WIDE SWEEP OF BALLOT BROOM BEING PLANNED

Conference for Progressive Political Action Will Launch Campaign.

MARIONETTES ASSAILED

Meddlers and Muddlers Also To Be Fought—Party Blocs Must Go Decision Conference

By KENNETH W. CLARK, International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, July 24.—Flushed with successes in the last elections, the Conference for Progressive Political Action, founded only a year ago, is laying plans for a great political campaign in 1924, which will extend to every state and every congressional district in the country, according to a statement from headquarters here.

"Of course," the statement said, "conference workers realize their campaign in 1924 was only a skirmish and preliminary to the greater contest that they will wage in the coming presidential year."

"In that year meddlers, muddlers and mutts who dance as marionettes to the music of dictatorial corporations will be swept out of congress, the federal departments and the White House."

The conference is headed by William H. Johnston, president of the International Association of Machinists, Warren S. Stone, grand chief of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, and in the so-called "progressive" circles of the country are included in the membership of the national committee.

Throughout the statement strikes a highly confident note, predicting "the year 1924 will become memorable as the year when every-day Americans will assert their political independence and take control of their own government, without interference by, or dictation from, a minority of class-wealth manipulators."

Not only will "the people take a greater responsibility unto themselves and participate in all the affairs of public life so that a real reign of law and order will prevail," but it is the plan "that administrative government, controlled by special privilege, manipulated under private license for the personal profit of the financial and social 'blocs,' must be ended for all time in these United States."

"Experiences gained in 1922 have convinced the most stupid and the most bigoted observer that the working people refuse to be party idolaters or pawns upon the political chess-board of money lords, landlords and industrial lords," the statement declared.

Taking political stock, it continued: "Largely because of the activity of the C. P. A., many undesirable senators, or obnoxious aspirants, were defeated last year. Thirteen senatorial candidates were named."

"On the other hand, in spite of the most bitter opposition, twelve pronounced progressives were elected to the senate."

In the house, while not more amazing, the success was more gratifying, it was said.

"For the house of representatives 137 new members were elected, 93 undesirables were defeated, 13 saw the handwriting on the wall and voluntarily quit. Most of the hard-bitten partisans who have favored pernicious class legislation for the favored few will not trouble the producers of the nation again in the house."

Much gratification was evidenced that "Henry Cabot Lodge, a notorious business agent of special privilege from Massachusetts, was barely re-elected."

No candidate was brought forward to whom the organization plans to hitch its political star. Personalities were not mentioned, except that workers for the conference "will bring forward for public recognition men and women from his own ranks—those who have been tested and trusted with the destinies of their associates in economic, educational and fraternal activities."

Regarding policies, the conference will attack "detested class legislation like the Cummins-Eads transportation act and similar measures favored by the financial and social 'blocs' which control the government of the United States."

MR. SPENCE STATES REPORTS ARE FALSE

(By C. E. Spence, State Market Agent)

There will be a bumper potato crop in Oregon, and farmers are wondering what to do with it. They are wondering if the price they will get will warrant the harvesting.

There is a wonderful grain yield in Oregon and the northwest growers are wondering if the market will give them what they want and cost of seed, or if they will have to trade dollars again.

And while the farmers are wondering and worrying comes the news paper and periodical stories and the crop reports of great yields of grain, hay and potatoes.

Some of these are so carefully worded that the reader gets the impression that the whole United States is covered with wonderful crops like Oregon. It is a move in the speculator's checker game. It is not true. Then a day or two later come the follow-up stories of a probable nation-wide crop shortage; of how the railroads are striving to meet the situation, but that on account of the record-breaking crops the task to move them is the great problem of the officials.

And many growers are stamped by these stories of great surpluses and lack of transportation. They will conclude that they had better sell before the market is completely glutted and while there is a chance to get transportation. It has ever been thus.

Cooperation Urged

The officials of the Northwest Wheat Growers' association are not scared by this speculator's propaganda, but the grain grower on the outside has not their source of crop and market information. If three-fourths of the grain of the northwest was contracted to this association, these stampede stories of surplus yields and crop shortage would have little scare effect.

If there was a state-wide marketing association to handle 80 per cent of the potatoes of Oregon, farmers would not be wondering if their potato fields would be worth digging.

The crop speculators send out stories that co-operative associations are successful only where production is confined to a certain locality, like oranges, raisins, melons, etc., and can easily be controlled. They state that it cannot be successful with a product that is generally grown.

Organization Upheld

If California growers can organize and control the market on oranges, why cannot Oregon growers likewise control its potato output? And why cannot Washington and Idaho do the same? And why cannot the three states, or a dozen states, merge their organizations and market all their potatoes thru one selling agency?

The state co-operative egg association of California, Oregon and Washington are doing this. Under such a merger they do not fight each other for the eastern markets—they do not all dump on and demoralize the same market.

The state co-operative marketing association, large or small, cuts just that much out of the profits of the speculator—profits that are by all rights the producers'. It is but a matter of co-operative loyalty and efficient management to merge and extend these associations.

But the great drawback of organization is the growers who stand back and say they will not co-operate until they see how the movement works out. Usually, there are enough of these to hold back a majority of the output. And these are the producers the speculators use to hold back success of the organization and often break it.

When you have worn our spectacles a day you will be amazed at the eye comfort you'll receive.

Wheat and corn have been well controlled in Oregon by use of copper carbonate dust, according to investigations by the experiment station. Cost, labor, and risk of treatment is less than liquid bluestone or formaldehyde, and one-fourth less seed is required for a good stand. The plants are also more vigorous and healthy.

Average fleece weight on all sheep in the United States in 1922 was 1.85 pounds. In 1923 it was between 7 and 8 pounds. The increase is due to careful selection and breeding. It is significant to note that Oregon has many bands of sheep that average better than 10 pounds. The average for the state as a whole is around 9 pounds.

Stockmen handling pure bred stock will find it profitable means of disposing of surplus stock. There is no better means to show the outside world what you have.

The diversified farmer is the satisfied farmer, for his income is gradually increasing. The future of Oregon irrigation projects rests with the diversified farmer.

There is one simple and inexpensive way to reduce dangerous, swollen veins and bursas, and get them down to normal, and that is to apply Moore's Emerald Oil night and morning. People who have painful, enlarged veins should not neglect them for they sometimes burst and cause much misery and loss of time.

ed by germs is such a remarkable healing agent that eczema, barber's itch, salt rheum and other inflammatory skin eruptions go in a few days. Piles are quickly absorbed and even gottres, wens and enlarged glands are dissolved.

For many years it has been used in hospitals for boils, carbuncles, ulcers, abscesses and open sores, and with the most perfect success. With each original bottle which any pharmacist can supply you, is a folder that gives instructions for use in all of the above distressing complaints.
