"A PURITAN WIFE"

By Jane Phelps

CHAPTER LXXXIII

A little way down the road Bess and Ann passed. Hugh and Nora. "Engine trouble," Hugh called. Bess stopped, ordered Nora to get in with them, and they went on.

Bess stopped the car a little distance from the ranch, Ann got out. "I'll reconnoitre, Ann. It may be best for them not to see you at first. They won't mind Nora."

Ann at first objected, but finally conceded that perhaps Bess was right.

"But hurry, Bess. I shall go mad waiting. Oh, I must find Jack!"

"We'll find him, and I'll be back to you in a jiffy, whether he is there or not."

Bess drove into the yard. Dick sat, the picture of forlorn masculinity, on the porch.

"Where's Grace?" Bess asked, motioning to Nora to sit still.

"Gone—where's Ann? I've been telephoning but can't get her."

"Where has Grace gone?" Bess asked, hiding a smile. So he had telephoned for Ann.

"Over to your ranch, I suppose. I sent her off in the flyover. Told her I'd come for it later."

"May I ask what you wanted of Ann, Dick?"

"I wanted her to come home, of course," Dick replied sheepishly. "This joke has gone far enough."

"Has Grace gone for good?"

"Yes," shortly. "Now where's Ann?"

Without a word Bess turned her car and sped down the road.

"Jump in, Ann," she said. "Is Jack there?" Ann asked, as she obeyed.

"Never mind Jack now, Ann. Dick wants you. He—"

"He isn't sick—good?"

"Mercy, no! He's only repentant. Don't talk to me, just wait."

Back they hurried. Dick still sat in the same hopeless position.

"Here's Ann, Dick. You can tell her what you want," Bess said. Then whispered to Ann: "Grace has gone. I think he went her way. Get out and talk to him. I'll follow in a moment and we'll find out about Jack."

"Well, Dick?" Ann said in a low voice as she stood beside him. He had not stirred.

"Are you coming back, Ann?" he asked.

"Has that girl gone? Gone for good?"

"Yes, she's gone for good."

"I'm glad," Dick said. "I'm glad you're here."

"I'm glad you're here," Dick said. "I'm glad you're here."

"I'm glad you're here," Dick said. "I'm glad you're here."

"I'm glad you're here," Dick said. "I'm glad you're here."

"I'm glad you're here," Dick said. "I'm glad you're here."

"I'm glad you're here," Dick said. "I'm glad you're here."

"I'm glad you're here," Dick said. "I'm glad you're here."

"I'm glad you're here," Dick said. "I'm glad you're here."

"I'm glad you're here," Dick said. "I'm glad you're here."

"I'm glad you're here," Dick said. "I'm glad you're here."

"I'm glad you're here," Dick said. "I'm glad you're here."

"I'm glad you're here," Dick said. "I'm glad you're here."

"I'm glad you're here," Dick said. "I'm glad you're here."

"I'm glad you're here," Dick said. "I'm glad you're here."

"I'm glad you're here," Dick said. "I'm glad you're here."

"I'm glad you're here," Dick said. "I'm glad you're here."

"I'm glad you're here," Dick said. "I'm glad you're here."

"I'm glad you're here," Dick said. "I'm glad you're here."

"I'm glad you're here," Dick said. "I'm glad you're here."

"I'm glad you're here," Dick said. "I'm glad you're here."

"I'm glad you're here," Dick said. "I'm glad you're here."

"I'm glad you're here," Dick said. "I'm glad you're here."

good?" Ann returned. "Yes, I hope you're satisfied now."

Ann felt like laughing. The answer was so like Dick. He hadn't said he was sorry, hadn't acknowledged he was in any way to blame. He had done what she demanded. That was all. But for the present that was enough.

"Dick, Grace has taken Jackie," Ann said, then motioned to Bess. She and Nora came up on the porch.

"What?" Dick was at once galvanized into action.

"She's taken Jackie. He was playing in the yard, and she grabbed him before anyone could get to him, put him into the machine and went off. Doctor Grayson was away, so I could do nothing until Bess came."

"Damn her!" Dick said in a hoarse voice. "Then, 'She's taken him home with her to get even with me.'"

"For what?" Ann asked.

"For getting her to go. We quarreled. It doesn't make any difference what about. Anyway she's gone. Nora you stay her—"

ADVICE TO LOVELORN

Should a boy hold a girl's hand in a show? How should a girl act toward boys to gain their friendship and keep it? Do you think dress has anything to do with it? If two girls and their brother live in an apartment during school months is it all right if boy friends come to visit? How should you entertain them? Thank you.

