"A PURITAN WIFE"
By Jane Phelps

CHAPTER XXXII.
Ann kept to her resolve. She ate her meals with Dick, and she did not tidy the living room, although it hurt her neat soul to see the way Grace cared for it. But she felt the girl hated her, that she would in some way repay her. It became almost an obsession with her; she even went so far as to fear Grace might injure little Jack.

Without a glance in her direction Ann said:
"Grace, will you leave us alone. I want to talk business with Dick."
"Don't you worry my patient; and don't you scold him. A little drink never hurt a Viking! They're so big and strong."

"Use your judgment, Ann. Your idea seems to be all right. I'll be able to hobble about on crutches in another week, then I can relieve you. Too bad you have so much to attend to, little girl. Not many women with no experience could have done it. But my little school-ma'am wife seems to be getting along all right. Ned told me the Chinks picked faster for you than he'd ever seen them. That they call you the "pitty lady." I guess I'll go to sleep now Ann. I don't know what makes me so drowsy." He was asleep almost before he ceased talking.

Clarke was waiting. She must tell him she accepted his offer.

New Shirley Mason Dance Scores Hit
A new dance step which is destined to become nation-wide in popularity is demonstrated by Shirley Mason in her latest William Fox production "Shirley of the Circus" at the Majestic Theatre tonight.

William Farnum in "Shackles of Gold"
William Farnum puts up a terrific fight for love and revenge in his latest William Fox picture, "Shackles of Gold," which will be at the Antlers Theatre tonight for a two days run. "Shackles of Gold" is based on Henri Bernstein's great stage success, "Samson." In the picture Farnum rises from the position of dock laborer to that of millionaire and weds a girl whose parents—social climbers—need his money. The girl, however, refuses to carry out her contract, telling him flatly that she married him only because of her parents. After persistently spurning him as her husband, she arouses his deadly ire by going secretly to a party with another man. Farnum in his wrath breaks the stock market in order to break the man who had tempted his wife—and he breaks himself in addition; but in the end he achieves what he fought for—a return of his love.

Ethel Clayton in Strong Role.
Radiantly beautiful and brilliantly capable in a role that gives her full play for her exceptional ability to register emotion, Ethel Clayton again adds to her claim for a foremost place in the movie hall of fame through her work in "Can a Woman Love Twice?" her second starring vehicle for Film Booking Offices, which will be screened for the first time in this city at the Liberty Theatre Thursday and Friday.

UNIVERSITY MUSICIANS
HERE ON MAY 28TH

The entertainment committee of the local Elks lodge are sponsoring a concert which will be given in the reception rooms at the Elks hall, Tuesday, May 29. Miss Aurora Potter, violinist, of the school of music at the University of Oregon will be presented in concert accompanied on the piano by her sister, Mrs. Rex Underwood, also of the school of music. Both Miss Potter and Mrs. Underwood have enviable reputations throughout the state in musical circles, and are acquiring prominence in their line. They are giving a series of concerts in the state, and were secured by the Elks for this city. The concert is free of charge.

GLIDE NEWS
Glide had a nice rain last Friday night which did much good to all kinds of crops.
Mr. and Mrs. Al Hall are visiting this week with Mr. and Mrs. Earl Hill.

Miss Cooley held a very interesting millinery school last week at the Glide hall. We hope to get her back here this fall to give us lessons in dress making.

The president of the Farm Bureau was here last Monday night with his motion picture machine and also a radio set which we all enjoyed very much along with the good talks from Mr. Cooney and Mr. Kruger.

Sixteen members of Glide grange motored to South Deer Creek grange to pay them a fraternal visit, and were royally entertained. After the usual business and program a dance was enjoyed until twelve o'clock after which a bounteous supper was served by the ladies of the Deer Creek grange.

FAMOUS WOMEN HONOR MONROE

LOS ANGELES, Calif., May 21.—Notable women of both Americas are expected to participate in the Monroe Doctrine Centennial to be observed here July 2 to August 4 with a historical review and motion picture exposition.
Among them will be Mrs. Rose Gouverneur Hees, of Washington, D. C., great granddaughter of James Monroe, fifth president of the United States and eponym of the famous doctrine the hundredth anniversary of which the review and exposition will celebrate.
The woman's division of the Centennial program will be divided into two distinct departments, one on hospitality, providing for a series of receptions and social functions, and the other devoted to the promotion of education and arts and other branches of what are generally termed social sciences.
Under this department daily congresses are to be held at which vital subjects of the day will be discussed by speakers of national and international prominence.

TO WED BROTHER OF HER DEAD HUSBAND, ALTHOUGH SHE'S NEVER SEEN HIM
(International News Service.)
ST. LOUIS, May 22.—Engaged by mail to a man she has never seen, Mrs. Alma C. Volkman, of this city, leaves here soon for icy Alaska to marry the brother of her deceased husband.
The wedding date has been set for June 17, the anniversary of her previous marriage.
Following her husband's death several years ago the bride-to-be received letters of condolence from William S. Volkman, in Alaska. A love was born through the affectionate pen of the two and the marriage engagement resulted.
