FINE SENSE OF PSYCHOLOGY

David Surely Will Have to Be Credited With a Deep Knowledge of Human Nature.

An Indianapolis woman tells the following story: "The family was spending the summer in Brown county in the most wonderful log cabin. The immense, rough-hewn logs told of pioneer days and even now the spirit of dreams and of rest pervaded the place. From early morning till early evening hundreds of birds took turns in singing of the wild loveliness."

"The sheer beauty of it so charmed us that we were oblivious to the crudity of our practical makeshifts and settled down to living as we found it."

"One of our findings was that the bathing facilities, although adequate, were primitive. A galvanized iron tub stood in a corner of the immense porch, quite sheltered by the woods and an end of the cabin, but not so well protected from family intrusion. A bath was a game of catch-as-catch-can."

"David had arisen very early, filled his tub from the kitchen pump and was enjoying a relaxed sense of security, when he heard the gentle thud, thud, on the stairs above, which could mean none other than the footsteps of his six-year-old sister. We believe David is destined to become a leader of men. Nothing but a deep understanding of human reactions could have inspired him. Raising his voice to the nth power he called out: 'Don't look! Don't look! And don't look to see why not!'"

HONOR RESTORED TO FAMILY

Earl of Mar and Kellie Allowed to Resume Office Which His Ancestor Had Forfeited.

After a lapse of 208 years, the office of hereditary keeper of Stirling castle, the ancient residence of the Stuart kings, has been restored by King George to the earl of Mar and Kellie. This office was conferred on an ancestor of the present earl in the year 1370 and held by the family, with one break, until 1715. The then earl took sides with the Stuarts and, being defeated at Sheriffmuir, was deprived of his title.

At the ceremony of restoration the earl presented his royal warrant of office to the military commander of the castle, and received in return the key on a red velvet cushion. Taking over the key, the earl said that King George had forgiven the act which had deprived the Eskeine family of an honor highly prized by it, and which had now been restored.—Christian Science Monitor.

SUMMER BEST OF SEASONS

Neither Spring, Autumn, Nor Winter Can Compare With the Glory of the Warm Days.

What is the best season of the year? Summer, to most people—though the other seasons, especially spring, have their charms. And the older you get, the more you will like summer, the more you will dread winter.

For summer, with its luxurious growth is symbolic of life at its best. Spring corresponds to our babyhood. It is the sprouting season, full of hope, dreams, uncertainty, danger of frost.

Autumn is like the waning years of life, when we harvest as we have sown, when we suffer for our negligence and mistakes and are rewarded for our effort. Most of us, when we look backward in the autumn of life, say: "If I only had my life to live over again..."

Winter, of course, corresponds to human death, the hibernating of old growth until new growth is ready to sprout and bud.

All three of these seasons are preparatory to or the aftermath of summer. And summer is the period of life—of accomplishment—symbolic of the lives we are living. Lucky are you who have survived the frosts of life's springtime. Your crop of success is started. Toil and weep, for autumn of life will be upon you before you are aware. For results, it's now or never.—Chicago Evening Post.

FORGET DEBT TO CERVANTES

Residents of Town Immortalized by Great Writer Have Voted to Change Its Name.

The inhabitants of the little Spanish village of Puerto Lopiche, disdainful of the fact that Cervantes immortalized their town in "Don Quixote," now desire to change its name.

The question was submitted to a vote of the inhabitants and it was decided that Puerto Lopiche should hereafter be called Puerto de San Juan, in honor of the order of St. John, which occupied that district in the Middle Ages.

Several Spanish newspapers have expressed their great indignation at this ingratitude, reminding the villagers of their obligation to the great Cervantes. But apparently the people of Puerto Lopiche remain entirely unmoved by sentimental and literary arguments, declaring that Puerto de San Juan sounds better than Puerto Lopiche. That, they believe, is the prime consideration.

It has been observed that in other places the inhabitants of places made famous by great writers do not always appreciate the honor bestowed upon them. Witness the good people of Tarascon who certainly have no great love and esteem for Alphonse Daudet.—From the Petit Parisien, Paris. (Translated for the Kansas City Star.)

Development of the Horse.

The earliest horse whose bones have been found was a little animal about the size of a dog. He had three toes in front and four behind. Horses seem to have appeared quite early in America, and many, no doubt, walked the very ground you are standing on, many feet below the present surface.

Horses found life easy, and as the years passed their race grew larger. They became more adapted to running on open prairie lands, where hard, firm feet served best.

Now, it is a principle of animal nature that the less surface of the body there is on the ground the better. Horses have reduced their feet to only four hard, hoof-tipped toes, but the remains of other toes still show under the skin.

