A DAY OF SORROW

The entire nation bowed its head today in deepest sorrow out of respect to our dearly and most beloved late president, Warren G. Harding, whose body was laid at rest in the family burial plot at Marion, Ohio.

From the days of Abraham Lincoln probably no other president has so endeared himself to the people of these United States as had President Harding. His sudden death was a shock and crushing blow to the entire nation—an over-tired and nervous world.

The death of President Harding has shocked the American people as something more than a great public calamity. Mr. Harding was more to them than a public official occupying a position of infinite responsibility and supreme power.

Mr. Harding approached the almost superhuman difficulties of his high office with a feeling of earnest human sympathy. He impressed all who met him as one who ardently desired to help the people out of their personal and economic difficulties.

How far he succeeded in solving the various difficulties which the people had to meet will be a problem which the politicians and people will long discuss. But it will be admitted even by bitter party opponents that Warren Harding gave the best that was in him to the service of the American people.

It is fortunate that the man who is to succeed to his high office is no mere politician of second-rate ability, but a statesman who has shown capacity for firm and decisive action.

President Harding was a big-hearted, lovable man. He thought of his people in terms of kindness—in deeds of justice. His exalted position as leader of the nation did not change his character or thoughts from those employed in private life.

The News-Review cannot better exemplify the virtues of our late president other than using the public utterance from his own lips when recently he addressed an audience on his transcontinental trip in the following language:

"I tell you, my countrymen, the world needs more of the Christ; the world needs the spirit of the Man of Nazareth. If we could bring into the relationships of humanity, among ourselves and among the nations of the earth the brotherhood that was taught by the Christ, we would have a restored world; we would have little or none of war, and we would have a new hope for humanity throughout the globe.

"There never was a greater lesson taught than that of the golden rule. If we could have that one faithfully observed, I would be willing to wipe out the remainder of the commandments.

"I should like to say further that if we are going to make of this America of ours all that the fathers sought, if we are going to make it true to the institutions for which they bled, we must continue to maintain religious liberty as well as civil and human liberty. As you remember, we build on the foundation that was the stone of human liberty, and the third fundamental was religious liberty. The United States never can afford to deny religious freedom.

"One more thought: I should like to have America a little more earnest and thoroughly committed in its religious devotion. We were more religious a hundred years ago, or even fifty years ago, than we are today. We have been getting too far away from the spiritual and too much absorbed in our material existence. It tends to make us a sordid people. The world war lifted us out of the rut.

"We found ourselves consecrated to the defense of the republic and fighting for our ideal of civilization, and we in America were put on a higher plane. But when the war was ended we started to drift back, thinking only of our selfish pursuits. I tell you, my countrymen, that we can never be the ideal republic unless we have great ideals to pursue and know something of the spiritual as well as of the material life.

"That is one of the reasons why I have been so zealous in the last few weeks in trying to have our country committed to something more of international helpfulness, so that it may be ready to play its part in the uplift of the world and in the movement to prevent in the future conflicts among the nations."

Today the entire nation bows its head in sorrow out of respect to a lovable character—a man of high ideals and lofty purposes—gone to that undiscovered land from whose bourne no traveler returns.

CROSSING THE BAR Sunset and evening star, And one clear call for me!

But such a tide as moving seems asleep, Too full for sound and foam,

Twilight and evening bell, And after that the dark!

For tho' from out our bourne of Time and Place The flood may bear me far,

Peace With Germany

One of the first steps of the administration was the bringing about of a formal peace with the Central powers. The peace resolution passed the senate and the house and was signed by the president July 2, 1921.

On the recommendation of President Harding congress approved a budget system of government. He had the distinction of appointing the first budget officer. Harding's recommendation that congress enact legislation for a revision of the war risk bureau resulted in the bill which created the war veterans' bureau.

Domestically, Harding was faced soon after his inauguration by a wave of unemployment, following an industrial let-down. Under Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover, a federal employment agency was established.

Harding went to the national republican convention in 1920 backed by one term in the United States senate and some experience in Ohio politics.

The election of President Harding was declared more of a repudiation of the League of Nations and of Woodrow Wilson than a tribute to the candidate.

and nothing of the demagogue." Harding was a strong opponent of the "watchful waiting" policy in Mexican affairs.

Condemned the League. In the rejection of the League of Nations Harding felt America made no surrender "of our hope and ambition for an association of nations to promote world peace."

Harding was closely associated with the late Theodore Roosevelt during his espousal of a bill for preparedness endorsed by Roosevelt.

In July 1891, Harding married Miss Florence King, daughter of one of Marion's leading business men.

