Old Residents Here for Short Visit

Interesting visitors to Roseburg this week were Miss Blanche Kearney of Alameda and sister, Mrs. Mary Kearney Nemes of Santa Cruz, California. They are former Roseburg residents, and granddaughters of Anton Rose, founder of Roseburg. The Kearney girls as they will be remembered by old residents here, left here 46 years ago, when young girls, and were greatly interested in the many changes in Roseburg in that time. With Mr. Nemes they are returning to California after a motor trip to Portland where they visited relatives, and stopped here on Tuesday evening to visit with Mrs. Mary E. Mathews. Both Miss Kearney and Mrs. Nemes have expressed their desire to return next year for a longer visit.

"Grandma" Cain Is Ninety Years Old

Several Roseburg residents motored to Riddle on Tuesday afternoon to call on "Grandma" Cain of that place who celebrated her ninety-third birthday anniversary on that day. Grandma Cain has made her home at Riddle for fifty years, and has endeared herself to her many friends, who called on Tuesday afternoon with gifts and tokens of their esteem. Among those motoring out from Roseburg were Mr. and Mrs. George K. Quinn and Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Riddle. Mrs. Cain makes her home with her daughter and son, Bessie and Frank Cain, and in honor of the anniversary the rooms were beautiful with flowers, plants and other flowers, and an immense birthday cake was cut and served. Grandma Cain crossed the plains in the Forties, settling in Washington county before moving to Douglas county.

Mr. and Mrs. Len Talkington left yesterday for Roseburg, following 10 days spent in Salem as the guests of Mrs. P. P. Talkington and Miss Cora Talkington. Various places of interest were visited by the out of town folk during their sojourn, and from here they go south through California, Mexico, Texas and Arizona, expect to reach home about October the first—Salem Capital Journal.

Many Motor to Eugene for Circus

Many Roseburg folk motored to Eugene on Friday and spent the day attending the Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey circus, which gave two performances there on that day. The circus also showed in Medford today, and several auto parties left here for the southern Oregon city this morning. The circus was very good this year, although some were disappointed that the street parade had been eliminated. Among those going to Eugene were Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Taylor, Mrs. J. G. Stephenson, Mrs. Belle Schneider, Miss Agnes Pritchard, Mrs. Claude Welch, Billy Welch, Mr. and Mrs. B. W. Bates, Ross Bates, Roy Petty, Mrs. Irvy Brun and son, Junior, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Harth, Miss Gertrude Rast, Frank Alley, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Quinn, Marion Porter, George Bradburn, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Strader, Elwood Strader, Louise Elliott, William Dolan, Bedford Tester, Woodley Stephenson.

Charming Tea Friday Afternoon

Among the smart entertainments of the week was the tea on Friday afternoon for which Mrs. Blinger Hermann and daughter, Mrs. H. Prescott Gately, of Washington, D. C., were hostesses at the Hermann residence. About 75 prominent matrons and members of the younger set called during the hours of 3 to 6. Mrs. F. W. Haynes, Miss Rosa B. Parrott and Miss Elizabeth Parrott presided over the tea table, which was distinctive with a floral arrangement of pink and white asters. The same flower, combined with greenery and other summer blossoms, was used about the rooms. Assisting the hostesses were Miss Helen Gately, Miss Helen Casey, Miss Virginia Whitting, and Miss Maybelle Miller.

The guests calling at the Hermann residence were: Mrs. J. F. Barker, Mrs. L. G. Broadway, Mrs. Louis Jones, Mrs. James E. Sawyers, Miss Gertrude Rast, Mrs. Stanley Kidder, Mrs. Harry Stapleton, Mrs. A. A. Wilber, Mrs. J. H. Booth, Mrs. J. C. Fullerton, Mrs. Nathan Fullerton, Mrs. F. W. Laurelwood Residents Have Picnic Thursday

A pleasant outdoor gathering took place in Laurelwood Thursday evening, when the residents of that community gathered for a picnic which they plan to make an annual affair. Tables for a picnic supper were spread in the grove, and games and various outdoor diversions filled the hours after supper. Those who gathered for the affair were: Mr. and Mrs. O. W. Fox, Misses Grace and Jane Gordon, Mr. and Mrs. Burnie L. Hyland and family, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Lilburn, Dr. and Mrs. L. A. Wells and family, Mr. and Mrs. Frank L. Lilburn and family, Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Monroe and son, Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Arthur and family, Mr. and Mrs. Jack L. Saunders and son, Mr. and Mrs. Bert G. Bates, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde W. Carstens and son, Mrs. Helen Ferguson, Mr. Alex Ferguson, Mr. and Mrs. John Ferguson, Mr. and Mrs. Nicholson, J. V. Casey.

