ROSEBURG, OREGON, THURSDAY, JUNE 15, 1923.

THE SMOOTH-RUNNING MIND.

A multitude of people are failing to accomplish superior results in life as the result of some form of mental friction with the conditions they have to meet. To many people their job seems just a little too hard. They worry and fret over their failures, which makes them still more likely to do things ineffectively. Their consciousness of lack of power is evident to others and affects their ability to get results. Such a mental condition is sometimes due to too much self criticism. Many people are really doing excellent work, but they do not realize it. Their apologetic manner nullifies a part of the achievement they are just on the point of getting.

Other people find this mental friction with their work for the reason that they do some part of it poorly. If they could only perfect themselves in that part where they are weak, the feeling that they are being baffled by unconquerable difficulties would disappear. They would meet the day's work with a smile, and be ready for whatever came along. One needs a sense of power to accomplish things in life. If a person is unfitted for his work, he should make a change. More frequently all he needs is to supply some lack of ability by proper training. Many people fail, for instance, because they cannot talk well, cannot express their ideas persuasively. What such people need is to practice conversation, go into social life, speak in public, take all possible pains to cultivate power of expression.

Then the sense of power to meet people on even terms would come. They would radiate a sentiment of victory, the feeling of friction with difficulties would vanish. It is amazing to see how a person can go ahead after he has worked his way over and around some difficulty, so that now he faces his problems with the feeling that he is adequate for them and that they can be solved.

If a group of people were asked to state what characteristics or advantages a city must have to be considered up to date, probably the majority would name first the facilities of modern comfortable living. Some folks, if asked to name the most important of these facilities, might state the following: Good water, good lighting, good roads and sidewalks, good drainage or sewage. Hustling towns will occasionally be somewhat lacking on one or more of these facilities, but as a rule a town or city to go ahead must provide these comforts of modern life, and provide them in good shape. A city that is ambitious to excel its neighbors would do well to examine carefully its advantages in these respects as compared with other places of the same size in its state and section. If it is handicapped in comparison with its rivals in these respects, it has a heavy load to carry in the race for development. The pen is greater than the sword, and the garden fork is worth more than the two of 'em put together.

When folks find fault with the wild doings of the young crowd, it would be a favorable occasion to present them with a subscription paper for a community center with wholesome entertainment.

Some of these motorists who are crossing tracks just ahead of trains may not get hurt any even if they do get hit in the head.

The craze for non-stop dancing seems to be going by, but the men are always looking for good non-stop muffin makers.

Formerly people were afraid to ride in automobiles, but it is not so dangerous now in many cities as being a pedestrian.

No complaint of labor shortage is made by the people who are trying to hire speechmakers.

GOOD EVENING FOLKS—

The villagers are coming back from the metropolis where they attended the Rose festival and they still maintain that Roseburg has 'em beaten. Forty city blocks for choice blossoms.

DUMBELL DORA THINKS Castoria is a suburb of Astoria.

After one shot of Douglas county hootch the pote lariat of this colyum handed in the following effusion: It was a nice day in October, Last September in July; The moon lay thick upon the ground, The mud shone in the sky.

The flowers were singing sweetly, The birds were in full bloom; Then I went into the cellar, To sweep an upstairs room.

The time was Tuesday morning, On Wednesday just at night; I saw a thousand miles away, A house just out of sight.

The walls projected backwards, The front was round the back; It stood alone with two others, The fence was whitewashed black.

It was midnight on the ocean, Not a street-car was in sight; The sun was shining brightly, And it rained all day and night.

It was a summer day in winter, The rain was snowing fast; A barefoot boy with shoes on, Stood sitting in the grass.

It was evening and the rising sun Was setting in the night, And everything that you could see Was hidden out of sight.

While the organ peeled potatoes, Lard was rendered by the choir; While the sexton rang the dish-rag Someone set the church on fire.

"Holy smoke," the preacher shouted, In the rein he lost his hair, Now his head resembles heaven, For there is no parting there.

A goodly throng of the town folks journeyed to Medford today to take in the auto races, their thirst for gore not being satisfied with the daily antics of the local speed demons.

Wichita, Kansas, had another cloud-burst today and again we're thankful we live in the Umpqua valley.

If those Bulgarians keep on scrapping during the summer, we'll bet dollars to doughnuts we'll all be snelling out for the starving Bulgarians this winter.

The ch'qua will convene this eve with a play, "Turn to the Right," written by Traffic Cop Thurber.

We hope they don't call for the ch'qua salute when we have a dirty handkerchief in our pocket.

"Stunny how many bawling kids a feller kin hear at a ch'qua."

Reub. Maisters, erstwhile co. jedge of the co., was a sojourner in our midst today, passing out handshakes and takin' cigars where offered.

"Housemaids' knees hain't got nuthin' on chautauqua seat."

ADVICE TO THE LOVELORN

by MRS. ELLSBURY

(Address all communications to Mrs. Ellsbury, care of News-Review.)

Dear Mrs. Ellsbury: I am going on a trip to another town in a few days. Should I wear my knickers? I have a pair, I am going with the boy I go with, and his mother and father. I would like to wear knickers but have been puzzling over whether I should or not.

BROWNIE—On a trip of that kind I think it would be wiser for you not to wear your knickers. For a long hard trip they are very comfortable and convenient, and when a group of young people go on a trip, but on this occasion you would be wise not to wear them.

Dear Mrs. Ellsbury: When a boy sends you flowers how should you acknowledge them. MARY—The next time you see him, or go out with him tell him that the flowers were lovely, and that you enjoyed them. If he sent the flowers just before taking you out, it would be very nice of you to wear some of them.

Free Demonstration! Summer Fatigue of this Well Known Corrective Shoe. The Cantilever Salesman Will Be Here the Balance of the Week. Come in for a Try On.

THE nervous irritation caused by badly shaped shoes is a constant drain which will detract from your pleasure now and may result in a serious breakdown later. For health and efficiency, wear the Cantilever Shoe.

It is patterned on the lines of the foot. The arch of the shoe hugs the curve of the instep and provides restful support for the foot. Well-set heel and natural inner sole line distribute the weight properly, without strain.

And the shank is flexible! Instead of checking the circulation, it encourages good circulation, correcting burning and perspiring feet. In this comfortable and healthful way Cantilevers help greatly to prevent hot weather fatigue.
