the company agreed to submit the matter to the Bulgarian courts for adjudication, and the courts have now ruled that the company is bound to make payments in gold. The decision is a costly one, the American company, as it will now be unable to take advantage of the exchange rate.

CROOKS RUINED HAVEN OF LOVERS Denver Girl Says Prospective Husbands Are Shy of Maid Who Approaches Them—Think It Bunco Game

By MICHAEL F. DACEY International News Service Staff Correspondent. DENVER, March 21.—The "bunco men" have even spoiled Denver's most popular trysting place, according to the wall of pretty 20-year-old Dorothy Adams.

Dorothy declares that the "bunco" men have ruined Denver's beautiful civic center as a hunting ground for matrimonial game because of the wide publicity given the trial of 29 alleged confidence men in criminal court here charged with swindling victims out of hundreds of thousands of dollars through fake race track and fake stock market transactions.

Dorothy donned all her swell clothes and "prettied up" on a balmy Sunday afternoon and took a stroll through the civic center with both eyes open for a prospective husband.

"I saw two about men," she chirped, after a policeman had picked her up, charged with "ragrancy," "but I guess there's a couple of hands in the deck I haven't seen."

"I've got a soft spot in my heart for a home, and all that sort of thing, but I don't want to look across the coffee cup into the eyes of some fresh young punk. I want a nice old man, and I thought the civic center was just the place to get hold of the kind of man I wanted. I had a dream that if I could find the right man our affair might lead to marriage."

Dorothy spied a nicely dressed old gentleman strolling through the Greek theater. A smile, a little squeeze of the old boy's arm and a little girlish chatter resulted in a speaking acquaintance between her and the old gentleman.

They sauntered to a romantically secluded spot and sat down. Presently, however, the old man said he had an appointment with a friend, but would return in a few minutes. When he came back he was accompanied by a "copper."

"I guess he thought I was the wife of one of those bunco men," sighed Dorothy, waiting arraignment in police court.

ENGLISH BARTENDER GETS INTO SHAPE IN GYM TO MIX U. S. TOURIST DRINKS (By International News Service.)

LONDON, March 21.—The cocktail season is about to open and Harry Craddock, the "cocktail king" has gone into training.

King Harry reigns at the Savoy Hotel, where during the tourist season a great number of Americans in London congregate. Being an American himself, King Harry knows the taste of his fellow countrymen.

"Every evening," said Harry, "I mix at least 100,000 cocktails for Americans alone. I also shake up a few thousand assorted drinks for visitors of other nationalities. It is real work and I find it necessary every year before the season opens to undergo at least a fortnight's preparation. I spend three hours in the morning and three in the afternoon in a gymnasium and when the season opens I am always in the pink."

NEUNER RETURNS FROM COOS COUNTY District Attorney George Neuner returned last night from Coquille and Marshfield, where he has been spending the past week assisting District Attorney Ben S. Fisher of Coos county, in the prosecution of L. W. Peare, charged with the murder of James Culver. Peare was found guilty of murder in the first degree and is to be sentenced soon.

Mr. Neuner states that the people of Coos county are looking forward to the completion of the highway between Roseburg and Marshfield in order that they may become better acquainted with Douglas county. There is a general feeling, he states, that the counties have not been as close as they should have been for the interest of both, as the interests are for the most part common.

With the completion of the coast highway by way of Myrtle Point, and the linking up of the Roseburg-Treosport highway with the Roosevelt highway, there will doubtless be a great change for the material benefit of both Coos and Douglas counties.

In commenting on the murder trial of Judge Kendall very highly, Judge Kendall was appointed to take the place of Judge Coke, who was made U. S. District Attorney. Although this was his first big case since taking the position, he handled it in a masterly way and what he lacked in experience he more than made up in adaptability. His decisions were made with dispatch indicating an enviable knowledge of procedure and much hard work.

SEES BIG FISH The yachi Tamiami bearing the largest fish in the world, together with its deep sea museum, arrived at the city concrete pier at sunset yesterday from Miami enroute to Atlantic City and New York. The Tamiami will spend several days here during which time the residents of Palm Beach and West Palm Beach, as well as the visiting tourists, will be given an opportunity of seeing its interesting cargo.

The great creature forming the nucleus of the exhibit was captured by Capt. Thompson off Kipling Key, after a battle lasting 39 hours, and after it had been harpooned five times and shot 121 times with a large calibre rifle. Its hide is three inches thick and scientists claim that it lived at a depth of 1500 or more feet below the surface of the ocean.

Its length is 45 feet and it weighed 30,000 pounds. Biblical students believe that the capture of the creature proven the moored story relating to the prophet Jonah. They say that once you see the monster you will feel convinced that it could have swallowed twenty Jupiters.

Scientists have never been able to classify it in natural history. It is neither whale nor shark. Its species or genus is unknown.