Beautiful Painting Presented to Club

Through the generosity of Mrs. C. E. Rusko, a beautiful painting adds to the beauty of the reception room at the Country club. The painting is a panoramic view of Crater lake, measuring two by four and one half feet, and was sketched by Mrs. Rusko, near Eagle point. Mrs. Rusko designed the painting especially for the Country club. The painting shows Wizard island to the left, and the Phantom Ship to the right, while in the distance beyond the watered lake of calumet lies the Grouse hills and Mt. Scott are seen. The sky is filled with floating clouds which are characteristic of Crater lake. In the foreground is a portion of the trail which winds around the rim of the lake.

Patsy Salmon Made a Hit With Newspaper Boys, Who in Turn Made a New York Follies Star of Her

By BERT BATES

From the rattling planks of a tent show platform to the frosted footlights of Flo Zeigfeld's Follies in the twinkling of an eye was the pleasant fate of one Patricia Salmon, whose name is now emblazoned in the headlines along with Al Jolson, Peggy Joyce, and other topnotchers of the theatrical sphere in Father Knickerbocker's home town. And it all happened when a bunch of pencil pushers, who had been sent to Shelby to "cover" the Dempsey fight, and financial failure of "Toole county," "discovered" the little tent show prima donna and at once decided to carve her initials on Broadway by using the columns of the various journals they represented.

Prior to the big fight the telegraph wires running out of Shelby to all corners of the nation carried almost as many words concerning the ability of "Patsy the yodeler" as were devoted to the punching ability of one Tommy Gibbons. One New York editor wired his special writer to pay a little attention to the fight. The writer shot back a wire stating that "Patsy" was the "big story" in Shelby.

Patsy was a regular vote-getter with the newspaper boys. The Pullman dining car where the correspondents took on "chow" three times per always had a seat of honor for Patsy. It was at these gatherings that the New Yorkers promised the little maiden to give her a boost into the theatrical limelight of their village.

One evening the writer pounded the piano while Patsy warbled and at the conclusion of her number Hugh Fullerton, famous sports writer, and Heywood Brown, dramatic critic of the New York World, climbed over the kerosene footlights and presented the yodeler with a box of chocolates which they had won on a punch-board earlier in the evening. Patsy blushed, curtsied and dashed into the wings. Her husband, whose name does not appear in any of the lurid articles concerning her lures overboard to fame, was the electrician of the tent show and generally were a fierce scout on account of the attention paid to his bride by the journalists.

Surprise for Birthday Anniversary

A surprise party in honor of the eleventh birthday anniversary of Euleia and Coletta Langenberg, the twin daughters of Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Langenberg, was held on Thursday evening. The merry party spent several hours with games and informal diversions. Those spending the evening at the Langenberg home were Mrs. Z. Zimrick and daughter Helen, Mrs. K. P. Hamilton and daughter Ellen, Mr. and Mrs. K. L. Shirey and family, Louis and Mavis Melvin, Mr. and Mrs. Fayette Langenberg, Louis and Marie, and Euleia and Coletta Langenberg.

Mrs. R. A. Blalock and granddaughter, Doris May, and Mr. and Mrs. John Blalock left on Tuesday for Marshfield, where they will visit for a few days. They made the trip by automobile.

Reception for Former Roseburg Pastor

A number of Roseburg folk including Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Gurnee, Mrs. Porter McMilla, Mrs. F. H. Churchill, and Miss Helen Churchill, motored to Albany Friday evening and attended a reception given by the Methodist Episcopal church there for their pastor, Rev. J. C. Spencer, and wife, on their 20th wedding anniversary. Rev. Spencer was pastor of the M. E. church here, leaving Roseburg for Albany where he has been for the past four years. Nearly 500 people attended the reception, coming from Roseburg, Portland, Silverton and other points, and the spirit of cordiality and good will toward Rev. and Mrs. Spencer, and the frequent words of tribute and appreciation spoke eloquently of the love and affection held for them by everyone who knows them. A beautiful set of Bohemian china was the gift of the Albany church to their pastor, the set being supplemented by salad plates from the Roseburg church.