BETTY:—What a lot of questions from one girl, Betty. It is a little early to predict just what will be worn this fall. In general I would tell you to get a simple dark silk crepe made with good style, as it would do for many occasions during the winter. I would not advise you to use a lace bertha. They are not as good as they were. Black satin slippers and silk hose. Yes, there will be some long waisted dresses, with the waist very plain, and tight fitting above the waist line.

All boys and young men say nice things to girls, and of course they mean them. Laughter and a gay reply are the best means of hiding your embarrassment, if you feel any. Several of your questions can be answered in one. I do not believe in indiscriminate love making between boys and girls. Be different from the rest of the girls, if they are that way, and refuse to let any of the boys become at all familiar with you. You will never be

MOVIES

Antlers Theatre

A photoplay based on the play which a few years ago was one of the hits of Broadway is "Success," scheduled for presentation tonight at the Antlers Theatre, with Brandoll Tynan, the stage star, in the role which he originally created in the spoken play. The dramatic interest in the story and the excellence of the cast which interprets the various roles should make the presentation a distinct hit.

"Success" is a story of the theatre, but unlike many of the type, this is said to have been written by persons familiar with the intimate details of life behind the footlights. Its authors have managed to capture the spirit and atmosphere of the playhouse, and the characters which they have introduced are all faithful actual types.

In addition to Mr. Tynan, the cast includes the delightful screen actress, Mary Astor, as the talented daughter; Naomi Childers as her mother; and Dore Davidson, Lionel Adams, Stanley Ridge, Robert Lee Keating, Billy Quirk and others.

Liberty Theatre

Here is the exact wording of the petition that was presented to Mayor Hyman in New York:

"We, the undersigned citizens of New York City, knowing your personal sympathy with and official interest in the welfare and happiness of the people, beg you to consider this, our petition.

"Conditions due to world disturbances have so interfered with industry that many of us have been unable to provide the necessary funds for vacations and frequent visits to places of amusement;

"We know and appreciate your broad love of humanity; we know your wish that the people of your city enjoy and fully appreciate our privilege and pleasures.

"We have holidays. But political holidays must of necessity recall memories of the victors and the vanquished. Religious holidays must suggest differences of opinion.

"We have the great annual celebration of New Year's Eve. Because of the season the weather is often most severe.

"We believe it would add materially to the pleasure, the joy and the happiness of the people of New York City if Your Honor would set aside a night in the near future when all our citizens could give themselves up to gaiety.

"When we could lose the burdens of our everyday worries, forget for one night at least, the most recent and least popular of our national reforms, release the spirit of holiday making that is in all of us—the most lowly as well as the most wealthy; when we could dance, parade, sing, cheer and play with that radiant abandon which renews youth, which dispels drudgery, and which speaks the vitality of this flourishing city.

"We do not seek the ponderous formality of fête, carnival, festival or Mardi Gras. We ask simply for a night when we can all play; a night such as the life-loving Italians have, and called plainly by them "The Exciting Night"—a night to enjoy life. At Liberty Theatre tomorrow, Monday and Tuesday.

BACK ACHE TERRIBLY

Mrs. Robinson Tells How She Found Relief by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Amarillo, Texas.—"My back was my greatest trouble. It would ache so that it would almost kill me and I would have cramps. I suffered in this way about three years; then a lady friend suggested that I try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I have had better health since, keep house and am able to do my work. I recommend the Vegetable Compound to my friends as it has certainly given me great relief."—Mrs. C. B. Robinson, 508 N. Lincoln St., Amarillo, Tex.

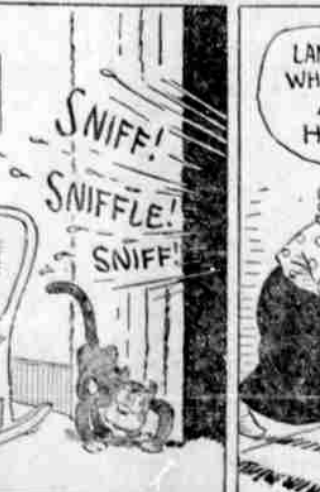

The Vegetable Compound is a splendid medicine for women. It relieves the troubles which cause such symptoms as backache, painful times, irregularity, tired and worn-out feelings and nervousness. This is shown again and again by such letters as Mrs. Robinson writes as well as by one woman telling another. These women know what it did for them. It is surely worth your trial.

Housewives make a great mistake in allowing themselves to become so ill that it is well-nigh impossible for them to attend to their necessary household duties.
