THE MISFIT

By JANE PHELPS

CHAPTER VI Once again Mrs. Crandell asked Horace to bring Natalie to tea.

Natalie, in spite of her dread of another visit to Horace's mother, was far from stupid, and when she entered the room and saw three or four young women, she felt at once that she had been asked to her disadvantage.

That the naturalness of the boarding house and the office would not be understood in Mrs. Crandell's drawing room she had no way of knowing.

This time she made no mistakes in handling her tea, for she had watched Mrs. Crandell on the former occasion with intense interest.

LAWYERS TOP LIST AS SKYSCRAPER TENANTS

(By Associated Press.) CHICAGO, Aug. 6.—Twenty per cent of the tenants in American skyscrapers are lawyers, according to a survey made by the National Association of Building Owners and Managers by W. R. Ballard of Boston, Mass.

The survey covers typical tenancy of 72 skyscrapers, and is said to be the first one of its kind ever made. Of the total of 3,723 tenants canvassed, 823 were found to be lawyers. After lawyers come investment houses with 379, and real estate in a close third with 252 tenants. The survey will be used in aiding prospective builders to determine the proper way to lay out their space.

The tenants using the most space are banks and trust companies, with oil concerns next and insurance companies third. The report showed thirty-eight different classes of tenants were found to be housed in the various skyscrapers.

WILL DESIGN MOTOR CARS TO MEET ROAD CONDITIONS

(By Associated Press.) STOCKHOLM, Aug. 6.—Sweden, considering the motorization of its highway traffic, desires that the general establishment of regular automobile passenger and truck services cannot wait for the construction of new roads and the building of old ones, but that motor vehicles must be adapted to the roads.

The roads are to be divided into four classes, according to the weights which they are able to sustain. Trailers, rather than additional motor trucks, are to be used wherever the traffic is large. A curious type of vehicle is recommended for winter use in northern Sweden. This car is to have sledge runners instead of front wheels, and will be equipped with special drive wheels and gear.

For the financing of this new service yearly subsidies have been proposed, as well as a government loan fund.

other young women were all much more expensively gowned, but none of them were as pretty as Natalie, as more than one of the young men told her.

"I guess I'll get along all right," she told Etta. "I did this afternoon, and there were a lot of swells there."

Mrs. Crandell had done all she could to make Horace break his engagement. She had used the same arguments with him that Etta had used with Natalie, incompatability, difference in station, and had cited many unhappy marriages in support of her argument.

"Remember if at any time you want to come back I shall be glad to have you," he had laughed as he said it, but some way Natalie knew he meant it, and he gave her $100 as a wedding gift.

"You won't need it after you are married, so I will give it to you now instead of waiting for the wedding," he had told her, smiling in his kindly fashion.

"Wise old guy," Etta said when Natalie told her. "He knows you can have everything you want after you marry Horace, and he knows, too, that you can't have many clothes on your salary. I call it right nice of him."

"So do I!" Natalie answered with enthusiasm. "Clyde congratulated me so nicely today. Everyone is kind."

"Clyde is a good sport," Etta answered, her face taking on a wistful look, as it invariably did when she spoke of Clyde Blackwell.

ADVICE TO THE LOVELORN by MRS. ELLSBURY

(Address all communications to Mrs. Ellsbury, care of News-Review.)

Dear Mrs. Ellsbury:—I am a girl of 18 with a broken heart. What shall I do? I have been deeply in love for a year with a boy one year older than I am, and we have talked of being married. Recently he has stopped going with me for no reason whatever, and has started going with another girl. I shall never want to go with anyone else, and I know my heart is broken. What can I do to forget him?

FRANCES. Frances:—You must, as you say, do your best to forget him. It will be a little hard for awhile, but such things are a part of life. You are very young and will get over it soon I am sure. Do not make the mistake of not going with anyone else. Go about with your friends and have a good time.

Dear Mrs. Ellsbury:—When would you wear your winter coat, or fall suit and hat? Is the first of September too early? I am much puzzled over this matter. Your column gives the best of advice.

A READER. A Reader:—A great deal depends on the weather. If September is cool and cloudy, more fall clothes are seen than if the weather is warm, but September is not too soon to start wearing them.

Dear Mrs. Ellsbury:—Could you please tell us just what a girl 17 and 18 should wear?

PEGGY AND VIE. Peggy and Vie:—Write again, restating your question, and giving your height.

MOVIES

Liberty Theatre A prize story has become a prize picture. Booth Tarkington's thoroughly human account of small-town Indiana life has found its celluloid counterpart in "Alice Adams." The photoplay is true to Tarkington and true to the highest film standards. Rowland Lee, in directing and adapting, has not transplanted Virgil Adams and his whining wife and their two children to the screen; he has simply made portraits of them. They are excellent likenesses; there is no retouching to remind you that you are not sitting in on the Adams family councils and quarrels. Florence Vidor understands Alice, and resists all temptations to make her a motion picture heroine. Miss Vidor has never done finer work. Claude Gillingwater plays her father, and what a performance! At Liberty Theatre, tomorrow and Wednesday.

Antlers Theatre A splendid cast has been afforded "Masters of Men," the great story by Morgan Robertson, which the Antlers Theatre will show tonight, headed by Earle Williams, Alice Calhoun, Cullen Landis and Wanda Hawley. The story is striking.

ing, vivid picturization of life at sea with the background of a heart-stirring love drama involving the four principal characters.

It is a picture of American youth and it is as fresh and wholesome as a breath of the sea upon which the action occurs. Dick Halpin, an orphan living in a small town, is falsely accused of a theft committed by the brother of the girl he loves. He accepts the blame in order to spare her humiliation, runs away and joins the United States navy. While on shore leave Dick and Lieutenant Brees, his superior, are shanghaied and flung into the forecastle of the "Mary Earl" commanded by one of the most brutal of old time sea masters. The boys fight their way out of their difficulties and manage to escape, rejoin their ship just as the fish fleet is coming out of the harbor of Santiago. Dick's help helps save the day.
