WOMEN LIKE TO LOOK PRETTY

The householder who observes his wife poring over a magazine of spring fashions, or notes his daughters gazing with rapt attention in a millinery window, sometimes groans in spirit. He may feel that the cost of women's clothing is a heavy drain on the family purse. Yet there is a deep rooted instinct that leads the women folks to seek for new and pretty finery, particularly when the sun comes back from his wintry journey. The return of color in the heavens and to nature is echoed by the women folks. Anything that has become such a permanent habit must be supported by some legitimate reasons. No doubt the women instinctively feel that they would not be so pleasing unless they did thus reflect the changes of the season, and adorn themselves with the colors that men like to see. Perhaps the men would not be so easily lured in marriage if the girls failed to make themselves this attractive. If they simply dressed in dun and drab tones, the masculine eye might pass them over and decide that he could get along without them. But when the girls get rigged out in all their spring garments, they give an impression of brightness and cheer that seems to have its share in capturing the male heart, and thus promotes marriage and family life. A company of women dressed in their new spring clothes is a study in color, and the varied shades and tints give an impression of festivity. The use of this color by women tends to add cheer to life. But those who are of a thrifty mind can give this impression of brightness without great expense. Many fabrics are sold in the stores of Roseburg that look mighty attractive, but which are quite inexpensive. Many girls have learned to make their own clothes, and not all those who blossom out in gay attire have spent any large amount of money on it.

The fellow who can get up early in the morning, slip into his trousers and hike three miles to a golf links, poke the balls around nine holes and return to the city in time to "hit the ball" at eight o'clock for a full day's work, shows a whole lot of "pep" for a two hours' shift. "But we ain't what we used to be" at twenty-five, so fall to see where the "kick" comes in on these early morning activities.

George Harvey, America's ambassador to Great Britain, is coming home for the purpose of managing the administration campaign for entrance into the international court of league of Nations. If there is any single person who can throw a "ring" around the league of nations George is the boy who can deliver the goods. He knows the thing from A to Z.

Now that the broccoli crop has been harvested we can all hit her up and wait for the prune harvest and other miscellaneous crops to mature, after which we will take on the turkey outfit for Thanksgiving and holidays that follow.

A number of exchanges are commenting on "how old is a man." Pretty soon they will try to discover the age of women, which calls to mind that "a woman is as old as she looks and a man is old when he fails to look."

File that tax receipt away and guard it closely. Remember a fifty-fifty reduction was made in pre-campaign promises and you don't want to overlook this fact. It is only a small item but worth remembering.

The population of the United States is on the increase. But Uncle Sam has nothing on Douglas county, we're growing some, every day in every way.

THE VILLAGE RHYMESTER
by Carlyle Emery

Dear Folks:

An orphaned child was Bobby Bliss, no Mother's love had he. No Daddy used to hold him close or bounce him on his knee. He lived with Uncle Johnathon, who thought that little boys were made to run on errands and to keep from making noise.

For Johnathon had never wed. The child had no appeal save one of himself daily that he tried his best to feel. When Bobby'd laugh and shout and run and spit his uncle's nap, he found that happy little boys must learn to take a slap without a cry or answer back, without a sob or tear, or otherwise the hated switch would suddenly appear.

And so the things he liked to do, he did upon the sly, he learned to steal and other things that honest folks deery. Then talk began to circulate about it being said, to see so bright and handsome boy so wicked and so bad. They threw him out of Sunday school, of public schools as well. They seemed to get a keen delight if they could only tell some story of his wickedness, but oh the crying shame. For much of wrong that Bobby did, twice they were to blame.

To make a child believe he's bad, is just a crushing blow, but tell him of his worthiness and watch him worthy grow.

Gov. Wally Pierce has proclaimed April 17th a holiday to allow the state to turn out and see the Portland Beavers pull a few boners on the opening of the ball season. If this habit of calling holidays continues we'll soon be closing the schools every time the state executive wants to play a game of rummy.

ADVICE TO THE LOVELORN

by MRS. ELLSBURY

(Addresses all communications to Mrs. Ellsbury, care of News-Review.)