Forest Supervisor Carl B. Neal Finds Work Progressing Very Nicely

All Fires so Far This Year Have Been of Less Than a Quarter Acre in Extent and Caused Little Damage

Conditions in the National Forest have been exceeding good so far this year, according to Forest Supervisor Carl Neal, who returned yesterday after spending several weeks in the Umpqua forest making a complete survey of conditions and inspecting the work which has been done.

So far there have been only four small fires, all of these fires were under one-fourth of an acre in extent and were controlled without difficulty. They all started by lightning and no uncontrolled fires have so far been discovered this year.

The forest service forces are prepared, however, to meet any emergency and 8 trail crews, located at strategic points throughout the forest and ready and equipped to leave upon a moment's notice for the scene of any fire. Supervisor Neal found these crews well organized and equipped and properly instructed to meet emergencies.

The nights in the forest are unusually cool, it is reported, and as a result the forest fires are most easily controlled, while conditions for their start are not as favorable as if the nights were warm.

Road work in the forest is progressing rapidly. On the Diamond Lake-Campus road, the crew was held up for some time by the breaking down of the big tractor. The crew, however, was divided, one crew taking up grading work and the other shanking. The shanking crew is making exceptional progress and will probably exceed on the entire state of way this year.

Work of restocking some of the streams of the forest has been under way in connection with the state game commission. The Rock Creek forest hatchery has turned over to the forest service several thousand trout fry, which are being transported by truck trains to various portions of the Umpqua forest.

Bear Creek, the upper part of Fish Creek and other streams are to receive the fish. A new trail up Bear Creek is opening up the headwaters of that stream.

Grazing conditions are unsurpassable, Mr. Neal states. There is an abundance of grass and the stock looks exceptionally well.

Altogether conditions are very good and the work is progressing.

DEER SEASON TO OPEN AUGUST 20

Injunction and Appeal Will Prevent Order from Becoming Effective

OPINION IS RECEIVED

Attorney General Says Decree of Circuit Court Was Not Stayed by Appeal to Supreme Court

The deer season will open on August 20th, the date fixed by statute, the order of the state game commission dated the 9th day of April, 1923, notwithstanding, District Attorney Neuner stated today.

The district attorney this morning received an exhaustive opinion from the attorney general stating in substance that the decree made and entered in the circuit court for Marion county, wherein W. C. Winslow is the plaintiff, the state game commissioners and the district attorneys of Marion and Douglas counties are the defendants, which enjoins the defendants from enforcing the order of the state game commission, was not stayed by the appeal to the supreme court, but nevertheless, Mr. Neuner states, that he has investigated the matter and find that great confusion would result if the order of the game commission was attempted to be enforced, changing the date from the 20th of August to the 10th day of September.

Many inquiries are reaching his office and in some instances people are camped in the mountains waiting for the opening of the season who are ignorant of any order of the commission and he further states that he believes it for the best interests of the general public and all concerned, inasmuch as there seems to be some doubt as to the validity of the order of the commission.

"I believe that a more wholesome respect for the law will be created to await the final action of the supreme court, which now has that question for final determination, and permit the date for the opening of the season to stand as provided by statute and as far as my office is concerned the opening season will be August 20 and the closing season also fixed by statute," Attorney Neuner says.

Unless the supreme court should, before the closing date, decide otherwise. Then, of course, we will obey the mandate of the highest tribunal. I do not believe that it would be fair, just or proper to enforce the provisions of the order made by the commission against every other person except Mr. Winslow, against whom the court enjoined us from enforcement, he being the plaintiff in the case recently instituted in Marion county, and no great harm can result, and I know a lot of good will result and a more wholesome respect created for the law by this action."

The action has the approval of the local sportsmen's league and the majority of hunters, a number of whom have been interviewed, and concur in the opinion of the district attorney.

the visitors will go through the city Saturday and Sunday, there being several hundred California cars scheduled for that time.

It is expected that both before and after the convention many hundreds of people will visit in the Umpqua valley, and as this section is being liberally advertised in the official program, and is extending an invitation to those attending the convention to stop here, it is well to follow up the publicity so gained with a welcome here.

This is a Studebaker year.

LIST OF TAXPAYERS FILED

PORTLAND, Ore., Aug. 10.—Clyde G. Huntley, collector of internal revenue, today mailed to postmasters throughout the state a typewritten list containing the names of the taxpayers who filed a federal income tax return for the calendar year, 1922, residing in the respective postmaster's immediate locality.

As a condition of the filing of these lists will be posted by the postmaster for inspection by the general public. This arrangement applies to all postoffices in the state from which returns were filed with the exception of Portland, Eugene and Medford.

At these points, a card index showing the names of all persons who filed returns is maintained at the collector's office in the custom house at Portland and the branch
