ROSEBURG, OREGON, TUESDAY, JUNE 12, 1923.

"CLEAN UP AS YOU GO"

President Harding has given his approval to a nation wide movement now being organized to induce motorists to avoid defacing the road sides and country scenes by leaving refuse around the places where they camp or eat lunches. For a long time many picnic parties have injured the pretty rural surroundings where they have resorted by this habit of leaving lunch boxes, waste paper and containers around the places where they squatted. As such parties have a liking for pretty country scenes, it has often happened that the most beautiful spots have been defaced by this remnant of litter. The great number of motorists who are roaming about the country camping out in their own tents at any convenient spot where nightfall overtakes them, add to the number of people who may disfigure the countrysides. If all these folks are to be careless about the way they handle their waste stuff, a great many of the choicest beauty spots of Oregon will be marred. Fortunately the big majority of these people are nature lovers who feel under obligation when they resort to a beautiful location, to leave it in as good condition as they find it, so that others can enjoy its loveliness. Unfortunately a lot of other folks are thoughtless about such matters, and they never seem to realize any obligation of neatness. There should be a campaign of education to induce motoring and picnic parties to cherish wild nature just as they find it, and keep it free from the human taint created by such disorder. People who eat their lunches or stay over night along the roadsides and in secluded nooks should pick up every piece of waste paper, every egg shell, any form of litter that suggests human occupancy, so that the spot will have the same charm it had when they entered it.

The various Parent Teachers Associations of Roseburg are certainly to be commended for their excellent work during the past year in the way of improvements to the school grounds throughout the city, as well as the many other substantial projects undertaken and successfully carried out. It is, indeed, a pleasure when driving visitors around the city to show them our beautiful and substantial high school building, with the grounds presenting a most pleasing appearance to the eye. What was once nothing more than a barren pasture has been converted into a beautiful lawn. Yes, the Parent Teachers associations are to be congratulated. They have accomplished much substantial work in the way of improving the school grounds and the betterment of conditions generally in our public schools during the past year.

Those Coos Bay pirates are a very live bunch of enthusiastic boosters for their own home town, and the fellow who boasts first, last, and all the time for his own community can be counted on as a good citizen. After listening to their convincing arguments regarding the Coos Bay section one can hardly question the assertion that the Pacific ocean is the sole property of the southern Oregon city. They've got the big pond bottled up—if we are to believe all they say about their accomplishments.

Looks like Oregon's school system, from a progressive standpoint, is getting a financial jolt in several parts of the state in recent school bond elections held. How to run a modern school system without sufficient funds will be a feature topic in this state if things continue at their present pace.

In spite of all that is said about 'robbing birds' nests, the farmers keep stealing eggs from the hens.

Dear Folks:

How well the days come back to me to jog my mind and memory of things I did that made me shake, that made me tremble sweet and quake.

The day when, at tender age, I marched myself upon a stage to speak a piece about a wreck, when every cord within my neck seemed bursting, and my tongue so dry, I felt that I was going to die. The day I went to seek my Dad, to tell him that his son was bad because I'd told a foolish lie about a piece of lemon pie. The day I dolled, primped and scrubbed, and shined, and pressed, and soaked and tubbed and all because a maiden fair with colored ribbons in her hair was going to get a call from ME, my start of making calls, you see.

The day when first I made a speech when every word seemed like a screech. I see my knees a shaking now as there I stood a telling how to do some things I couldn't do. How glad I was when it was thru. These days and more before me file and the today, they bring a snibe, they seemed severe and awful then, and from the time when I was ten, I found some task to undertake that made me tremble, sweat and shake.

But more than all, one act remains as filling me with the greatest pains of fear and anguish, when my soul seemed sinking in a hidden hole. That day was when, in blank despair, I first sat in a barber's chair not knowing how I should behave, but saying "Sir, I'll have a shave."

Coos Bay Visitors

Among the delegation of visitors to this valley and enjoyed the trip to Roseburg yesterday were Mr. and Mrs. G. P. Corvick and Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Wilson. Mr. Parker is a member of the News of that city and Mr. Wilson is in the undertaking business. Both gentlemen were very enthusiastic over their trip to this valley and enjoyed the trip to the fullest extent. Roseburg people who attend the big celebration to be staged at Marshfield July 4th will find Mr. Wilson to be in the undertaking business. Both gentlemen were very enthusiastic over their trip to this valley and enjoyed the trip to the fullest extent.

