Entered as second class matter May 17, 1920, at the post office at Roseburg, Oregon, under the Act of March 3, 1879.

ROSEBURG, OREGON, TUESDAY, MAY 8, 1923.

WOMAN CLUB ACTIVITIES

One of the great forces of community life at the present time is found in the clubs and other organizations of women. Many movements of civic betterment have resulted from their efforts.

The practice of wearing the scarlet Flanders poppy annually May 30, in memory of the boys who died in the World War will be adopted throughout the nation if Legion plans are fulfilled.

Roseburg people will be called upon this week to subscribe to a fund for the purpose of establishing a public library building in this city. The request should meet with a ready response.

"Stop, look and listen" is not only a good slogan for railway crossings, but is applicable to "blind" corners where two automobiles are likely to put in appearance at a high rate of speed.

Roseburg has many things to be proud about, among which is its fine musical organization, the Roseburg Concert Band. Now let's get something else to be proud about.

Don't take any chances. Give the other fellow the right of way whether it belongs to him or not, for some of 'em will take it anyway.

Dear Folks:— Rasputin was a Russian who could neither read nor write. He played on superstition and it gave him would o' might.

He claimed to be a wizard and he practiced magic art which fooled the poor Czarina and endeared him to her heart. He revealed in lucidness, a wicked soul was he, and yet 'twas superstition that enabled him to see the whole of Russia moving underneath his crafty command.

Just what his will accomplished, is a story that is old. It's that thru the eggs, as a lesson will be told. Rasputin's gone over, he was murdered for his doings. Yet Revolution wages as the flower of the seeds he planted in the bosoms of his countrymen so deep, no power can remove them save an everlasting sleep.

Let's have one God and only one to whom we kneel in prayer. Let's cast out superstition and let's clarify the air of things unreal, untruth. Let's be thankful we can know, there's One we may rely on Who will show the way to go.

PRUNE PICKIN'S BY BERT G. BATES

GOOD EVENING, FOLKS The boys are out With their Alfalfa lids— Same wearin' This year's crop And some with ones Resuscitated from The old haymow.

DUMBELL DORA THINKS A hum-bug is a man inclined toward tumbling tines.

Most of us become disgusted when we hafta lock a few minutes for a collar button, but we'll search a couple hours on the golf course for a lost ball without gettin' hot under the collar.

The schools will soon be out for the summer vacation and the youngsters will be pesterin' Maw for bread and jam seven times per day.

The first stink bug of the season was reported to this sanctum today. All out with gas masks.

To rant and rave Is our prerogative If you like our stuff Make no confession For if you do They're sure to say "The bird is nutty— He's a hick town jay."

The city fathers met last eve and we expected to see the cluster lamps installed this a. m. but the prehistoric stand lamps were still in place.

The town cop has pressed his uniform and is again walking the main street beat.

The salmon gaffers are quite hot up because some local anglers have been molesting the fish with hook and line. They declare that the last named method of catching the wary minnows is nothing less than barbarous and state that playing hide and seek with 'em with a grappling hook is the proper means to put the fish out of their misery.

Once in a while our scissors flit on a rare gem of poetry and here's today's gleanings:

I want to live with myself, and so, I want to be fit for myself to know, I want to be able as the days go by Always to look myself straight in the eye;

I don't want to stand with the zapping sun And hate myself for the things I've done; I don't want to hide on the closet shelf

A lot of secrets about myself, And fool myself as I come and go Into thinking that no one else will know

The kind of man I really am: I don't want to dress up myself in sham;

I want to go out with my head erect, I want to deserve all men's respect, And here, in this struggle for fame and self,

I want to be able to like myself; I want to look at myself and know That I'm not all bluff and bluster and empty show;

I see what others may never see, I know what others may never know, I never can fool myself, and so, Whatever happens I want to be Self-respecting and conscience free.

Behn' courteous to wimmen is like pullin' eye teeth for some men.

"In the Garden of the Shah" will take place tomorrow night. Pahaw, yes it will, pahaw!

A jazz band is in the village today for the purpose of giving the taro shakers an opportunity to dialocate a few joints.

The roses are in bloom and the strawberries are ripe, and as yet our admirers haven't brought in either variety to this sanctum for the usual news item which they get.

EFFICIENCY! Efficiency is a great thing. It consists of getting up a scheme of work that divides the job among twice as many helpers. An essential element is a card index system. One man knows how to put it in, another how to make the cards, another how to fill 'em out. Then all yuh gotta have is some old-fashioned clerk that always needs an answer. He's the fellow who finds things when you want 'em by remembering where they are.

Mrs. Finn, the belle next door, is being a little cool to her husband just now. Yesterday as she was trying to think of a new way to arrange the living room furniture, Nick interrupted to ask if he had a pair of socks with both heels and toes. He said his pair he was wearing weren't socks, they were slippers.

"He heard the bell but tried to stand And beat the snappers to it. The poor galoot now twangs a lute— Take heed and don't you do it."

The cat will now sing, "The Hymn of Hope."

"Never see a fellow with a new suit on stravin' in front of a window nothin' at his rattlesnake!"

ADVICE TO THE LOVELORN by MRS. ELLSBURY (Address all communications to Mrs. Ellsbury, care of News-Review.)

Dear Mrs. Ellsbury: I am going to tell you all about myself, because I am sure that you can help me. I am 18 years old, and have graduated from high school. I live with my mother and father, and we are just comfortably well off.

For the last year, since I graduated, I have been just staying at home, not doing anything at all worth while, until I am so dissatisfied that I am unhappy all the time, although I do not let my mother or father see it. I can't keep on this way; I will never amount to anything, although I haven't thought of it until the past few months. Can you help me, see a way out for me? Father buys my clothes of course, and keeps me in spending money. He is not stingy, but that isn't enough. I want to do something myself. If you will help me I will be ever so grateful. ANXIOUS.

I wish you had told me what you like the most to do. What your real talents or ambitions are. If you like music, take lessons on something. Practice four hours a day, and make yourself the best musician in town. You have the leisure and you will be doing something worth while to yourself, and that will bring you an income. Music is an education itself. Along with your music study the extension courses from the University of Oregon. Write the extension department for their catalogue and study the courses that are most interesting to you. Do you know that you can secure one-third of the necessary credits for graduation by correspondence study? If you wish to become Plaintiff alleges that his wife frequently cursed him in the presence of other persons and endeavored to humiliate him on every occasion. He is represented by Attorneys Coshaw and Compton.

STRONG NOTE WRITTEN— MOSCOW, May 8.—A long note reviewing the numerous British complaints against Soviet Russia, couched in such strong terms that it may bring the Russo-British relations to an issue, was handed to Maxim Litvinoff, assistant commissioner for foreign affairs, today by British representative, Robert M. Hodgson. Anticipating a break in relations, the British mission several days ago warned all Britishers in such strong terms that it may short notice.

a good stenographer, rent a typewriter, get the beginner's books and study it. You can teach it to yourself. And read, read good books. Don't neglect that. By persistence, and use of your leisure, you can give yourself an education that many college students will envy.

Every Woman

—that bakes with Calumet—and there are millions of them—has learned three important baking facts.

First; that she never has any failures, which means no loss of time and material.

Second; that her bakings are always pure and wholesome, which goes a long way toward perfect health.

Third; that the greater than usual leavening strength of Calumet stands for economy because she uses less.
