MIDSUMMER BUSINESS AND THE AUTUMN OUTLOOK

A statement issued by the National Bank of Commerce in New York that business is fundamentally sound, but the psychology of the situation is bad and, not being justified by facts, a more hopeful feeling should prevail. Business is not booming, but this is not unnatural for in the phrase of the farmer it is the season between hay and grass. The excessive enthusiasm which during the early months of the year gave concern to those who prefer long periods of moderate profits to short periods of speculative gains and consequent grief has quite disappeared. This is cause for congratulation rather than uneasiness. The present dullness is not a period of depression. Now as always future commitments should be carefully considered and kept well under control, but this does not mean that a good volume of business can not be safely done by means of intelligent and well-considered effort. As a matter of fact, in most lines it is being done. A fear of what may happen is a dangerous element in the business situation today. The times call for a careful analysis of the various factors requiring consideration and a course of dealings based on the conclusions reached from facts rather than from fear. There are not the accumulated stocks of goods today that there were in 1920. Orders generally are small and frequently repeated, indicating a cautious tendency on the part of dealers. Reasonable consumption always goes on and the present fear of a lack of a fair volume of business seems unwarranted. Unfortunate also are the frequent references to a so-called "buyers' strike." The public as a whole has not now stopped buying, but it is buying carefully. This condition is not a "buyers' strike" but evidence of common sense. If business executives are governed by the actual conditions of today and not by a psychology of fear we should have good business for a long time with readjustments taking place industry by industry at different times in different parts of the country without the general disturbances with which business and the general public have become only too familiar. This process of more or less piece-meal readjustment is always going on. Thus retail trade in industrial cities is at present better than in the agricultural districts and conditions in the cotton states and in the corn belt are better than where wheat is the major crop. Wholesale trade is not active, but this is normally a dull season of the year. The inactivity is in part the reflection of uncertainty of retailers in some lines as to their ability to pass on to the consumer higher prices made necessary by expensive materials and labor. That merchants are nevertheless buying is evident from small and frequent orders. The prices of many important groups of raw materials have declined, some apparently in response to seasonal influences, others as a result of conditions in the international market, while yet others have declined in accordance with conditions affecting domestic production. Nevertheless, there is no convincing evidence at this time of any general downward price movement, declines to this date having been no greater than at the corresponding season of years immediately preceding the war.

Dear Folks:

Bill lost his job and right away his spirits took a flop. He knew the going would be rough and soon that he would drop. He claimed that Fate had been quoted, that Luck was upside down. His mouth began to droop and sag, he wore a constant frown.

He answered ads of every kind, but Luck was always near and Fate determined he should lose. This much was always clear. His arms began to pain and ache. "More luck than's bad," said he. "Before I'm through, most every ill I guess will come to me."

Bill's feet began to bother him, his eyes began to itch. His nerves were always right on edge, he'd twist and turn and twitch. [illegible] for his misery took root within his heart. He cried for help and sympathy, and claimed that from the start his life had been a weary one, that others had the luck, that Fate and Fall [illegible] his hopes and [illegible] pluck.

A friend who was a friend indeed, at sympathy, gave none [illegible] another way of getting something done. Bill saw the light and [illegible] a smile, he changed his point of view. 'LOCKWOOD SPECIAL' TO RACE AT SALEM

Local Racing Car Being Overhauled and Put in Shape for Fourth of July Races to be Held at Capital

The "Lockwood Special", a racing car built recently at the Lockwood garage, is again to attempt a debut in racing circles, when it is entered in the 4th of July races at Salem. The car was built originally for entrance in the races at Medford, but due to mechanical troubles was not successful in accomplishing a record. The car is being overhauled however, and the weak spots which were found at Medford are being repaired.

According to Harry McGibbon, who is building the car and who is to drive it in the coming races, the only reason a better showing was not made at Medford was because the car was practically new and untried, therefore the weaknesses had not yet been found. Now, however, Mr. McGibbon states that he is repairing all weak spots and expects to make a real showing at Salem. Mr. McGibbon has had much experience with racing cars and is an old hand at the racing game. He is working overtime in order to get the car ready for the Salem contests.

Although the track at Salem is not even as good as that at Medford it is thought that a much better race will occur. The racer is very well built and sticks to the ground like a leach. The mechanic who is constructing the car sees that he is gearing it so that it will make a great deal more speed than originally. No time is to be allowed for tryouts on the Salem track, but the Lockwood Special will be on the starting line with the first.

A great advantage in this race is gained by the fact that the contests are to be classified so that light and heavyweight cars will participate separately and smaller cars will not be forced to compete against uneven odds. This fact, coupled with the fact that the flaws in the local car have been corrected will make a record much more possible.

FREIGHT STEAMER HAS METAL PILOT

(By United Press.)

LOS ANGELES, June 29.—The freight steamer, Harry Luckenbach, one of Los Angeles harbor soon, bears the distinction of being the first freighter in the history of navigation to be steered automatically.

She is equipped with what is called the "gyro pilot" and otherwise known as the "Metal Mike," an automatic device that holds the ship on her course during the entire voyage.

The device is attached to the wheel by a sprocket chain. The invention is the creation of Elmer A. Sperry, famous inventor, whose devices were employed in the world war in the fight against the submarine. A service station for the "gyro pilot" has been established at the harbor.

My Perennial Beauty

And my debt to France

By Edna Wallace Hopper

All who see me on the stage and elsewhere know that I look 19. My youthful bloom is the envy of countless debutantes. Yet for 32 years I have been a musical comedy star, and am now of a grandmother's age.

I owe this to France. Her experts perfected the beauty helps I use. And I served with France during all the great war to help repay the debt.

Now I go farther. I am offering these formulas to all womankind. I am sharing with all the helps I found, and what they brought to me.

White super-clay

My chief help is a facial clay. Not the crude and muddy clays so many use today, but a white, refined clay, clean and dainty, wondrously effective. It is the final result of 29 years of scientific study.

French beauty experts many years ago taught me what clays can do. Then few women used them, and those women became the marvels of their time for beautiful complexions.

But science has gone far since then. It has found that rare clay, mineral-[illegible], which brings maximum results. It has learned how to refine it—to remove the useless mud. It has added factors which give to clay a multiplied effect.

No ordinary clay gives one any conception of what this new-type clay can do.

Now I am having this super-clay prepared by able experts for all who wish. You get it anywhere. And I call it my White Youth Clay.

Clay is essential

Clay is essential to beauty at its best. Also to continued youth. [illegible] women who use crude clays [illegible] in any event. No girl or woman in these days can afford to [illegible]

Not all these results come at [illegible] but most of them are [illegible] women, in 30 minutes, [illegible] ten years. And my own [illegible] rosy skin shows what [illegible] will do.
