

Varicose Veins Are Speedily Reduced and Terrible Eczema Goes Quickly

Strong, Powerful Yet Safe, Surgeons' Prescription Called Moore's Emerald Oil Has Astonished Physicians

There is one simple and inexpensive way to reduce dangerous, swollen veins and blemishes, and get them down to normal, and that is to apply Moore's Emerald Oil night and morning. People who have painted, enlarged veins should not neglect them for they sometimes burst and cause much misery and loss of time. Moore's Emerald Oil besides being so miraculously antiseptic that it at once destroys germs and poisons caused by germs, is such a remarkable healing agent that eczema, barbers' itch, salt rheum and other inflammatory skin eruptions go in a few days. Piles are quickly absorbed, and even struts, warts and enlarged glands are dissolved.

For years it has been used in hospitals for both eczema, hemorrhoids, skin eruptions and even warts, and with the most perfect success. With each original bottle, which any pharmacist can supply you, is a folder that gives instructions for use in all of the above distressing complaints. SOLUTION LABOR TROUBLE SHOWN

ST. LOUIS, June 20.—If employers would spend half as much time cultivating the friendship, respect and good will of labor as they do fighting labor organizations there would not be a labor problem. Sherman Rogers, of New York, today told the delegates to the fourteenth annual convention of Rotary International here.

"We waste too much time talking about the labor agitator," the speaker said. "He can only be recognized as the logical friend of the worker where the management has

"A PURITAN WIFE"

CHAPTER LVIII

There was nothing to do but go home. Ann and Bessie took their place in the tonnet in silence. After a bit, Ned's efforts, the explanation of the swiftly moving car for Ned was driving unusually fast—restored Grace's good humor in a measure, and she began—as she said—to see the funny side of what she termed "Dick's joke on them."

She laughed about his drinking, his forgetfulness, until Ann felt as if she would scream if she didn't stop. To her his thoughtlessness, his leaving them was no joke—his forgetfulness was tragedy.

Drink made him even forget Grace, she thought, so it was the harrier to fight. Even the fascination Grace held for him could not keep him from forgetting.

She suffered tortures as she heard his weakness laughed at, treated so lightly, but said not a word, and only Bessie noticed her silence, and pitied her.

As they drove up to the house there stood the silver, and Ann gave a sigh of relief, while Grace said: "Why Dick's home! The idea of him giving us the shakes, then beating us home. Won't I just tell him what I think of him!" she started to leave the car.

"Not tonight, Grace," Ann said sweetly. Then: "Goodnight, all!" and without waiting for a reply she ran into the house and closed the door, but not before she heard Bessie say: "We're not going to stop, Grace."

Dick was asleep on the couch. Ann looked at him a moment, her face full of sadness, then went into the kitchen, where she knew Nora would be. She said:

"Will you get me a cup of tea, Nora? We didn't wait for anything and I feel faint." It was really but an excuse; she hated to question a servant, but was anxious to know when Dick got home, and if Nora had helped him in any way. She might volunteer the information.

"It will be ready in a minute, Ma'am. I was that surprised when Mr. Beldon came home alone. I was going to ask him if I should get dinner for you all, but he went right to sleep, and I was afraid to wake him up. He was tired, I guess working hard as he does, then driving way to San Bernardino." It was said innocently enough, yet Ann had an idea that Nora knew he was intoxicated, that she was trying to hide it from her.

She let Dick sleep for another hour, then awakened him, giving him a strong cup of coffee. "What did you leave us for, Dick?" she asked.

"Oh, I guess I wanted to get home, had had enough," he replied rather sheepishly.

"Why the picture—the motion picture we saw, and you sat back with Grace. Don't you remember?"

"No—," he passed his hand across his forehead a puzzled look on his face.

"Try to remember, Dick," Ann urged, determined to make him recall what he had done. "You and Grace sat quite a ways back, she said you excused yourself, and you sat back in a moment, and that was the last any of us saw of you. Where did you go? Did you come right home?"

"I don't know, Ann. I seem to remember seeing Brooks—I guess his hootch was too much for me."

"Grace was very angry," Ann returned watching him closely.

