HEALTH AND ACHIEVEMENT

Prominent among modern psychological movements, are various so called health cults, which seek to improve people's physical conditions by correcting faults in their mental attitude. One would need to be a learned specialist in mental science to discuss these questions adequately. Without going into such controverted questions, it is evident enough that a person's mental attitude has a tremendous influence over his body. The man who is worrying about some business or family matter sits down to his dinner table with a feeling of oppression and constraint. He does not feel the least appetite and it is only with difficulty that he can put down a meager fraction of his usual allowance of food. If now while he is sitting at the table in this heartless way, the post-man brings him a letter containing good news, and showing that the fears he had been entertaining are groundless, not merely is his mental attitude changed, but his body is instantly affected. Within five minutes he is attacking his roast beef with renewed relish, and he will put down a good dinner. If a bit of good news can produce such a radical change, he should be able to put himself on a permanently higher level physically, if he can get his mind in a serene and confident state by which he can throw off worry, and look forward to the future in a sanguine way. He will be able to do far more work and do it more intelligently. His prospects in life will be greatly improved. He will seem more attractive and persuasive to the people he meets, and will be able to carry on business and industry with double the efficiency and success. The first step along the path in the psychology of success, then, is to conquer the fears and worries that destroy the efficiency of a multitude of people.

There are five million illiterates in the United States, three million native-born. Experts say that it is partly caused by public indifference to educational opportunity, and partly by inequality of educational opportunity, which makes it possible for a child in one state to get an education in half the time required in another. As an example, a report of the National Education Association cites the fact that if a South Carolina child wishes to cover the same amount of work that a New Jersey child covers in the eight years before he graduates from the elementary school, the child in South Carolina must go to school the full term of 14 years to do this. If he goes to school every day from the time he is six until he is 20, he will just be able to do it. These figures are based upon the average length of term the schools in the two states are in session.

There is a growing tendency toward cleaner newspapers. There has been a vast improvement in the advertising columns of most papers. Extravagant and untruthful statements are giving place to intelligent and honest methods for the securing of buyers, whether of advertising space or the copies of newspapers themselves. Advertisers are becoming more keen about the company which they keep and insist that the value of their advertising shall not be lessened because of proximity to unclean and untruthful reading matter. The yellow brand of journalism is not in the ascendency, and every year its readers are fewer. All business institutions are adopting better methods of doing business and the newspaper is no exception to the rule.

Nobody loves a crawfish, but he always backs out when conditions are favorable. Most persons know less.

Discouragement sits lightly upon the shoulders of the young—which is the reason they are young.

The difference between a girl's silly giggle and her silvery laughter is in your own age.

Some people run automobiles and other allow automobiles to run them.

The men who assail politics are unable to be politicians.

Dear Folks:— There's a sign upon the highways, that for autos has no lure. Its a sight that brings no pleasure for it's letters spell Detour. When the riding's nice and easy, on a road that's smooth and clear, when the hated sign of transfer to a rough one will appear. From a road of pleasant going, one that's level, hard and sound, you must change to tougher riding on some crude unbroken ground. You must say good-bye to pleasure, you must pick your way with care, and at times you lose your patience at the added wear and tear on your nerves and automobile, for you bump your way along and the holes and hidden ditches all your agony prolong.

Fly and by you reach the highway, that you left some miles behind, and the sense of added pleasure that you're always sure to find on returning to its surface, helps to make you soon forget all the troubles of the detour that had made you fuss and fret.

So in life you'll find the highways and you'll find the detours too, but you can't be always riding on a road that's nice and new. Its the bitter things you tackle and the bumps you're bound to meet, that will make your smoother going seem more livable and sweet.

PRUNE PICKIN'S

BY BERT G. BATES

GOOD EVENING FOLKS—

This is the time Of the year that Our fond readers Are supposed to Bring in their Garden peas to be ed. And let us say: Their products and Reciprocate by giving * Them a three-line focal in our column and as yet None of our fond readers Have showed up At this sanctum Loaded down with Radishes and onions And we are just about To give up the ship And buy a nicker Bunch of turnips At the grocery store.

DUMBELL DORA THINKS— Alma Mater is the name of the dean at the University of Oregon.

Every year we are Provided with a bunch Of humorous answers Which 8th graders Give during the Examinations and here Are a few rib-tickers That should make you Giggle:

"We have political parties so we can have something to talk about." "Air has to pass through the broccoli tubes to get to the lungs." "Part of the preamble of the U. S. is to insure domestic science." "A dislocation is a place where the bones are broken and the spot cannot be found." "If two-thirds of both houses pass a bill and the president vetoes it, it will be come a law." "County courts settle the estates of diseased persons." "Normal temperature is 9800. Fever is above normal. 10,500 is very dangerous."

A favorite picture described in the eighth grade papers was "Columbus Crossing the Delaware." Question: "Why do we have political parties?" Answer: "The political parties believe there ought to be slaves and Republicans don't think they should have slaves. The slaves should be done away with."

"A dairy cow should have a large barrel and mouth and there should be three wedge shapes, one from behind, one from the side and one from above and she should have a large heart and be gentle."

"Citizenship is acquired by natural birth in the U. S." "Why is China backward? Ans: "They are afraid to dig up the ground for fear they'll dig up their ancestors."

"China was backward because she didn't want to learn anything after the U. S. came into the world." "Brazil is so progressive because they raise a big crop of cabbage each year."

"The daily ration for a hen should be to lay one or two eggs daily."

It might be mentioned here that Dumbell Dora did not take the 8th grade examinations.

