ROSEBURG, OREGON, WEDNESDAY, JULY 18, 1923

CONQUERING THE PRINTED PAGE.

The old timers said that "Readin', Ritin'", and 'Rithmetic were the fundamentals of education. There can be a difference of opinion about the last two subjects, but reading is surely a fundamental. Many people fail to amount to much because they did not learn to read well in school. People who finish their studies at this premature stage may never learn to read easily, and are likely never to acquire the habit of constant reading. This defeat is a handicap if they have ambitions in life. People who never learned to read well are hindered by a too limited vocabulary. They know the words of daily life, but not very much more. Articles of general information in the newspapers might contain many words they did not know. Their reading in so far as they do any, frequently consists mostly of sporting stuff for men and fashion news for women, crime accounts, etc., and other matter having simple language. It is hard for people to read good stuff when the taste for the same has never been developed. Now if those people had stayed longer in school and been given thorough practice in reading so they were familiar with the language used in public discussion, and would become interested in what is going on in the world, a wider chance in life would open before them. They would keep reading and growing in intelligence. The old time school emphasized reading, but placed too much emphasis on reading cloud well. It taught inflections and gestures and produced beautiful elocutionists. But that is less important than wide experience in silent reading, in which the pupil becomes the master of the printed page, and gets the sense of anything easily and quickly. The people who acquire that faculty have laid the foundation for success in industry or business, also for good citizenship.

Edward Bok of Philadelphia has aroused interest by a generous offer of a $100,000 prize for the best plan by which the United States might cooperate with other countries for the preservation of world peace. While a great deal may be done toward this noble purpose by some well matured project, yet after all world peace is primarily a matter of the spirit existing among the people. When the nations of the world all want peace, and will make sacrifices to get it, there will be universal and lasting peace. Differences between individuals are settled by compromise and the conciliatory spirit, and differences between nations must be harmonized in the same way.

That proposed highway up the North Umpqua to Crater and Diamond lakes is a question of vital interest to Douglas county. When we can route the tourist through Roseburg to Crater Lake this city will be put on the map as the hub of the scenic wonder. Interest should not lag in the North Umpqua project. It means just as much to Douglas county as the Pacific highway.

We wonder what the fellow who said paved highways "would wreck the state" thinks about the matter now. As has been said before the tourist is going to pay the bill in full—and he's mighty glad to have the opportunity. Hundreds of them are doing it every day—right now.

It was some band concert. And it is some band stand. And there was some crowd there—hundreds of people from everywhere. And to top the whole thing off Roseburg has a wonderful musical organization.

The Elks will gambol on the green this evening and have a jolly, good time with their wives and sweethearts.

Here's hoping we get started on the Alexander bridge before some of us die of old age.

This is great weather for the fellow who has no vacation in sight.

Tear Folks:
I've been down around St. Louis where the Mississippi flows, in the country where Tom Sawyer lived a life that grows and grows in the hearts of men and women and of children too as well, for the story of this youngster holds a world within its spell. Round his happy haunts and playgrounds, with a growing smile I've been, and I've seen the spots he played around with Huckleberry Finn. There's the island in the river where they played at pirates bold, and the caves and rocky places where they found the hidden gold. What a life of rare adventure must have been their happy lot! What a joy in playing hooky what a pain in getting caught! Who'd have guessed that Tommy Sawyer would a Nation's tribute gain? Who'd have guessed that he'd be writing of his childhood, as Mark Twain?
On the leaves of the river in whose waters he has bathed, I have closed my eyes and pictured how he acted and behaved in the years when as a kiddie he was racing free and wild, while the plots of future stories in his brain were being plied.
Then I looked around in wonder for before my startled eyes were a dozen Tommy Sawyers eating huckleberry pies. For in Tom I see the childhood of the boys who live today, building plots for future stories I may read when I am gray.

PRUNE PICKIN'S

BY BERT G. BATES

IN NAUGHTY HOLLYWOOD,

July 16.
We were down to Lesky's Studio this a. m. Meandering around The lot watching the Stars scintillate And we overheard Two "extra" girls talking And one of them said, "I just done terribul today" And the other one answered, "Naw ya didn't—ya're just As good as My McAvoy Ever hoped to be." And they both believed it Which shows that All the hicks don't Grow in hicktowns.

DUMBELL DORA THINKS

That Babylon is a manufacturing town for persbulators.
A writer in the Los Angeles Examiner says "Think of a thing long enough and it will come to you." We've been seated here all afternoon wishing for a glass of beer and the soda haven't made their appearance at this writing.

"Red hair denotes intense loyalty" says a headline. Now we suppose the fellows will all be wanting their janes to henna their locks.

The palms in Hollywood don't look so dern bit like the palms in the Palace of Sweets.

When a damsel is acting in the movie

she clatters her mug with yellow grease paint, which photographs as "The skin you love to touch" or the "school girl complexion" or fill that sorta stuff. A lot of the janes here must be holding down movie jobs judging from the amount of paint that is being smeared.

The bathin' suits

Are nice and neat They surely show A lot of meat.

As yet the clicking of hypodermic needles haven't caused us to loose any sleep at night. If they use 'em in these parts they must have 'em equipped with Maxim silencers.

A luxurious purple upholstered limousine with more extras than spare parts hotted down the Hollywood boulevard this a. m. and we run a block to get a glimpse of the occupants, thinking surely they must be top notch movie stars and when we caught up with the gas buggy we found four japs in it.

Cecil Black is sody squirting at the

"Pig n' Whistle" in Los Angeles and we asked him tother day if they got the name from a slaughter house.

The men folks in this village are all wearing little mustaches that curl up on the ends and they look as the they'd been out in a sand storm with their noses running.

Want to see the "Covered Wagon"

last night at Gramians and contrary to suspitions it wasn't an advertisement for the Ford.

This movie is a pippin and there should be a law compelling everyone to see it.

We wish to explain that even tho we are taking drawing lessons here we are not sketching from the nude in spite of the fact that the Mack Sennett studios are located here.

Drop us a line when the street lamps are installed and we'll come home—that is, if we can hobble to the depot by that time.

We'll bet like Ketch and his uniform could get in the movies down here any time they wanted to.

To know how good a cigarette really can be made you must try a—

Colonial standards will have his taste and his feeling of American life affected. The subtle language of color and form will whisper to him. The echo of an earlier, stricter civilization will penetrate his feeling of home.
The elements that enter into furnishing such a room are easy to grasp. The floors may be of fairly broad boards covered with braided rugs placed with reference to the shape of the room. The walls may be of rough plaster, natural or in quiet tints, with a low wainscoting; or they may be paneled. There will be no pro-color will be chosen in the place with regard to the light of the room. Dark heavy will be avoided in any case, lightness and cheerfulness being home attractive to the child as to the grown-up.

There will be no conventional nature's superlatives. Softly chosen—the wall-paper, the curtains, either with no pattern or with small all-over patterns, be hung next the window or they will permit sunlight to come without obstruction, except as will diffuse the radiance, eliminate glare.

By an Interior Decorator
The growing generation in homes which exhibit the effect of interior decorating is being subjected to an influence that is hard to estimate but which is undoubtedly beneficial. This is true whether the art's principles are applied by professional or by informed amateur decorators.
It is not difficult to believe that the boy or girl whose family life centers about a living room furnished according to informal
