

FOREST FIRES ARE CONTROLLED TODAY

(By Associated Press.)
PORTLAND, Aug. 29.—Forest fires northwest of Portland reported last night as threatening to assume serious proportions were under control today, according to a report brought by C. C. Scott, secretary of the state forest fire association. He said the fires were confined to slashings and no equipment had been lost. The damage was almost negligible.

Flames Under Control

VERNONIA, Ore., Aug. 29.—The forest fires today are confined largely to outcrop tracts, burning near here in the land of four lumber companies. The flames spread yesterday with little signs of cessation today. It is not believed any of the camps were burned or any equipment lost. Unless a high wind arises, it is believed no additional loss is imminent.

BOLSHEVIKI BANDS TERRORIZE SILESIA

BERLIN, Aug. 29.—Organized Bolshevik bands are terrorizing the dwellers of the rural districts in Upper Silesia, according to dispatches from that district. NO MAIL LABOR DAY

Post Office Will Be Closed All Day Although Mail Will Be Collected and Sent Out as Usual

The local post office will be closed all day Labor Day, according to an announcement made this morning by Postmaster Heinline. The usual distribution of mail to locked boxes will be made and mail will be made up for all of the regular trains and collections from the mail boxes will take place on the usual schedule. The postmaster, however, desires to release as many of the clerks as possible for vacation on that day as they have been very willing during the past months to put in extra time and assume extra work for the accommodation of the patrons of the office. As many people are planning on being away from town on Labor Day, the lack of mail service will not be keenly felt and the postal clerks will be able to enjoy a full day away from their work.

AUTO TERMINAL HOTEL TO START

the district in which it is located. These stage lines then become more closely connected in their operation and a regular and unbroken line of buses is provided with accommodations at frequent intervals for the passengers.

The hotel will be a decided improvement over the present building. The plans, which were drawn by Contractor F. E. Alley of this city, call for a very attractive looking structure and one that will be of a beautiful appearance as well as being equipped to give the best of service and convenience to the patrons of the auto stage lines and the traveling public in general.

Why He Called It "Portland" Cement

In 1824, an English mason wanted to produce a better cement than any then in use. To do this he burned finely ground clay and limestone together at a high heat. The hard balls (called clinker) that resulted were ground to a fine powder. When a mixture of this dull gray powder with water had hardened, it was the color of a popular building stone quarried on the Isle of Portland off the coast of England. So this mason, Joseph Aspdin, called his discovery "portland" cement.

That was less than one hundred years ago.

Portland cement was not made in the United States until fifty years ago. The average annual production for the ten years following was only 36,000 sacks. Last year the country used over 470,000 sacks of portland cement. Capacity to manufacture was nearly 600,000 sacks.

Cement cannot be made everywhere because raw materials of the necessary chemical composition are not found in sufficient quantities in every part of the country. But it is now manufactured in 27 states by 120 plants. There is at least one of these plants within shipping distance of any community in this country.

To provide a cement supply that would always be ample to meet demand has meant a good deal in costly experience to those who have invested in the cement industry. There have been large capital investments with low returns.

In the last twenty-five years, 38 cement plants have been built or have gone through some stage of construction or financing. 162 were completed and placed in operation.

Only 120 of these plants have survived financial, operating and marketing trials of the period. Their capacity is nearly 30 per cent greater than the record year's demand.

These are a few important facts about an industry that is still young. Advertisements to follow will give you more of these facts and will tell something of the important part cement occupies in the welfare of every community.
