Ladies, Attention!

We presume it is the time you are thinking of an oil stove for summer use. Whether or not, we will be pleased to have you take note of what we have in that line.

There has been some advances made in construction of burners that make the new stove very much more desirable. We are offering Perfection Super-fex while on display at the old price of $41.00, against $49.00, the new price; a 3-burner New Perfection $25.50, with top $33.50; Alcazar 3-burner $26.50, with top $33.00; Jewel, new, a great advance over the old one, 3-burner $25.50, and with Olive Top $32.00; 3-burner, old style, while they last, at $18.00.

Summer Stoves soon become a year round necessity, so why not buy now and have the use of them.

Stoves are to be had in 2, 3, and 4-burner.

DR. WITTER AT BAPTIST CHURCH IN MORNING

The people of the Baptist congregation will have another real treat tomorrow when they hear Dr. W. E. Witter, who for many years has served as a successful missionary in Assam. He is thoroughly acquainted with this part of the world having lived there for a long time. He is said to be a good speaker with a splendid message. He is now in America on his furlough. The public is cordially invited to hear him tomorrow morning at 11:00.

Tomorrow night at 7:30 the pastor will give his latest message before he goes east for a few weeks stay. Miss Gertrude Wickham will sing with the Edison. Her voice goes with Helen Clark's most beautifully.

Pine Grove Church. There will be Sunday school at 2 o'clock. Rev. Quick will speak at 3, April 22. There was a slight mistake in the notice of Mrs. Silbaugh's address. Instead of at 2 it will follow the usual sermon. Everyone is invited and we will expect a large crowd.

"A PURITAN WIFE"

By Jane Phelps

CHAPTER 6

"She's a beauty, isn't she?" Dick said as Ann settled herself beside him in the flivver. "She'll make things lively for us all."

"Yes, she is very beautiful." Ann replied. "The prettiest girl I have ever seen, I think."

Until they drove into the rude shack where Dick kept the car, he never ceased talking of Grace, praising her beauty, her cleverness. Over and over he spoke of the addition she would be to their little quartette.

"Ned will have to invite some of the young men so we'll be an even number," Ann suggested.

"I don't see why! I guess Ned and I can take care of three of you." Dick quickly replied.

Ann said no more, but again that little jealous feeling—a feeling of which she was ashamed—assailed her. She would not admit it even to herself, so answered more warmly than she otherwise would have done.

"Of course you two big fellows can take care of us. Only I thought it would make things more lively for her."

"She'll make things lively enough! She is fairly overflowing with health and good spirits. Just the kind of a girl to have on a ranch."

Ann made no reply but sighed a bit as she thought of her frailness. She was practically well, but she tired easily and long walks were beyond her. The care of her little home and helping Dick with his accounts, took all her strength.

The next morning, Dick his sunny loving self, Ann took herself to task for her unkind thoughts of Grace.

"I ought to be ashamed of myself," she said aloud as she went about her tasks. "The idea of letting a pretty girl upset me. Dick was only trying to be polite to Bessie's guest."

A day or two passed then. Ned, Bessie and Grace drove up to the ranch house. Ned was on his way to town to get the victrola. Dick was just starting for the grove, and Grace insisted upon going along, declaring she could walk miles without tiring. Dick looked sheepishly pleased and Ned called:

"Don't make love to her, Dick!"

"Don't you be silly, Ned!" Bessie said rather sharply for her. "Dick isn't so foolish."

"I don't know about that!" Ned laughed. "Anyway it was my duty to warn him." Then he drove off leaving Bessie and Ann standing in the doorway, Dick and Grace Edmunds rapidly disappearing beneath the orange trees. As they went into the house Bessie said in a tense voice:

"Oh, I wish she hadn't come!"

"Why, Bessie! Has—don't you like her?" Ann asked.

"No, I hate her! She visited us once before, two years ago, when we were first married. She tried to keep Ned with her every minute she stayed. I might as well have been a dummy for all the difference I made to her. I never said a word, pretended I didn't notice. But it hurt me dreadfully. She only stayed two weeks then. Now she is to stay for a month perhaps. Her people have gone to South America—her father has business there that may keep him. He wrote Ned asking us to take her, and without saying anything to me until after he had answered the letter, he told them we would keep her gladly until they returned. She has brought a trunkful of the loveliest clothes and a riding habit. She told Ned at breakfast this morning he must get her a horse to ride, and he promised. I love to ride but he always said he couldn't afford a saddle horse for me. Grace is the type of girl that gets everything she wants. I believe Ned would sell the ranch if she asked him to."

Ann listened to the quiet, reserved Bessie with amazement. Her instinctive dislike of the newcomer had been right. But she wouldn't add to Bessie's unhappiness by saying so. Instead she laughed at her friend for thinking Ned would dream of being foolish, and tried to persuade her she was making a mountain out of less than a molehill.

"She's probably been spoiled," Ann said. "She is so pretty, and irresponsible. But Ned is true blue, Bessie. Try not to think she will make trouble. I am sure she won't."

Yet even as Ann spoke her gaze wandered through the window in the direction Grace and Dick had taken.

"She's dangerous, Ann! I don't trust her. She flirts with every man she meets. And a woman means nothing to her. Ned and I were so happy, and she's only been here three days and already he scarcely knows I'm alive. She monopolizes the conversation, his time, him. There I've got it out of my system, Ann, we won't talk about her any more."