"Well, I can't help it if she was," he answered peevishly, although he had flushed and looked a bit uncomfortable. "I'm dead tired. I'm going to tumble in."

The next morning Grace came over. Dick was tying up the bouganville vine on the porch, Ann helping.

"You're a nice escort, Dick Beldon," Grace commented. "Taking a girl to a show, then sneaking away and leaving her to get home the best she could."

"I'm sorry I forgot you, Grace. But I did, and that's all there is to it."

"I'm the one to be peevish, not you! Come down off that ladder and make me a humble apology. Make him do it, Ann."

"He just told you he was sorry. I think that is all that is necessary."

"That's right, take his part! I'll bet you went back and found that Mr. Brooks and had some more to drink, Dick. Now, honest, didn't you?" "Fess up now! I shan't scold you if you did. That's Ann's stunt not mine. It is awfully funny the way a drink makes you loo."

Dick looked utterly miserable, but laughed a bit as he said rather roughly: "Do shut up, Grace! I'm busy with this vine. There, Ann, is that better?" he asked as he got down from the ladder.

GIBBONS PLANNING SCIENTIFIC FIGHT

SHELBY, Mont., June 21.—Two fighters that have worked with Jack Dempsey are showing Tom Gibbons inside stuff on the champion.

They are Tillie Kid Herman and Rocco Stramaglia.

Rocco's experience in the Dempsey camp was somewhat limited, however. After cutting the champion's left eye in an honest-to-goodness "rip-up" he was relayed back to his training place in Shelby where he joined the Gibbons colony of sparring partners.

Herman has worked with Dempsey a great deal in the last three years. This ought to prove a big help to Gibbons since Herman follows the Dempsey style in many ways.

When Dempsey was training as a contender for Jess Willard's crown at Toledo, he used Monahan, a former sparring partner of the big Kansas slant.

Whether these sharpshooters from dual camps benefit a contender or not cannot be definitely laid down. But it is logical to figure that they do.

Few fighters make as close a study of their opponents as Gibbons. His middle name is "Scientific."

However, he does not analyze himself to the point where it becomes a worry or anything like that.

After he does his daily stuff he flies back to the Gibbons' Green Gables to play with the three babies and get his mind off the coming mill.

That's why Helen and the family came along.

The minute he gets in the house the children swarm over him and keep him busy.

Most fighters get morose and quiet as their muscles harden and their nerves tighten for a battle.

Gibbons has never shown this tendency in his previous fights. But this is the biggest one he ever scheduled.

Dempsey becomes sullen a few days before he steps off on the journey.

Jim Jefferies was always pretty much of a bear near the battle date. Jim Corbett used to get like a bundle of exposed nerves.

Willard never was any too easy to get along with while grinding for a big match.

If Gibbons feels grouchy he has a way of hiding it from those about him.

BIG PRICES PAID FOR CURIOS

(International News Service.) TOKIO, June 20.—Some idea of the advance in prices of curios in Japan came recently when it was announced, in Tokio, that hanging scrolls purchased 15 years ago by Mr. S. Hayakawa for 8,200 yen ($72,950). Thus Mr. Hayakawa's investment in scrolls alone profited his family approximately $64,000.

Mr. Hayakawa's collection of scrolls and curios made the highest record price for all curio sets sold in Japan of 1,480,589 yen ($740,344.50), the highest previous price realized at a curio sale being 1,000,000 yen ($500,000), this price being given for the celebrated collection of Baron Go. Mr. Hayakawa was until his death the President of the South Manchurian Railway Company.

Will stand good for no bills made other than by myself, S. N. Miller.

DEATH VALLEY HAS REAL "HOTLY CONTESTED" GAME

(International News Service.) DEATH VALLEY JUNCTION, June 21.—This borax village lays claim to the world's most "hotly" contested ball game.

The thermometer, in the shade, stood at 107, a cool day for the Junction. Seventy-five fans from Ludlow and the population of the Junction brought the total attendance that saw the Death Valley Swatters swamp the Ludlow Braves to 175.

There is only one tree in this desert town, and that shelters the thermometer.