The interior of the Albany church, where the reception was held, had been transformed into a mammoth reception hall, where comfortable chairs, floor lamps, a hidden orchestra and exotic decorations intrigued and pleased. Ladies of the church received the guests and conducted them to Rev. and Mrs. Spencer. Punch bowls at either end of the room were presided over by young ladies. The orchestra played the greater part of the evening, and among those contributing to the program were Nels Testors, Virginia Mason, Helen Palmer, Mrs. Childs, Mrs. Richardson, Mrs. Cusick, Mrs. W. K. Wright, formerly of Roseburg, Mrs. Petri, Mrs. Kelley, Mrs. Williamson, and A. M. Harriman.

Back to Grandmother's Day for New Styles

By HEDDA HOYT

Fashion Editor of the United Press NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—Styles never stay put in Paris. "As you were" has no meaning in the fashion world, but "as you wear" has sufficient meaning indeed. The attempted return to the early Victorian styles comes as a complete surprise to womenkind. Mannequins of the big gown houses of Paris are parading at the races and on the boulevards of Longchamp in wide crinolined taffeta and organza gowns with lightning bodices and tiny puffed sleeves. They wear old-fashioned poke bonnets, trimmed in ruching and they carry small lace parasols. It is as if ghosts of our grandmothers tripped among us.

Instead of bobbed hair, cork-sock curls peek from under their bonnets and bob about pretty fresh cheeks. Longer curls dangle over the shoulders. Shoulder shawls of lace and net worn over slender bodices tie in fashions in front. Mittens of sheer lace recall the bellies of other days as do patent pumps with white silk stockings.

Whether the crinolined gown will really become a set fashion or not is difficult to say. If the Parisians have their way it will have a fixed place in the fashion world this coming season. The slender silhouette has been a fad for a long time and every day wear it will in all probability hold its own for some time. Evening gowns and gowns for dress occasions, however, are doomed to a change. Hence, the sponsoring of the crinoline.

Popular Posh Shades. Charming shades lend themselves beautifully to brilliant, ethereal effects. The most popular shades in Paris at present are blue, green, rose, lavender and brown. Shirts are often a mass of frills from hem to waist line.

Bodices are figure-molding, sometimes with muffed sleeves and the off-the-shoulder neckline predominates. Ornaments are very popular at Parisian resorts just now. Due to warm weather, they follow the crinolined effects in such shades as yellow, blue, green, orange and other pastels. Small robe tunics trimmed in lace, ribbon and bow velvet streamers are worn with them.

Neckties to wear the crinolined dress is long. Shirts reach the ankles and are usually three or four yards in width. Waistlines are either placed at the normal waist line or just a trifle lower. There is a tendency to drop the bodice in front and back. Owing to the higher waistline corsets are demanded, as the fitted bodice with normal waist

It's too bad we can't stage a prize fight in Roseburg and give some of the home talent a chance to stagger Broadway.

Elaborate Headdresses Adorn Varied Types of Bobbed Hair

HEAD-DRESSES are becoming more and more elaborate. It is because coiffures are becoming more and more simple, or despite that fact?

For instance, the sketch to the upper right shows a rhinestone band, formal enough to grace the most exact of long-haired coiffures, yet it is designed to hold in the shortest of the short bobbed coiffures. In front the band is narrow. But at the back it is broad and worked out in a beautiful though severe design, completely covering the back ends of hair.

The head-dress in the sketch below is a contrast. It is of crossed bands of cloth of gold, with bright red poppies applied. The poppies are studded with little green stones that glitter in their centers. This head-dress, too, is for the simple short-haired mode of wearing the hair. Note the bangs in both these coiffures.

The sketch at the lower left shows a very pretty band of rhinestones, particularly appropriate for the bobbed coiffure. The links get smaller and smaller at the sides, until they divide into a slender band at the back. The link in the front is quite large.

is unsuited to the corsetless figure. New York will probably see the crinoline only in evening models this fall. It will depend on their popularity as evening frocks as to whether they will become the current style for next year.