Dear Mrs. Ellsbury: I wonder if you can tell us how tall the moving picture star Walter Hiers is, and how much does he weigh. We have had a bet on it, but haven't been able to find the information.

KLEVER KIDS.

Ans. Walter Hiers is 5 feet 10 1/2 inches tall, and weighs 230 pounds.

Dear Mrs. Ellsbury: I have two girl friends coming to visit me next month. They will be here a week. I have been invited to a party the night that they arrive, and I do not know the hostess well enough to ask her if I can bring the girls also. It is a party at which everyone is supposed to attend in couples anyway, and it would make two extra girls. Should I decline the party?

MARION.

Ans. By all means decline the party. Call the hostess and tell her that as you are expecting guests that night you will be unable to attend. It is the only thing for you to do.

Dear Mrs. Ellsbury: I am going with a boy, and think a great deal of him, although I have only gone with him for two months. The only thing about him I object to is the fact that he goes with a boy that I know is no good and has a bad reputation. They are very good friends although the boy I go with has a good reputation, and people think well of him. Should I tell him not to go with him? Is there anything at all that I can do about it?

MARVEL.

Ans. If he is a good friend with the boy you mention, he is not apt to take very kindly anything that you would say. As you have only gone with him a short time you have no right to criticize his friendships any way, although I can understand how you feel about it. Why not wait until sometime when the opportunity comes, and feel him out about it. Ask him if some of the things that you have heard about his friend are true, and in that way encourage him to talk about it. It might be that you were also a little prejudiced.

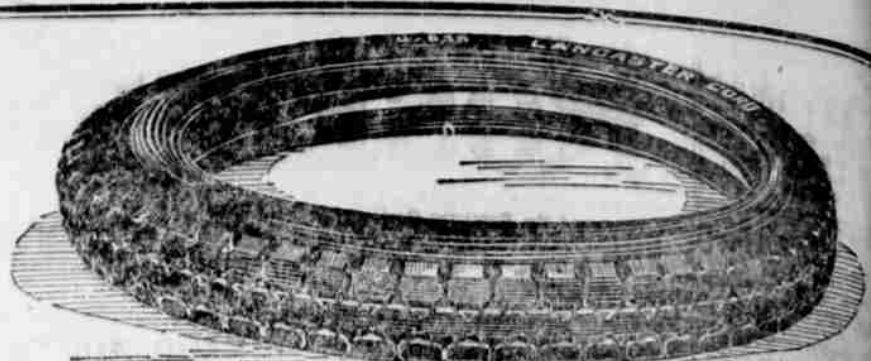

NERVOUS WOMAN COMPLETE WRECK

Tells How She Was Made Well by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Indianapolis, Indiana.—"Now I want to tell you just what induced me to take your medicine. It seemed that I had some kind of weakness so that I could not carry a child in full time. The last time I was troubled this way I had a nervous breakdown and was a complete wreck. The doctor thought I would not live, and if I did that I would never be well and strong again. But I told them I was going to get well, that I was not going to die just then. My husband got me Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I took six bottles of it. I soon got strong again and had three more children. I have recommended the Vegetable Compound ever since, and if you could see me now you would think I had always been well."—Mrs. Mary F. HERRICK, 224 Detroit St., Indianapolis, Ind.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is an excellent medicine for expectant mothers and should be taken during the entire period. It has a general effect to strengthen and tone up the entire reproductive system, so that it may work in every respect effectually as nature intends.

Who Developed the Famous Beveled Buttress Tread? LANCASTER!

The definite superiority of Lancaster Tires is recognized not only at home but abroad. Three great foreign nations have granted basic patents on Lancaster construction.

Look at the Lancaster tread—sturdy, generous blocks of solid rubber. Observe the triangular sections, supporting every block in the outer rows of the tread. These triangular sections are the famous beveled buttresses which reinforce the blocks, keep them from spreading under weight of the load and prevent rapid wear.

Since 1920, Lancaster tires have been built with an exceptionally broad, flat tread —greater surface for the distribution of wear—better traction—more mileage.

Beyond all question, Lancaster set a precedent for the whole tire industry when it pioneered in bringing out the beveled buttress and the semi-flat tread.

Come in and examine the C.A. Cross-Section. Get the "inside story" of Lancaster Quality.
