(By United Press.)

They questioned her there after her story claiming the belief that her husband shot and killed Peter Agidius, a prominent rancher near here. Lenox is under surveillance and may be questioned.

CHILD CAN SWALLOW NO SOLID FOODS

(By United Press.)
WARRENTON, Ore., June 21.—For two more years little three-year-old Marie Davis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. M. Davis of this city, will eat no solid food.
Eighteen months ago the child swallowed a solution of lye-water, and since that time has lived on liquid nourishment alone, because of the terrible throat burns which make eating impossible.
In spite of her condition, the child is otherwise healthy and normal, attending physicians say.

CAMPAIGN OF FLAG ETIQUETTE STARTED

EUGENE, June 21.—(United Press)—A campaign of flag etiquette is underway here, fostered by the American Legion post. Too many Eugene men have forgotten their war-time patriotism when it comes to raising their hats when the national colors pass, the Legionnaires declare. The breach was particularly noticeable during the Memorial Day parades.
So the former service men are conducting a little drive, writing personal letters to the thoughtless ones who are known, endeavoring to have all give the flag the respect it merits.

JAPANESE SKIPPER PRESENTS FINE GIFTS

MARSHFIELD, Ore., June 21.—(United Press.)—Ten nurses at a local hospital are proudly displaying in-laid sewing boxes and other gifts, direct from Japan.
On a recent visit to this port, the Japanese steamer Shimikui Maru, unloaded and sent to the hospital, Y. Kinoshita, its purser, who was ill with appendicitis.
Under the nurses' care, the man quickly recovered and was able to return to Japan when the vessel sailed. Returning on the next voyage, Kinoshita brought each of the nurses a variety of presents from Japan, expressing his appreciation for their care during his illness.

MAN RETURNS AFTER APE HUNTING TRIP

LOS ANGELES, June 21.—(United Press.)—George J. Fleg, hunter and collector, returned here after spending 11 months in the wilds of Borneo on an ape hunting expedition.
Fleg was reported missing when friends were unable to get in communication with him, said he started home from Borneo with 25 fine specimens of gorillas, only to have 15 of them die on the trip.
The animals are very susceptible to disease, Fleg reports, and it is this fact that accounted for his casualty loss. The last large gorilla died as the boat neared San Francisco. Fleg brought back a mammoth python snake, 26 feet long, a little monkey and a specimen of the "Howling" Gibbons monkey. The latter is a very beautiful specimen of monkey, slender-framed, with long, sleek grey hair. Fleg will shortly start another expedition to Borneo, and believes the knowledge gained this trip will help him return with a full cargo of gorillas and no casualties next time.

GYPSIES CHARGED WITH TAKING SOAP

PORTLAND, Ore., June 21.—There is something new under the sun, after all. Two gypsy women, haled before Municipal Judge Ekwall were charged with stealing toilet soap.
The judge rubbed his eyes with amazement when the charge was read. "This can't go on," he declared. "It shatters all precedents." So the court sent them to jail for a month, where, if they want soap, they can use what the county furnishes.

TRAPPER HAS NEW METHODS

Employs Only Lassoos, Lengths of Chain and Bare Hands in Capture of Wild Animals.
A remarkable article illustrated with very unique photographs appeared in the Wide World Magazine under the caption of "Trapping Wild Animals Alive." It was written by Maj. Jack Allen and the feats he describes are calculated to make the ordinary big-game hunter blink with amazement.

"From first to last," says Major Allen, "I never use a gun except in the utmost extremity of self-defense." The only equipment he uses consists of lassoes, lengths of chain and bare hands! With these bloodless instruments Captain Allen has captured jaguars, leopards and tigers. He has had many narrow escapes from death, and his experiences make thrilling reading.
Major Allen says the strength of the tiger is practically equal to that of the lion, while he has the reputation among hunters of being far more courageous. Therefore the process of capturing a tiger alive involves a considerable degree of risk, but on no occasion has Captain Allen met with a mishap.

The Lost Token.
The car stopped and three passengers escaped from the confusion of the traffic, to the comparative safety of the car's platform. One was a young man with a pink rose in his hand. But as he stepped into the car he dropped the rose to the street. He had already paid his fare and the car had covered half a block before he realized his loss.
An expression, not only of regret, but of panic spread over his face. He pressed the button frantically and at the next corner alighted and started back along the car tracks dodging the traffic.

The woman stretched and craned her neck to see if he were rewarded. Yes, he snatched up the rose from the black city mud and stood brushing the dirt from its pure petals. He had recovered his token for which he was willing to give his time and his fare—just a commonplace, ordinary young man like hundreds you see every day. Who dares say romance is dead?—Chicago Journal.