Ye ed. took in the Senior class exercises last eve and listened to the aspirations of the embryo citizens with much interest and goah ain't ed-yca-tion gran'?

A Louisiana man claims to have a hog that hunts like a setter dog, and a farmer of this neighborhood remarked glumly that with present feed and pork prices that was about all a hog was good for.

Speaking of hogs, a farmer at Rockford, Illinois, butchering a porker the other day, found a beautiful and valuable pearl wedged between the toes. He took the pearl to a jeweler, who paid him $125 spot cash. We told this story to John Bjinks, of Skunk's Misery. "Somebody," said John, "has been casting pearls before swine."

You may keep your cherry cobbler For all of me, for I Prefer that most ineffable Most luscious cherry pie.

The present price of sugar has not inspired any cheer to sing that grand old song, "Sweet and Low."

A feller got buried in prunes at the packing plant yesterday but it wasn't prunes from this colony.

A banquet was held by the S. of C. last eve and the orators were there in spite of the epidemic of sore throats.

The 23 class will skidoo tonight at the N. S. commencement exercises.

The New Jersey motor car is in the papers again today and areca are again promised within 24 hours which only goes to prove that the days are getting longer.

"Fishin is a darn sight better around the feet of the month, especially when the hill collectors are catchin' at yer office."

TOM SKEYHILL TO APPEAR IN CITY

When Rupert Brooke, the handsome young English poet, heard that Britain had declared war on Germany, he quietly remarked, "Well, if Armageddon's on, I may as well be there." Without further ado, he at once laid the world away, girded his loins, and marched to the front with reluctant tread. Quickly the scholars of the day followed his lead, England, America, and Australia, pulled off the cap and gown to don the khaki. Holding their torches aloft they went on into the night, not only to lead the world in letters but also in bloody battle.

With the point of a bullet sharpened for a pencil, with the back of a label of a jam-jin for copy paper, and with the bottom of the firing line for a desk, they wrote their epics; not of what they heard or read about, but of what they saw, felt, and fought through themselves. Rupert Brooke and Robert Nichols sang of English Hawthorne and of English sky, and of the privilege they deemed it to be to fight for these things. Charles Sorely, Allan McIntosh, and Julian Grenfell, tuned their lyres to tell of the love of comrades for comrades in the intimacy of war. Allen Seeger ran out a challenge to his America, and John McRae charged the living not to break faith with the dead. Robert Service breathed a passionate love for the Canadian maple, while the golden battle bloom and the eucalyptus gam of Australia found their way into the verse of Tom Skeyhill. An appreciative poetry world soon began to call these young men "The New Elizabethans." When the Armistice was signed last four of the original group remained—Siegfried, Sasson, Robert Nichols, Tom Skeyhill, and Robert Graves. They are already assuming a definite place in English literature.

Of Mr. Skeyhill, who comes to Chautauqua audiences this year with a last-minute story of conditions in Europe, having spent the last fall and winter there, the Literary Digest in a page story said: "A man well worth reading about carefully." The London Times last year said: "A soldier who can crawl into a shell-erater on No Man's Land and write a poem about fairies, has the soul of a poet." The Roseburg Chautauqua will be held June 15 to 21, inclusive.

STOMACH WEAK? OAKLAND WOODMEN TO HOLD INITIATION

Strengthen your stomach and banish indigestion; MIO-NA is guaranteed by W. F. Chapman to do it or money back. Douglas Camp, W. O. W., at Oakland, will hold a ceremonial and initiation on Saturday evening. Over sixty new members are to be taken in at that time. Hon. W. C. Harvey, one of the head managers of the organization, and J. O. Wilson, also a head manager, will be present, and E. R. Martin, deputy head counselor, will be in attendance. A large delegation of Eugene Woodmen are planning on attending the ceremony and a large number from the local lodge will be present.

Notice is hereby given that a meeting will be held by the Melrose Cemetery Association at the old Melrose school building on Monday, June 4, for the purpose of tearing down the old part of the building. Basket dinner, everybody welcome. Bring your tools.

REV. CALDWELL HOME: Rev. H. L. Caldwell, pastor of the local Baptist church, returned home today after an extended visit through the middle west. Rev. Caldwell was accompanied by his wife and child and enjoyed a very pleasant time at his old home in Missouri. He attended the National convention of the Southern Baptists at Kansas City, Mo., over 12,000 persons being present in that great meeting. On his return he stopped for a visit at his former church in Twin Falls, Idaho.

John R. McLean Gains 18 Lbs. Taking Tanlac

Kept Losing Ground for Five Years, Says Los Angeles Man—Declares He Now Feels Fine as in Younger Days.

When John R. McLean, a cabinet maker, living at 519 Maple Ave., Los Angeles, said: "Tanlac was what I needed to put me in first class working trim," he corroborated the statements of thousands of others who have used the medicine with the most gratifying results. "Before taking Tanlac," he explained, "I had lost considerable weight and was in a badly run-down condition. Every year, for five or six years, I had been getting thinner and thinner and feeling more and more down. At last I realized the necessity of getting something to stop the decline and build me up again. My aunt had gotten such relief from Tanlac, I turned to the remedy myself with the result that I have added eighteen pounds in weight and made me feel as if I ever did in my younger days. Tanlac is for sale by all druggists. Accept no substitutes, one million bottles sold."

Tanlac Vegetable Pills are an own remedy for constipation, sale everywhere. In Town Today— Ben Palm, who is employed at Coles Valley, spent the day in Roseburg visiting with his family and attending to business matters. Azalia Man Here— J. R. Pickett, of Azalia, was a recent visitor in Roseburg. Pickett conducts a sawmill at Azalia.