The Albany Democrat columnist pens the following which is a pippin: IF IT ISN'T, WHAT IS IT? It was Rose Festival Parade Day—in Portland.
Not that the day matters—
All days are alike,
Full of hours of living—
And loving 'til you are fit to burst—
Or for being tired to extinction
With it all,
And merely waiting
To catch up with your work
So's you can get time to die—
That's what days are—
And all alike.

But, anyway, there was

But—there WAS a man and woman
Standing in the crowd—
Just crowding—
And she a-gazing up under his hat
Like a sick cat that's had raw salmon.
And he a-gazing back under her hat
As if he felt just as bad as she did—
But no one said a word—
Or offered to do anything.

Now slush is all right—
I'm strong for it—strong—
If the subject matter is tasty
And strictly okay;
But that girl's mouth was as
Thin-tipped and seasonless
As a crack in a raw squash;
And she was built like a slat
Off the garden fence;
And the fellow had a figure
Like a collapsible ironing board,
A face like a raw oyster,
And eyes that resembled
Wilted gooseberries
In a bowl of wheyed clabber

DRESS FORM SCHOOL AT GLIDE THURSDAY

Mr. B. W. Cooney, county agent, states that arrangements have been made whereby it will be possible to hold a dress form school for the benefit of the women of Glide and surrounding communities in the hall at Glide on Thursday, June 21st. This school will commence at 10 o'clock in the morning and last throughout the day. Arrangements have been perfected whereby the especially designed materials for successfully constructing a dress form such as is outlined in the extension bulletin 249 can be secured from the Marksbury Company in Roseburg at the small cost of 50 cents per garment. The bulletins describing this work can be secured from Mr. Cooney on application at his office.

The local schools will be under the supervision of Mrs. F. R. Steinhauer, who has taken the work from the clothing specialist of the extension department of the Agricultural college, together with the assistance of some other local woman who has also taken this work and is capable of aiding in the work.

In all communities where this phase of the extension work has been put on it has proven of much interest to the women. All women in the Glide community are invited to be present at this school and enjoy a day of helpful instruction.

LOGANBERRY CROP WILL SET RECORD

The season of 1923 is proving to be by far one of the most productive both in quality and quantity, that the loganberry growers have known for some time. The mild winter brought the vines through in excellent condition and the late rains have proven very beneficial for a heavy fruiting, and has brought the size up to splendid size.

B. W. Cooney, county agent, states that the greatest problem which is confronting the loganberry growers at this season is the marketing question which is proving to be a serious one. The harvest season is now beginning and the outlet for the excellent fruit appears to be limited. For this reason Mr. Cooney is calling a meeting of the loganberry growers of the county to meet at his office in the federal building at 2 o'clock on Saturday afternoon, June 23rd. Mr. Cooney states that there will be specialists and others present at that meeting to discuss with the growers the most feasible plans for disposing of their product. All loganberry growers in the county are invited to be present at that time and present their problems as they see them, and help discuss this matter from a marketing standpoint.

ANNIVERSARY OF WEDDING SATURDAY

Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Montgomery were very much surprised when a large number of their friends came to their home at Looking Glass on Saturday evening, June 16, 1923, this evening being that of their seventeenth wedding anniversary. The rooms were beautifully decorated with many bouquets of flowers.

Mr. and Mrs. Montgomery have resided in this valley for the past ten years. They have many friends here. The evening was spent by singing and talking. A very delicious luncheon was served by some of the ladies present. They were assisted by Miss Kathryn Montgomery eldest daughter of the bride and groom of seventeen years.

On Sunday, June 17, 1923, Mr. and Mrs. Montgomery and Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Clingenpeel will have a union dinner as they, Mr. and Mrs. Clingenpeel, were married on the same date as Mr. and Mrs. Montgomery.

Those present at the surprise were Mr. and Mrs. Davis, Mrs. Hayward, Miss Lina McCoy, Mr. and Mrs. McCoy, Jefferson Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Paulson, Mr. and Mrs. Jacoby, Mr. and Mrs. Nickens, Mr. and Mrs. Hayward, Mr. and Mrs. Rogers, Mr. J. C. Moore, Mr. and Mrs. Mundt, Mrs. Marsh, Mr. and Mrs.
