

WEALTH NO LONGER PROOF OF SUCCESS

(By Associated Press.)

ST. LOUIS, June 19.—The possession of wealth no longer constitutes the only barometer of success; the service ideal is gradually gaining ground. This was the keynote of a message to the convention of International Rotary here today from Paul P. Harris, founder of Rotary and President Emeritus of Rotary International.

"The time when rich men are the big men is passing," said the message. Greatness in future will depend not upon what one has been able to get, but rather on what one has been able to give.

"Opportunity to urge upon the business world the importance of adopting service as the basis of all professions and trades, is distinctly Rotary's. Rotary's peculiar formation, one representative of each profession and each line of trade, makes its presentment the best organization with which to effect the purpose. It is a large order. The advent of Rotary marked an era when the long suppressed yearnings of business men for opportunity to share in spiritual leadership began to find realization. It has been a period of wonderful progress because business men have made idealism practicable.

"No worthy object can be gained without effort and the more seriously we view our undertaking, the more certain our accomplishment."

RODEO IS FEATURE BESIDE FIGHT

SHELBY, Mont., June 20.—The big wooden shell in which Jack Dempsey defends his title here July Fourth against Tom Gibbons isn't getting all the play.

Two other events are being built for the stampede and roundup attractions which will open a week ahead of the big show.

Between four and five hundred Indians from the Blackfoot tribe will camp here.

Many of them are crack riders and ropers. They will compete with the white men in an effort to get their share of the prize money swag.

Indians are always interesting. Some of the heroes of the chiefs and squaws headed this way would knock you for a row of syllables.

"Catch It For Nothing" Seaboy Rope" will be the queen squaw of the roping crew.

"Strabbed by Mistake" is another of the redskin celebrities slated to twirl the lariat.

Chief Many Tail-Feathers, said to be over a hundred years old, will be guest of the promoters at the Dempsey-Gibbons battle.

The old war chief will be dressed in full war regalia. He has his fifty-dollar rindside ticket and everything.

An Indian band from the Ute tribe may come to Shelby to chant the wailing music as interpreted by the folks who owned America before Christopher Colombo paddled in.

Hiding buckers in Shelby is a daily attraction like baseball is to most cities.

The old timers and the new timers all take a flip in the stirrups for general amusement.

And they are wild mustangs fresh off the foot hills that the riders square spotted ponies that look like painted bucking machinery.

They saw the air. They hop stiff legged. They bawl. They jack-knife. "Hide 'em cowboy," yells the crowd. But like in any game some do, some don't.

Oklahoma Carley, Yakima Shorty, and other noted riders will lope in for the bucking fracas.

You've heard about sailors being born to the sea. Well they are born to the saddle in Shelby.

PIERCE REFUSES OFFER STATE AID

SALEM, June 18.—Governor Pierce today in a letter to C. W. Kelly, city recorder of Oregon City, expresses the readiness of the executive department to come to the aid of county officials at any time when called upon to aid in the enforcement of the law but declares that it is not the purpose nor the policy of his office "to tamper with local affairs unless complaint is made that local authorities have failed in their duty or until they ask for aid from the state."

The governor's letter is occasioned by the receipt of a resolution passed by the city council of Oregon City asking for state aid in running down and prosecuting the masked men who recently ordered George Ellis, negro, to leave that city, threatening him with hanging unless the order was obeyed.

"This office has received no call for aid from county officials whose duty it is to keep order in local communities," reads the letter of the governor in acknowledgment of the request for state aid from the Oregon City council.

"While this office stands at all times

CARAVAN WILL GO TO COOS BAY

Because of the great number of people going from Roseburg to Marshfield to attend the celebration on July 2 and 4, the local Chamber of Commerce has decided to make plans for a Roseburg caravan to advertise the visit of the Coos Bay delegation. Already a large number of people have signed up for the trip and the Chamber of Commerce is anxious to secure the names of all who expect to attend the celebration so that the Coos Bay committee may be notified and suitable reservations made. All those who expect to go to Coos Bay for the celebration are requested to immediately notify the secretary of the Chamber of Commerce so that plans may be formulated without delay.

ELECT DIRECTORS AT SMICK SCHOOL

The school budget was also voted on, and Mrs. Carl Roslund was again elected school clerk.

Ladies Aid Postponed—The regular meeting of the Presbyterian Ladies Aid Society will be held on Thursday, June 28, at which time the 50th anniversary will be celebrated, and a special time enjoyed.

ready to aid in enforcement of all Oregon laws and to insist on such enforcement if it is not our purpose nor our policy to tamper with local affairs unless complaint is made that local officers have failed in their duty or until they ask for aid from the state.

"In accordance with that policy please be advised that state special agents in Clackamas county have already been directed to give every assistance to local officers when called upon and that this office stands ready to give further aid in enforcement of laws at any time county officials of Clackamas county request such aid."

INDIANS LUG DEAD CHIEF 187 MILES

(International News Service.)

VICTORIA, B. C., June 20.—From out of the wilds of Central British Columbia comes word of one of the longest funeral marches in the history of this country. Twenty Indians carried the body of their dead chief, Alexander Isaac, 187 miles in three weeks that it might be properly interred in the reservation cemetery.

Chief Isaac and two other braves set out from the reservation at Moricetown on a scouting trip. On reaching the headwaters of the Morice River the chief became violently ill and died.

Isaac's companions refused to bury him so far from their reservation and in their own way chose lots, one remaining with the body, while the other proceeded to Moricetown to tell the populace of the death of the chief. In order that the body would not decompose it was packed in ice on the bank of the river, which was still frozen over.

When news of the chief's death was broadcasted in Moricetown volunteers were called to bring the remains back to the reservation for burial. Twenty braves set forth on the mission, and few difficulties were experienced in reaching the headwaters.

A rough coffin was constructed from planks cut out of trees. Sufficient room was allowed for the storing of ice around the body.

The funeral march was a trying ordeal, and the endurance of the natives was severely tested. The party was divided into two sections, ten men carrying the corpse at one time, while the others devoted themselves to camp labor and broke trail where it was necessary. At various stages the sections switched their jobs. It was found impossible to carry the coffin over some of the higher hills, and a circuitous journey had to be made. It was impossible to make any of the journey by water owing to the ice jams in the rivers and lakes.

It took the Indians exactly three weeks to complete their funeral march, and they were on the point of exhaustion when they reached Moricetown.

The chief, who was one of the most popular natives in that section of the province, was accorded a fitting burial.