Legislation in Sailor's Interests.

Pilmsoll had at heart the good of sailors when he urged his bill upon the parliament of England. Unseaworthy ships were overloaded, sent to sea and sunk, for the collection of insurance so often that it did not seem a coincidence. The Pilmsoll act was passed, prohibiting vessels loading to a submergence over their load-line mark which was painted on the side of the ship, and which came to be known as the Pilmsoll line. This law reached beyond Great Britain, because it was applied by that government to all ships entering the British ports. While willing to protect her own sailors in such a fashion, she was not willing to give her ships unfair competition by allowing ships of other nations to overload.

Cause for Doubt.

There was an all-round good-for-nothing man who died, and at his funeral the minister delivered a most beautiful address, eulogizing the departed in the most glowing manner, praising his splendid qualities as a fine type of man, a good husband and kind parent.

About this time the widow, who was seated well up in front, spoke to her little daughter by her side, and said, "My dear, go look into the coffin and see if it is your father."—Boston Transcript.

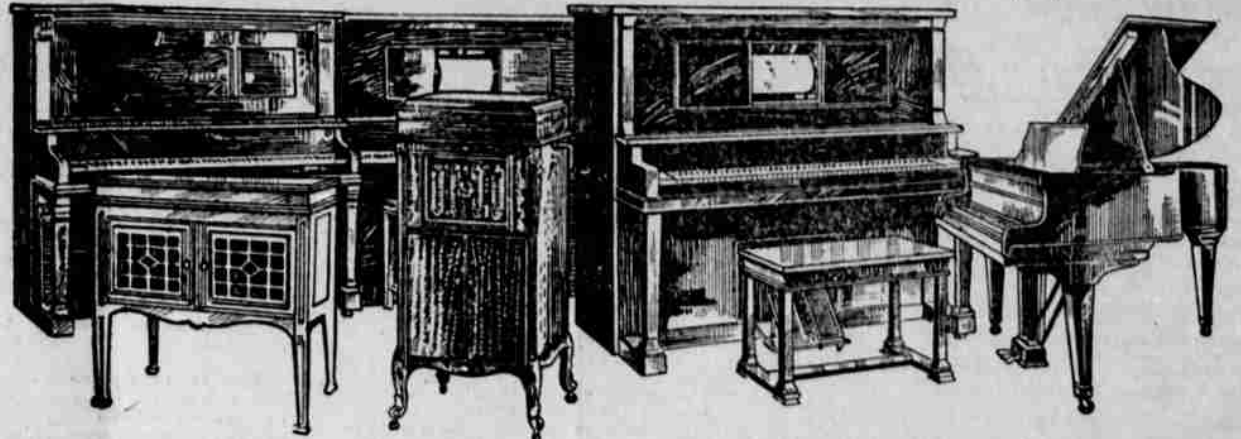

Had Been Misinformed.

Lord Littlefough (who has got old Coldkash in a corner at the club)—Mr. Coldkash, your daughter is the idol of my life, the one hope and aim of my existence. Might I hope that some day I may be permitted to call her wife?

Mr. Coldkash (astonished)—But, my dear sir, I have no daughter. Lord Littlefough—Oh! pardon me; somebody told me that you had. Let's have a drink.

G. W. SPRAGUE DIES FROM INJURIES

G. W. Sprague, a local painter, who was injured in an auto wreck near Myrtle Point the first of the week, died yesterday morning at Clark's hospital in Myrtle Point at 7 o'clock, following a second operation. In the accident Mr. Sprague received an injury to his liver which necessitated an immediate operation. He failed to improve and a second attempt to better his condition was made. He failed to survive, however, and died a few hours after being removed from the operating table.

Mr. Sprague, who was 35 years of age, was born at Egan, South Dakota, and came to Roseburg from Green River, Wyoming, about a year ago. He was in business here as a painter until the first of the month when he decided to move to Roseburg from Coos Bay to obtain a load of personal goods, when the fatal accident occurred.

He is survived by his widow and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Sprague of Edenbow, three brothers, Martin and Alvin of Los Angelen and C. E. Sprague of Denver, and two sisters, Mrs. Wm. R. Friebel and Mrs. A. R. Gilley of Denver.

Will Teach at Sutherland—R. S. J. Hamilton, formerly of this city, who has been living near Eugene for the past year or two, drove over to Roseburg from Sutherland this morning. Mr. Hamilton states that he has moved his family to Sutherland, where he will reside, both he and Mrs. Hamilton having been engaged as teachers at the academy there, Visiting Home Folks—