Magnific Finger Prints.
An instrument that makes an enlargement of finger-print marks has recently been designed and put in use by the police department of Paris, France, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. It consists of a boxlike device mounted on a short column that is screwed to a flat piece of oak. The specimen bearing the finger marks is pushed through a slot in the apparatus until it comes before a window, where it is brilliantly illuminated by a 1,000-candle power electric bulb. A lens placed above the bulb and a movable mirror project and reflect the image magnified ten times, upon the paper placed upon the oak board. This provides a rapid method of examining side by side and in the same degree of magnification, the finger-print record of the suspect and the marks upon the object he is supposed to have touched.

MILK ESSENTIAL TO CALVES

Skim Milk is Given Until Animal is Six Months Old—Grain and Hay Should Be Offered.
At first the calf is fed whole milk, the quantity being gradually increased. Skim milk is substituted as soon as practicable, and if cheap is continued until the calf is six months old. Ordinarily the maximum quantity of skim milk that can be fed economically is 20 pounds a day. When the calf is two weeks old, grain and hay, clean hay should be offered; the quantity fed should be increased as the calf's appetite demands.

Mrs. Tomkyn—Yes, but we must forgive him, as I hear he's just had some heavy business losses.
Mr. Tomkyn—My dear, a real gentleman does not give vent to that sort of thing (H) he gets home to his wife.

SCIENTISTS SEEK KNOCKLESS "GAS"

(International News Service.)
COLUMBUS, Ohio, June 21.—Development of a "knockless" gas, with an abundance of "kick," is the goal toward which W. Hale Church, of Dayton, is striving. Church, who is working under an Ohio State University fellowship, is conducting research work as an extension of experiments with an anti-knock compound discovered by C. F. Kettering, of Dayton, president of the General Motors Research Corporation and a trustee of Ohio State University, and another man.
A successful trial of the "knockless" gasoline, it is said, has been made at the McCook aviation field, Dayton. The function of the anti-knock "gas" is to prevent carbonization, subsequent pre-ignition and other motor troubles. It is asserted by scientists that when the day of "knockless" gasoline has arrived engines will be built permitting higher compression, resulting in greater power and mileage.
Common gasoline, after combustion in the cylinders of an automobile, leaves a deposit of carbon which, with continued operation of the engine, attains a high temperature. This sometimes causes the fresh charge of gasoline to explode in the cylinder before the spark ignites it, resulting in a recoil of the piston which produces the "knock."

TO CURB RENT HOGS

ADVICE TO THE LOVELORN

by
MRS. ELLSBURY
(Address all communications to Mrs. Ellsbury, care of News-Review.)
Dear Mrs. Ellsbury: I am a worried father, and I am going to ask you for some advice. My daughter is 17 years old, and her mother is dead. We live alone and have a nice comfortable home. She is a good daughter, and is obedient to what I tell her, but sometimes I am terribly worried about her. She has started to go a little bit with boys. They bring her home in automobiles during the day time and once or twice I have let her go with them at night. Am I doing right? Should I let her have her boy friends come to the house evenings? What time should I tell her to come home at night? Should I let her go to public dances alone? Is there any other way you can help me?

GRATEFUL.
A father with a daughter to rear certainly has a problem that is hard to solve. Above all things, keep yourself broadminded and on good terms with your daughter. If she begins to feel that you are dictatorial, unsympathetic, and strict with her, you will have trouble. A girl of that age is very difficult. Be easy with her, but watch her carefully. If possible, I would advise you to have some one live with you, an aunt, cousin, or some elderly woman relative. If this is impossible, a woman housekeeper, qualified to act as a sort of a chaperone, would be the next best thing. If both of these are impossible, you must take the duties upon yourself. Now is a very critical time in your daughter's life. I can assure you. Try to make her look upon you as a friend and chum that she can frankly talk to, and not allow her to become estranged and bitter, as is often the case.
Find out about the boys and girls that your daughter is going with and see if they are all they should be. Although she is young, under the circumstances I think you would be wise in allowing her to have her friends come to the house as much as possible. This will keep her from going out to meet them when you are not aware of it. Give her some means, such as a phonograph or piano, to entertain them, and after meeting them, don't constrain them with your presence. Remain in the house, but not in the same room with them. An air of informality and friendliness on your part will go a long way in making friends with her friends. Encourage her to have her girl friends in so that you can see for yourself what kind of girls they are.
When she goes out at night, set the hour for her to come home, and find out who she is going with and where. Don't let her go to public dances alone, but with company which you approve of, and see that she comes directly home afterward.