It was five o'clock when Dick and Grace got back to the house. Ann heard them laughing gayly, and Grace looked as fresh as when they started out four hours before. Her eyes sparkled, her cheeks glowed, and as she threw herself in a chair she declared:

"I've had a corking time, Dick! I'll keep you company often."

GREEN AND VICINITY

The pupils of the Green school welcomed Mrs. Goff on Monday morning. She has been absent for several weeks on account of the illness and loss of her father.

Mrs. Jackson Silbaugh, of Seattle, a National lecturer for the W. C. T. U. spoke at Green school house on Sunday. Her message was right to the point and much valuable information was given, to help in enforcement of the prohibition law. The enforcement laws passed at the last legislature, she stated gave Oregon the best laws of this kind of any state.

Blossom day is every day now, in this section, making our section beautiful.

Many of the Glengary W. C. T. U. attended the Law Enforcement Conference held at the M. E. church in Roseburg, Monday. Wednesday sixteen of the members attended a meeting at the home of Mrs. John Moffitt in town. Mrs. Moffitt is still one of us, and we enjoyed our meeting with her. She served a dainty lunch at the close of the meeting, and all expressed the desire to meet with her again.

Green S. S. will have an all day meeting "Mother's Day," May 13, at the school house. Preaching service in the morning and S. S. with a program in the afternoon, followed by a sermon. Our S. S. is having new members added almost every Sunday. Come and help us, and perhaps we can also be of help to you.

Rev. Needham gave us a very helpful sermon on Sunday. His subject was especially adapted to fathers and mothers of boys, and from our observation of the boy, was surely true to life. He also included girls but the boys present took it as especially to them. Just what we need if only the parents could all have heard it. Let us awaken and take care of the most precious possession we have, our children. As a community we are responsible, as parents God will hold us to account if we neglect them.

Dance, dance, dance all the evening Tuesday April 24th to the strains of the Seven Serenaders.

In one of the closest and best inter-class contests to be held at the high school this year Norman Hess, freshman, walked away with first place in a declamation contest. Clarence Searing, senior, received second place Eugene Bowden junior third place and Ray Burt, sophomore fourth place. The contest was the next to last literary contest of the inter-class series and proved to be one of the very best of the season. Each reading showed careful preparation and was given with exceptional skill. The judges for the contest were: Mrs. L. T. Hulse, Mrs. J. H. Runyan and M. E. Ritter.

Prof. C. H. Castle, of Pacific Union college, St. Helena, California arrived here this afternoon on No. 12, and was met at the depot by Elder A. V. Rheades, president of the Southern Oregon Conference, and F. A. Lachler, of Sutherlin, and later in the day the party motored to Sutherlin. Prof. Castle will head the faculty of Sutherlin Academy for the coming year, having recently been offered that position by the executive board of the conference. He will remain in Sutherlin for a few days before returning to California to arrange for moving here, probably late in June.

MOTHER OF LARGE FAMILY

Recommends Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to Other Mothers

Windom, Minn.—"I was so run-down that I was just good for nothing. I was to become the mother of my ninth child and I thought I did not have the strength to go through with it. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it has surely done all I could ask it to do and I am telling all my friends about it. I have a nice big baby girl and am feeling fine. You may use this letter to help other sick mothers."—Mrs. C. A. MOEDE, Box 624, Windom, Minn.

My First Child

Glen Allen, Alabama.—"I have been greatly benefited by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for bearing-down feelings and pains. I was troubled in this way for nearly four years following the birth of my first child, and at times could hardly stand on my feet. A neighbor recommended the Vegetable Compound to me after I had taken doctor's medicines without much benefit. It has relieved my pains and given me strength. I recommend it and give you permission to use my testimonial letter."—Mrs. IDA RYE, Glen Allen, Alabama.

MARRIAGE AID TO EDUCATION, SAYS STUDENT

By JOHN D. MUELLER,
(International News Service Staff Correspondent.)

CHICAGO, April 20.—The chap who works his way through college and is really anxious to get something out of his work should get married right at the start. It's the necessary stabilizing influence—takes the women off his mind and gives him time to think.

This is the formula for success in school work prescribed by Merwyn Heald, engineering student at Northwestern University. To back up his claims that matrimony "makes the man," Heald points to a third scholarship record shattered by him. For three seasons he has been supreme finishing the last semester with an average of 94.2 per cent.

Concentrates Better

To show when a fellow gets down to business and studies in a home of his own he is able to concentrate as never before Heald points to a 2-months-old babe. The baby, he says, has been broadcasting a programme all of its own for several weeks, but even that bothers this student not in the least when he becomes engrossed in his studies.

"I'm going to school now as a business," Heald said in discussing his successes. "When I went before it was merely a pastime.

"It's the best thing that ever happened to me in the way of getting a college education—getting married.

"The only place to study is in a home of your own. I went to Nebraska University. I was single then. I was fraternity man. I soon found that a 'frat' house doesn't settle down until after midnight. Then you can settle down and study.

"Now my work is all over and I am in bed at that hour. Get married—and you're stabilized. You have a serious attitude toward your work. You're not wasting seven nights a week 'fussing' the girls, as I used to do in the old days."

Heald admits that if there was a lack of co-operation in his household things might not run so smoothly. But there is no such lack, he says—and pridefully. Never does he have to wear out the carpet singing the baby to sleep when he should be at his school work. That his wife should take care of that end of the work was agreed to long ago, Heald says.

"We co-operate, and everything's great—it's the real stuff!" he exclaimed enthusiastically.