VEGETABLE MEALS FOR AUGUST DAYS

Porch Suppers
Tongue, cold
Mayonnaise dressing
Hot buttered rolls
Ice-cream
Cakes
Coffee
Tuna fish salad
Red raspberry jam
Fruit sherbet
Cake
Coffee
Vegetable Salad
1/2 cup cauliflower (cooked)
1/2 cup peas (cooked)
1/2 cup cooked carrots
1/2 cup raw celery
2 tablespoons gelatine
2 cups water, or chicken stock
1/2 teaspoon salt
Soak the gelatine in one-fourth cup cold water until it is softened. Then add one cup boiling water to dissolve the gelatine. After it is all dissolved, add the two remaining cups of cold water or stock, and the salt. Other seasonings may be used, as bay leaf, in the stock, a little onion juice, a few drops of lemon juice, cayenne pepper, tomato juice.

Mix all together well, and pour the gelatine over the vegetables that have been arranged to a mold and chilled. Set the mold in a cold place until the gelatine has stiffened. The stiffening may be hastened by setting the mold in cracked ice and salt. Individual molds add to the attractiveness of the salad when it is served.

Serve with mayonnaise dressing to which whipped cream has been added.

Mayonnaise Salad Dressing
1 egg yolk
2 tablespoons vinegar or lemon juice
1 can oil
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon mustard
1/2 teaspoon sugar
Seasoning pepper
Chill the egg, oil, and vinegar or lemon juice, and the bowl in which the dressing is to be made. On a very hot day it is best to set the mixing bowl in a pan of ice. Rub together the dry ingredients, and add the egg yolk. Mix well without beating. Add a teaspoonful of vinegar and mix. Then add very slowly a few drops of oil. Beat well before adding more oil, then add a few more drops of the oil and beat again. Continue to add the oil very slowly until two tablespoons have been added. If the dressing becomes very thick add a little more oil. Then add all a teaspoonful of a time until half the oil has been used. After that the oil may be added more readily.

Keep the dressing in a cold place after it is finished. Just before serving mix thoroughly into it one-half cup of stiffly whipped cream.

Lemon juice makes a dressing that is less tart than that made of full-strength vinegar. If the flavor of olive-oil is liked it may be given to the dressing without great expense by mixing one-fourth cup of oil with three-fourths cup of salad oil.

Tuna Fish Salad
1 can tuna
1 cup chopped celery
2 sweet pickles
Mix well together and serve with boiled dressing.

Boiled Salad Dressing
2 tablespoons fat
2 tablespoons flour
1/4 cup vinegar
1/2 cup water
1 teaspoon salt
2 egg yolks
1 teaspoon sugar
Melt the fat, add the flour, and when the mixture is hot put in the vinegar and water. Add salt and cook till smooth. If too thick add more water or vinegar and water. Cool, then add the egg yolks and beat again over water until the egg is cooked.

ADVICE TO THE LOVELORN
by MRS. ELLSBURY
(Address all communications to Mrs. Ellsbury, care of News-Review.)

Dear Mrs. Ellsbury: We are two girls 18 years old, and we want to know if we are old enough to leave home. Could our parents make us come back? What kind of work could we get in a city? Where should we go when we get there?

TOM AND JERRY
You are two very foolish girls if you leave home, and go to the city. You are both untrained and very young. The best you could do, if you secured positions at all, would be a small job, poor pay, long hours and hard work. You would not be nearly as well off, or have nearly as good time as you have right here. The wise thing for you both is to keep thinking on the fact that you would like to go away, and work and study to prepare yourself to hold a good position. There are thousands of untrained girls in every city, and it is the exceptional one who can make her own way. When you are older say 21 or 22, and know that you can command a good position and good money, then is plenty of time to think about going to the city. Your parents, could, and very probably would, bring you both back at once.

MUCH WORRIED.
Dear Mrs. Ellsbury: Can you help me with a problem? Do you think a girl is ever justified in proposing to a man?

MUCH WORRIED.
There are times when I think a girl is justified in proposing to a man. These times, however, are very rare, and the circumstances very delicate.