EGYPTIAN ROYAL PRINCE IS WED

CARLO, June 21.—Carlo is grasping again. The inhabitants had barely recovered from the Tutankhamen affair when a scion of the Egyptian royal house secretly married an English girl.

The bride was Miss Morwena Bird, and the royal bridegroom in Prince Said Halls, second cousin of King Kaud. The minute the royal relatives of the prince heard about his love for an English maid of another faith they began making objections, but got nowhere with them. The prince simply took his sweetheart into a Moslem religious court, went through the ceremony and ran away to see Europe in the fashion of honeymooners.

Miss Bird since the war has been one of the bright figures of Carlo's ballroom. Her father was a colonel stationed in Egypt before the war. The prince, who is 25, already has the reputation of being a good prophet and a reckless man with his purse.

His talent for getting rid of money came to public notice when he was sent to England before the war to study under army tutors. He was so extravagant that he had to be sent away to Switzerland, where, in those days, there were fewer opportunities for getting poor quickly.

His penchant for prophecies was recognized during the war when he persistently wrote to the newspapers that Turkey and Germany were going to fall. As everyone knows, this forecast came about, in a manner, so the prince is now a prophet with some glory in his own land.

COP FINDS BOOZE IN BATH TUB

(International News Service.) BOSTON, June 20.—A large tank containing 30 gallons of moonshine was discovered by the East Boston police attached to the bathtub in a room leading off the rear of a cigar store at No. 141 Chelsea street, East Boston.

Police suspected Julius Berkowitz, proprietor of the cigar store, of selling liquor. A search failed to reveal any of the forbidden "booze." Then sergeant Freeman and his bluecoats adjourned to a room in the rear. The sergeant was hot. He saw a nice, clean bathtub and decided he would wash up. He turned on the cold-water faucet. A stream of liquor flowed forth from a tank in the wall attached to the faucet.

DOCTORS WANTED TO OPERATE

Mrs. Quillon Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Saved Her from an Operation

Muskegon, Michigan.—"After doctoring for eight or nine years with different physicians without any relief at all, they said at last that medicine would not reach my case and I should have an operation. I had heard of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and often saw it advertised in different papers where some women had suffered just as I did and got well and strong again by taking the Vegetable Compound. I decided to see what it would do for me, and before I had finished the fourth bottle I was much better, the weakness stopped and the severe pains in my sides left me. I am now much stronger and do my own work and work in the factory besides. I am still taking the Vegetable Compound and give it all the praise."—Mrs. NELLIE QUILLON, 17 Morris St., Muskegon, Mich.

Women should heed such warning symptoms as bearing-down pains and weakness, for they indicate some female trouble, and a persistent and faithful use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will seldom fail to help.

Protect your home from the weather

It is the effect of rain, wind and sun on the unpainted parts of a house that "weathers" it—that makes it age and decay. But when a house is well painted the tough, elastic "film" of paint shields the surface like a rubber coat protects a man.

All Fuller house paints and stains, Pure Prepared Paint, Phoenix Pure Paint, Pioneer Shingle Stain and Concrete for stucco, brick and concrete surfaces, have high protective properties as well as ornamental value. They are manufactured from formulas that are the result of 74 years paint-making experience. Fuller paint products give long, positive protection.

Get in touch with a master painter before the weather causes your house to show signs of decay. Or write to our Service Department for advice and a copy of the free "Home Service" booklet. Whatever your painting need, W. P. Fuller & Co. makes a paint for the purpose.

(International News Service.) LOS ANGELES, June 20.—Phonograph records of short sermons by Almee Sample McPherson, renowned evangelist pastor of Angelus Temple, the church of the four-square gospel, at Echo Park, will be sent to spread the gospel to the four corners of the earth.

Mrs. McPherson has achieved what Billy Sunday found impossible—impressing the speaking voice on a phonograph record—and a number of eight-minute sermonettes are being recorded for her.

"By distributing these records wherever phonographs are known," says the famous woman evangelist, "I hope to spread the message throughout the world. Sermonettes also may be used by eager, enthusiastic young women are being fitted a message of Christ in the world."
